Teamsters Head Grilled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Department investigators interrogated Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons about the union's Central States pension fund Wednesday amid reports of questionable loan practices including possible fraud and embezzlement.

Fitzsimmons was questioned under subpoena from a joint Labor-Justice Department task force. The subpoena was issued after he refused a request to give a deposition voluntarily. Neither he nor any of the Labor investigators would comment about the interrogation.

Five other trustees of the fund have been subpoenaed to appear in the next several days. They include William Presser of Cleveland, a vice president of the union who has been convicted in the past of illegally accepting payments to the union from employers, obstructing justice and illegally destroying union records.

The 68-year-old chief of the nation's biggest union emerged stone-faced and silent after two hours of morning questioning. He was accompanied by three men who repeatedly refused to identify themselves. Department officials said they were his lawyers.

Asked by a reporter what had gone on during the session, one of the three replied: "No comment."

Fitzsimmons and the trio returned after lunch for more questioning. In all, they spent 4½ hours before the investigators. They were to return Thursday for more interrogation.

During the union's national convention last month in Las Vegas, Nev., Fitzsimmons defended the fund and complained of harassment. He said the fund "has been whipped by adverse publicity over the past two decades and has been investigated by every Dick Tracy in the land."

As for himself, Fitzsimmons declared: "I have been harassed personally as far as grand juries, indictments and what-not . . . I'm in receipt now of a subpoena to appear in Washington, D.C., as a few others sitting on this rostrum are."

Sources say the investigators, headed by Lawrence Lippe, have uncovered questionable transactions by trustees of the $1.4 billion fund, which covers 400,000 of the union's 2 million members. The sources said evidence of possible fraud and embezzlement in two fund transactions has been turned over to the Justice Department.

The investigation, under the 1974 federal Pension Reform Act restricting the way pension assets may be handled, also has turned up millions of dollars in delinquent loans, the sources said.

The fund's investments include an estimated $200 million in loans to hotel and gambling operations in Las Vegas.

Trustees of the fund include Fitzsimmons, seven other union officials and eight representatives of employers of Teamster members. Under the law, the Labor Department could seek their removal. The probe has been under way since the fall

As Fitzsimmons was being interrogated, industry sources said the effects of the revocation of the tax-exempt status of the fund will be less severe than expected.

One source said the Internal Revenue Service has told the trustees that the 15,000 employers contributing $20 million a month to the fund can deduct the money from their federal income taxes until at least Aug. 31.

The trustees have told contributors this means back taxes will not be levied against either the employers or the beneficiaries of the fund, a source said. The source added that back taxes might not be levied against the fund itself, although this is less certain.

If the IRS does decide to levy back taxes against the fund, it might do so only in selected years, the source said.

The arrangement was worked out during weekend negotiations among fund attorneys and officials of the IRS and the Treasury Department.

The IRS had revoked the fund's tax-exempt status last month retroactive to Jan. 31, 1965, a move that could have resulted in millions of dollars in back taxes levied against the employers, the fund itself and its beneficiaries.

MRS. HARRIS . . . charged with murder.

Husband Dead; Wife Is Charged

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Hebron — A first degree murder charge was filed Wednesday afternoon against Rosemary Virginia Harris of Chester.

The 50-year-old woman was accused of killing her common-law husband, Herbert A. Crane, last Wednesday.

In a brief appearance before Thayer County Associate Judge Robert L. Stutz, the defendant was ordered held without bond pending a preliminary hearing yet to be set. Appointed defense attorneys were David E. Cording and Joseph H. Murray of Hebron.

County Attorney Duane L. Hubbard said an autopsy on Crane's body indicated death was due to "a bullet wound in the head, possibly from a .22 caliber weapon." The decomposed body was found Tuesday in a hog shed at the couple's Chester acreage.

Sheriff Jim Johnson said Mrs. Harris reported the finding of the body Tuesday noon. The victim's pickup truck, its interior gutted by fire, was then located six miles east of Chester near Rose Creek.

Mrs. Harris was taken into custody early Wednesday morning after questioning by State Patrol investigators, Johnson said.

Crane, 54, was a truck driver for a Kansas City oil firm. The couple reportedly had lived together about 20 years.

Dressed in slacks and flowered blouse, the suspect appeared calm during the brief hearing. She became tearful as she visited with family members afterwards, however.

The couple has a son, 13, and Mrs. Harris has several children from a previous marriage.

'Got Ya Again' Fools Fences

Washington (AP) — Chicago Bob thought he was fencing stolen goods with crooked employes of a truck repair shop. But the guys behind the counter at H & H Trucking really were on the up and up.

H & H was a police subsidiary.

They're calling it "Got Ya Again." For the second time in four months, scores of persons have been arrested for allegedly fencing stolen goods at a dummy business set up here by local police and FBI agents posing as street toughs.

Authorities began rounding up 140 persons on charges that they sold $1.2 million worth of stolen checks, credit cards, guns, appliances and cars to the undercover officers at the fake garage, which began business seven months ago.

First One Last February

Last Feb. 28 the police and FBI arrested more than 100 suspected thieves who peddled their wares at a warehouse manned by officers who posed as Mafia-type gangsters with aliases like Rico Rigatone.

The first operation was dubbed "The Sting."

Tuesday's encore used the name of H & H's so-called parent company, G.Y.A. Inc. — police jargon for "Got Ya Again."

A series of raids netted 71 of the 140 persons named in the warrants, and authorities were seeking the rest. They got the home addresses of many customers a few weeks ago by selling $10 raffle tickets on a nonexistent Cadillac Eldorado.

Officials said many H & H customers were heroin addicts who stole to support their habits.

Chicago Bob Takes Bait

Among those who took the bait was Chicago Bob.

"He would come in and put on an act like, 'Hey man, I know you're the police, but I'm going to deal with you anyway.' He'd put a bag over his head and clown around. And of course we had it all on film," boasted an FBI agent who helped run H & H.

Nine of those arrested also were nabbed in February at the warehouse called P.F.F. Inc., which stood for "Police-FBI-Fencing Incognito." H & H was smaller than P.F.F. Inc. Both featured cameras in the walls to capture the transactions on videotape.

Poor Were Ripped Off

"Most of that property was taken from those in this city who can least afford to lose it," said Earl Silbert, U.S. attorney for the district. "That included checks taken from people on welfare who needed that money for their rent and their food."

D.C. Police Chief Maurice Cullinane said 51% of H & H's customers were out of jail on probation, parole or pretrial release.

The "employes" at the trucking operation told customers they were dealing in stolen merchandise behind the back of the boss, who was always away, Cullinane said. The countermen were surrounded by empty auto parts boxes, but they turned away any legitimate truck repair business by claiming to do "contract work" only.

The officers relied on fast talk and street slang to convince their customers they were crooks.

The Long Gray Line Gets A Few Curves

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — The Long Gray Line got a few curves Wednesday.

Heaving duffle bags, struggling with parade movements and undergoing short haircuts, 119 women entered the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

"The training in its essence and in its approach is exactly the same for women as it is for men," Lt. Gen. Sydney B. Berry, the academy's superintendent, said at a news conference at the nation's oldest military academy.

"That is the prevailing psychology and philosophy — that men and women cadets do the same thing unless those physiological differences lead to minimum essential adjustments."

Some of the women began reporting before the scheduled 7 a.m. start of a day in which they would leave pasts as beauty queens, high school basketball stars and ice skating champions to become officers.

"I just try to follow all the rules and not do anything wrong," Karen Anne Cecchini of Santa Maria, Calif., said while waiting in line for her gym shorts and t-shirts. She was the first woman at Michie Stadium on the rainy day of a new life for 1,400 new cadets.

"I mostly worried about the idea of keeping my determination and not giving up . . . then I know I can succeed," she said.

That sentiment was expressed by a half-dozen women. "I'm determined to make it," Karen Kelly of Naperville, Ill., said. "I won't quit on my own accord. If they're going to kick me out, they'll kick me out, but I'm not going to quit."

If women spent their first day here with sweat on their brow, they entered the Army gracefully. Like the men, they turned in any money in excess of $11. They were measured for uniforms designed just for them and got raincoats, bathrobes and belt buckles. They took orders like, well, soldiers.

Berry said "more planning, more thinking, more preparation" went into the day "than probably was done for D-day." He was asked how he felt at the passing of the era in which he became an officer.

"This is the future of the United States Army . . . the future of the Military Academy," he said. "So, a feeling of exhilaration, of pride, particularly when this is the largest entering class the Military Academy has had in its 174-year experience."

Brig. Gen. Walter F. Ulmer Jr., commandant, told the new arrivals the beleaguered honor system was "strong, healthy and reasonable."

And Berry said later: "As we take the convergence of two events — first, admission of women to the Military Academy, and the honor situation that has troubled us for the last two or three months — I will share with you my strong conviction and belief that from all of this will emerge a reaffirmed honor code, a more effective honor system and a stronger United States Military Academy."

West Point acknowledges, however, that some cadets hate to see the all-male tradition end. The change came under congressional mandate, as it did at the Air Force Academy last week and Annapolis on Tuesday.

Most Demo Delegates Like Church For Vice President

By DON WALTON

Not surprisingly, Sen. Frank Church of Idaho is the vice presidential choice of a majority of Nebraska's delegates to the Democratic national convention.

In a survey of the 23 delegates, Church was named by 13 as their first choice as Jimmy Carter's running mate — although the senator had to share one first choice vote with Congresswoman Barbara Jordan of Texas.

Ms. Jordan received one additional first choice vote, making her the second leading vice presidential favorite for Nebraska delegates.

In all, nine names were mentioned by the delegates.

All but one are members of Congress; the other is Gov. Jerry Brown of California.

Six of them hold U.S. Senate seats, but Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts was not among them.

The senators named by Nebraska delegates were Church, Birch Bayh of Indiana, Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Walter Mondale of Minnesota and John Glenn of Ohio.

The other House member, in addition to Ms. Jordan, was Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona.

Bayh, Stevenson, Brown and Udall each had one first choice vote. The others were named in lists which did not specify any ranking of preference.

Church's emergence as the vice presidential choice of most Nebraska delegates was expected.

When the senator won Nebraska's presidential primary election last May, he carried to victory with him 15 delegate candidates pledged to his support.

The Church delegates have since been released from their pledges and are now technically uncommitted.

Nebraska's other eight delegates are pledged to support Carter.

All 13 top choice votes for Church came from delegates originally committed to his support for the presidential nomination.

Ms. Jordan's two votes came from Church delegates Donna Polk of Lincoln and Marylyn Felion of Omaha. Ms. Felion also listed Church.

Carter delegate Michael Shaughnessy of St. Paul named Bayh.

The Stevenson vote came from Church delegate Michael Wellman of LaVista.

Brown garnered his single first choice vote from Katherine Hare Paulsen of Taylor, a Carter delegate.

Udall's name was cited by Carter delegate Jim Wolf of Albion as his first preference.

Some delegates declined to name anyone.

And Carter delegate Sue Jenkins of Grand Island chose the realistic approach when she suggested that the decision is entirely "up to Jimmy Carter."

Family Planning Falls Short

Almost 45,000 Nebraska women of childbearing age who risk unwanted pregnancies do not have access to family planning services, according to Fred Hines, executive director of Planned Parenthood of Omaha.

In order to provide those women — classified as from low and marginal income families — with adequate family planning services, current expenditures would have to be raised some $3.5 million.

Citing statistics contained in a study released Wednesday, Hines said that 75% of the unserved women reside in Nebraska's non-metropolitan counties.

And of an estimated 29,500 teenagers in need of family planning assistance, 62% remain unserved.

The study was part of a nationwide research project carried out by the Planned Parenthood Federation of America under a grant from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation.

Current funding for family planning in the state amounts to about $1 million annually, Hines said.

Approximately 90% of that comes from the federal government; the remainder from private contributions to family planning agencies.

With the exception of required matching funds, no state and local government funds are spent for family planning services in Nebraska.

State Sen. Shirley Marsh, who joined Hines and Dr. Richard Jackson of Pawnee City on a panel which discussed the report, said, "It seems to me that this is a problem for our state" government.

And she indicated that the Legislature's Public Health and Welfare Committee should take a look at the funding problem.

In the 60 Nebraska counties which have no local source of organized family planning services, there is a need for hospital involvement, clinic space, recruitment of medical staff and the development of referral services, Hines said.

The most "economical" way of attacking the problem of insufficient family planning services would be to enlist the aid of hospitals, Mrs. Marsha said. Hospitals have "built-in" staff and facilitites that could be used in family planning, she said.

But someone "would have to provide funds" for those hospitals, Hines said.

And Dr. Jackson added that rural hospitals, which generally do not have regular outpatient clincis, would have to change their philosophy in that regard.

Dr. Jackson also chided the Nebraska Legislature for inconsistency in taking a rather conservative stand on abortion while neglecting to appropriate funds for family planning services.

Lincoln Woman Killed In Crash Near St. Paul

St. Paul (UPI) — Lois F. Waterman, 67, 4241 N. 61st, Lincoln, died Wednesday when the car she was driving collided with two other vehicles on Highway 92 two miles west of St. Paul, the Howard County sheriff's office said.

Authoritites said the victim's auto crossed the centerline and struck a car driven by Alexander A. Ford, 16, of Dannebrog, who was not injured.

The Waterman auto then collided with a car driven by William Bradley, 48, of Houston, Tex. Bradley and his wife, Wilma, 49, were hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

Landing Delayed

Pasadena, Calif. (AP) — Viking I's landing on Mars has been postponed until at least July 20 because of new evidence Wednesday that its target area is rougher than photographs had shown.

The original July 4 landing was put off until July 17 because the first landing site proved too hazardous.

The Waterman auto then collided with a car driven by William Bradley, 48, of Houston, Tex. Bradley and his wife, Wilma, 49, were hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

Landing Delayed

Pasadena, Calif. (AP) — Viking I's landing on Mars has been postponed until at least July 20 because of new evidence Wednesday that its target area is rougher than photographs had shown.

The original July 4 landing was put off until July 17 because the first landing site proved too hazardous.

Boss Mad; Ban Follows

Washington (UPI) — An "irritated" President Ford Wednesday ordered the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to revoke a ruling that bans father-son and mother-daughter events in public schools.

HEW's Office of Civil Rights ruled that such events violate sex discrimination laws and said schools sponsoring such activities run the risk of losing federal funds.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford will ask Congress to act, if necessary, to make certain such "traditional American activities as father and son and mother and daughter school events can continue."

Nessen said, "When he read it in the morning newspapers, the President was really quite irritated."

Ford telephoned HEW Secretary David Mathews and two other officials, Director James T. Lynn of the Office of Management and Budget and Director James Cannon of the White House Domestic Council, and ordered the suspension.

According to Nessen, Ford said American institutions cannot be wiped out "by some government lawyer or bureaucrat."

The President ordered Mathews to study the matter and said he will propose legislation to overturn any law banning such school events if necessary.

In the wake of Ford's action, Mathews said his agency "plans no enforcement action as to these kinds of events occurring during the review period and will advise any school wishing to have such events to proceed."

The HEW ruling dealt with a request from the Scottsdale, Ariz., school district to clarify 1972 amendments to the civil rights act which bar sex discrimination in any educational institution receiving federal funds.

The ruling, which came from the regional office in San Francisco after being cleared by HEW headquarters, also could have applied to PTA-sponsored events if public school facilities were used.

William Randall, Scottsdale public schools superintendent, said, "We requested the ruling as a routine matter of clarification." He said the state's congressional delegation would be asked to look into the matter.

"I can understand the concern that might be expressed over differing treatment of some youngsters, such as those in one-parent situations," he said. "But that is part of life and part of reality. I don't know that we can go on forever making rules. Part of it has to be good common sense."

FBI Indian Actions Defended

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — FBI Director Clarence Kelley, testifying Wednesday in the trial of two men accused of killing FBI agents on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation, defended his agency's actions in dealing with Indians.

Asked why helicopters, other aircraft and battlefield gear are supplied to agents at the South Dakota reservation, Kelley said the equipment is needed to protect the agents' lives.

"Is life on the reservation more dangerous than in other parts of the country?" defense counsel William Kunstler asked.

"More dangerous perhaps to FBI agents," Kelley replied. "There have been two agents slain there."

Kunstler responded, "Many native Americans have been slain there too."

Kelley said agents use helicopters and fixed-wing airplanes to patrol the reservation. Kunstler said they were also issued M16 automatic weapons, bullet-proof vests and army-type clothing.

Kelley arrived in Cedar Rapids on Tuesday night after U.S. District Judge Edward J. McManus ordered him to explain why he should not be held in contempt for failing to answer a subpoena to testify Tuesday. The contempt issue did not come up in open court, however.

Two members of the American Indian Movement — Robert Robideau, 29, Portland, Ore., and Darelle Butler, 34, Rogue River, Ore. — are charged with killing agents Jack Coler and Ronald Williams, both 28, on June 26, 1975, at Pine Ridge.

How Do You Say Ten Four In Spanish?

Miami (AP) — If citizens band afficionados in the Miami area want to be really up on things, they have to know more than just their own peculiar lingo — they have to know it in Spanish.

On a typical day, a Latin CB fan might jump into his "movible" (automobile), turn on his "hierros" (radio equipment) and sign onto the "gallinero" (chicken coop, the term for Channel 14) to try to find his "coleguitas" (good buddies).

Like other CBers, the Latins love "handles," or nicknames used so "coleguitas" will recognize them. Popular handles are "Huracan" — Hurrican, "Bigote" — Moustache, "Latigo Negro" — Black Whip.

Because of the popularity of CB radios among Miami's colony of some 400,000 Latins, Channel 14 often is "de pared a pared y de techo a piso" — wall to wall and ceiling to floor, meaning it's full and everybody trying to talk at the same time.

The Latins face another problem common to other CBers. Sometimes, the "oso blanco tiene la orejita encendida" — policemen are listening.

In that case, that's a big "diez cuatro, coleguitas" (10-4, good buddies).

Cosmonauts In Space Lab

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's Soyuz 21 spacecraft docked with an orbiting space station Wednesday slightly more than 25 hours after it rocketed into space with two cosmonauts aboard.

The Tass news agency reported cosmonauts Boris Volynov and Vitaly Zholobov entered the Salyut 5 space lab at 8:40 a.m. CDT and found everything normal.

Salyut has been in orbit since June 22.

The two cosmonauts will carry out a number of technical experiments while living in the space laboratory, which will orbit in tandem with the Soyuz return capsule, Tass said.

The news agency said the space lab's mission involves an exploration of objects and materials on earth and of atmospheric phenomena to gather data "in the interests of the national economy."

Rubber Talks Break Down

CLEVELAND (AP) — The final doors were closing Wednesday in the breakdown of negotiations in the 78-day-old rubber workers strike against the industry's Big Four.

The breakdown left contract talks recessed indefinitely and 63,500 workers on picket lines coast to coast.

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. quit the bargaining table in Dayton after reviewing its offer with its section of the United Rubber Workers union.

O. M. Sherman, Goodyear industrial relations vice president said the union committee contended it lacked authorization from its parent international to bargain on economic matters.

Peter Bommarito, URW international president, said Goodyear presented the offer as its final position while saying that unless the union accepted it, Goodyear would recess the talks. He said the offer was rejected.

Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. bargainers and their URW counterparts went through the same process Tuesday night in Cleveland, where the international union had rejected the same offer earlier in the day.

B.F. Goodrich Co. and Uniroyal Inc. were expected to go the same route.

And it was considered likely that Armstrong Rubber Co. and its URW negotiators would break off their bargaining in Louisville, Ky., to await action by the Big Four. About 3,500 of the New Haven, Conn., company's workers at five plants joined the strike last week.

By URW choice, negotiations on economic issues prior to Wednesday centered on Firestone, and Firestone's offer was to set the pattern for the industry.

Bommarito said Tuesday night the URW team that negotiates with Firestone would remain in Cleveland for a few days in the event Firestone wanted to resume talks despite having said it had made its final and best-possible offer.

Besides pension, health and life insurance benefit improvements, the pattern offer would have raised wages $1.30 an hour over three years, 75 cents of it in the first year. Bommarito said the union had pared to about $1 its original demand for an additional $1.65 an hour in the first year.

Firestone also offered to add one cent an hour for each .4% quarterly rise in the consumer price index beginning in the second quarter of 1977 and using the third quarter of 1976 as the base. Firestone estimated that cost-of-living provision would add 47 cents an hour by the end of a three-year contract if inflation totaled 6%.

The union wants the provision in effect all three years at a rate of one cent an hour for each .3% quarterly rise in the index and estimated its plan would mean an additional 95 cents an hour during the period.

URW Local 286 To Hear Report 2 P.M. Sunday

Progress, or the lack of it, in talks between the rubber industry and the United Rubber Workers will be explained to the members of Local 286 at 2 p.m. Sunday in the URW hall.

Gilbert Laws, the local's president who has been attending negotiations between the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and the union, is scheduled to be at the meeting.

Laws will discuss the differences between various offers made by the rubber firms and the demands of the union, according to Don Wright, local vice president.

Carter Campaign Asks For Financial Exception

WASHINGTON (AP) — The confident Jimmy Carter campaign told the Federal Election Commission on Wednesday it intends to conduct studies before the November election on the transition of power from a Ford to a Carter administration.

General counsel Morris Dees said as much as $200,000 would be spent on the early transition studies. He asked the FEC to let private contributions pay for these studies. He testified they cannot be paid for out of the $21.2 million the government is giving candidates this year.

The law providing for federal financing of the general election campaign prohibits candidates from accepting private financing for such qualified campaign expenses.

Dees said, however, that "there are certain types of expenditures — basically non-political in nature — which should not be treated as qualified campaign expenses.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace has been invited to speak to the Democratic National Convention in New York next week, his campaign director said Wednesday. One theme probably will be federal bureaucracy, one of the governor's major campaign topics.

Russia Buys Corn, Wheat

Washington (AP) — The Soviet Union has bought an additional 300,000 tons of U.S. corn and 300,000 tons of wheat for delivery after Oct. 1, under a new long-term sales agreement, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

At current prices, the corn is worth about $36 million and the wheat $45 million, a spokesman said.

Department officials declined to identify the exporter involved.

Under a five-year agreement reached last fall, the Soviet Union is committed to buy 6 million to 8 million tons of wheat and corn annually, beginning with deliveries this Oct. 1.

Spaniard Compares Communist Change To Luther's Rebellion

©The New York Times

By FLORA LEWIS

East Berlin — The leader of the Spanish Communist Party, who was the most openly critical at the European Communist conference here, says he considers the new movement of Western European Communists against Moscow's dominance comparable to Martin Luther's rejection of Rome.

After the two-day conference ended, the Spaniard, Santiago Carrillo, relaxed in a little reception room and, in an interview, gave his thoughts on longer-term trends.

In his speech to 28 other Communist Party heads from East and West he had likened communism to the primitive Christian Church and the October Revolution in Russia in 1917 to "our Christmas."

It was a startling use of a metaphor long advanced by non-Communists to explain the mystical aspects of Moscow's creed and its doctrine of ideological infallibility — a metaphor that has never been heard at a meeting of Communist leaders, where the litany requires tribute to "scientific historical materialism."

Maturity Brings Reality

"Yes," said the aging Spaniard, "we had our Pope, our Vatican, and we thought we were predestined to triumph. But as we mature and become less of a church, we must become more rational, closer to reality.

"We must see that each individual has his private life, his individual sense of things. I told the last party executive meeting that a person's preferences of friends, of music and literature, whether to be religious or atheist, has nothing to do with the party. The party can only be concerned with problems of politics and social struggles."

It is a drastic break with the old Communist claim to total faith, total allegiance, a total answer to all life's problems.

"And why not make a comparison with Luther?" Carrillo asked. "Nowadays he wouldn't be burned by the Inquisition. Heretics usually turn out to be right. They are ahead of time, but after all they are right. We want Communists to be heretics. When we become conservatives, we are no longer right."

'Bourgeois' Needs Among Heresies

Among Carrillo's heresies, in the customary Moscow view, are not only the right to independence of national parties but also an insistence on the need for what other Communists call "bourgeosi democracy" and "bourgeois freedoms."

"I couldn't have said these things at a Communist meeting two years ago," he said. "There would have been an uproar of protest. I would have been thrown out."

What had changed? "I was alone then," Carrillo said, "but now we are a growing force. The Italians, the French are coming along, others. The Russians have had to resign themselves to our views. In politics force is respected."

He Hopes U.S. Wises Up

"But," he continued, "it seems that the U.S. is agreeing with the East against the development of Euro-Communism. I hope there will be a more intelligent American policy. I know it isn't easy, but you must try to understand. Of course, these developments will have an impact on the East. In Spain U.S. opposition is favorable to us because people feel the Americans try to establish dependencies.

"Americans should realize that the (Communist) parties in the West don't want to change the strategic balance. It is an element of peace. We don't want Europe under the influence of the Warsaw Pact. We want an autonomous Europe. What we do want is to affect our countries' internal politics without interference.

"We want a type of socialism with universal sufferage, alternation of government, not control of power for the Communists, but an alliance of forces that in no way would allow a Communist monopoly."

The position has been advanced before. But what can a Communist's pledge to respect alternation of government mean when it is accompanied by a demand for irreversible changes in society?

"We mean the Communist Party could be in one coalition government, and if it lost out in the next elections, it would be outside," Carrillo said. "Some economic changes would have been achieved and would remain, but there would still be a whole range of policial issues. There are many problems of the economic, social and moral crisis that can't be resolved in our countries without means that permit society to use the country's riches better."

Some Guidance Needed, He Says

"We don't want to collectivize everything," he added, "but some key industries and raw-materials production need to be guided to solve national problems. There has been on fiscal reform in Spain and it is anarchy. Only wage-earners pay taxes. Business doesn't pay, and the state loses billions. Only a democratic government could make this reform.

"And we need some agrarian reform. There are estates of tens of thousands of acres reserved for private hunting or bull breeding that should be farmed. But the nobles will never change this."

4 Accused Terrorists Escape Jail

BERLIN (AP) — Four women accused of terrorism — one of whose freedom had been demanded by hijackers of an Air France plane last week — broke out of a West Berlin prison early Wednesday by overpowering two guards.

The escapees made their way through windows and over rooftops to the outer wall, officials said.

Police mounted a search throughout West Berlin and West Germany. Officials said one of the escapees had a gun and all had gotten keys to their cells before the escape.

Police identified the four as Inge Viett, 32; Gabriele Rollnik, 25; Juliane Plambeck, 23, and Monika Berberich 33.

Miss Viett, a former kindergarten teacher, was on the list of 53 prisoners the Palestinian and German hijackers in Uganda wanted freed, until Israeli commandos swooped down on the airport, rescued the hostages and killed the hijackers.

Miss Viett, Miss Rollnik and Miss Plambeck were under investigation to determine if they took part in the kidnaping last year of Peter Lorenz, who won a seat in West Berlin's assembly in an election held during the six days he was held captive. He was freed March 4, 1975, after five jailed anarchists were released from jails and flown to Yemen.

Israel To Defend Raid

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — Israel prepared on Wednesday to defend before the Security Council its military rescue operation in Uganda and to provide what it said was evidence of Ugandan President Idi Amin's cooperation with the air hijackers.

"We believe the Ugandan government was part and parcel of this operation," Israeli Ambassador Chaim Herzog said in an interview on the NBC "Today Show."

The 15-member Security Council originally schuled a meeting for Thursday, but it was announced later the debate would be set back to Friday afternoon because Ugandan Foreign Minister Juan Ons could not arrive before then.

Hostage Says Amin Helped Jet Hijackers

PARIS (AP) — There is "no doubt whatever" Ugandan President Idi Amin was an accomplice in the hijacking of an Air France jet to Uganda last week, a former hostage of the hijackers said in an interview published Wednesday.

The freed hostage, Michel Cojot, was among those the pro-Palestinian hijackers released before the Israeli raid that freed the rest last Saturday night.

Cojot, a top official in a multinational corporation, said in Le Monde he did not have irrefutable proof of Amin's complicity, but believed the Ugandan president was working with the hijackers for six reasons:

—Entebbe Airport outside the Ugandan capital showed no reservations about letting the plane land.

—The four hijackers observed strict military discipline during the first phase of the operation but began relaxing as soon as the jet landed in Uganda, "as if they were on friendly territory."

—Three armed Palestinians were waiting at the airport and took over guarding the hostages, along with Ugandan soldiers, while the four initial hijackers slept.

—Ugandans cleaning washrooms on the plane carefully collected all papers the hijackers dropped in an attempt to make sure no evidence of their identity remained aboard.

—The airport director who brought the hostages supplies said he had been waiting for the approximately 260 passengers and crew.

Schmidt Can't Stomach Hot Dogs

Bonn (UPI) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, making his 31st trip to the United States next week, expressed strong views Wednesday on American food.

A reporter asked if Schmidt intended to break out of the official program and meet "the real America" by stopping at a quick food place "for a hot dog."

"I have been in America about 30 times already, and I know America quite well, and I know hot dogs," Schmidt replied. "I detest them."

"But I like hamburgers," he went on after a moment.

Spaniard Compares Communist Change To Luther's Rebellion

©The New York Times

By FLORA LEWIS

East Berlin — The leader of the Spanish Communist Party, who was the most openly critical at the European Communist conference here, says he considers the new movement of Western European Communists against Moscow's dominance comparable to Martin Luther's rejection of Rome.

After the two-day conference ended, the Spaniard, Santiago Carrillo, relaxed in a little reception room and, in an interview, gave his thoughts on longer-term trends.

In his speech to 28 other Communist Party heads from East and West he had likened communism to the primitive Christian Church and the October Revolution in Russia in 1917 to "our Christmas."

It was a startling use of a metaphor long advanced by non-Communists to explain the mystical aspects of Moscow's creed and its doctrine of ideological infallibility — a metaphor that has never been heard at a meeting of Communist leaders, where the litany requires tribute to "scientific historical materialism."

Maturity Brings Reality

"Yes," said the aging Spaniard, "we had our Pope, our Vatican, and we thought we were predestined to triumph. But as we mature and become less of a church, we must become more rational, closer to reality.

"We must see that each individual has his private life, his individual sense of things. I told the last party executive meeting that a person's preferences of friends, of music and literature, whether to be religious or atheist, has nothing to do with the party. The party can only be concerned with problems of politics and social struggles."

It is a drastic break with the old Communist claim to total faith, total allegiance, a total answer to all life's problems.

"And why not make a comparison with Luther?" Carrillo asked. "Nowadays he wouldn't be burned by the Inquisition. Heretics usually turn out to be right. They are ahead of time, but after all they are right. We want Communists to be heretics. When we become conservatives, we are no longer right."

'Bourgeois' Needs Among Heresies

Among Carrillo's heresies, in the customary Moscow view, are not only the right to independence of national parties but also an insistence on the need for what other Communists call "bourgeosi democracy" and "bourgeois freedoms."

"I couldn't have said these things at a Communist meeting two years ago," he said. "There would have been an uproar of protest. I would have been thrown out."

What had changed? "I was alone then," Carrillo said, "but now we are a growing force. The Italians, the French are coming along, others. The Russians have had to resign themselves to our views. In politics force is respected."

He Hopes U.S. Wises Up

"But," he continued, "it seems that the U.S. is agreeing with the East against the development of Euro-Communism. I hope there will be a more intelligent American policy. I know it isn't easy, but you must try to understand. Of course, these developments will have an impact on the East. In Spain U.S. opposition is favorable to us because people feel the Americans try to establish dependencies.

"Americans should realize that the (Communist) parties in the West don't want to change the strategic balance. It is an element of peace. We don't want Europe under the influence of the Warsaw Pact. We want an autonomous Europe. What we do want is to affect our countries' internal politics without interference.

"We want a type of socialism with universal suf ferage, alternation of government, not control of power for the Communists, but an alliance of forces that in no way would allow a Communist monopoly."

The position has been advanced before. But what can a Communist's pledge to respect alternation of government mean when it is accompanied by a demand for irreversible changes in society?

City Overturned Again

In granting a new liquor license to a restaurant which soon will go into operation in Lincoln, the State Liquor Control Commission termed this city's arbitrary licenses ceiling and the policy reasoning behind it "vague, overboard and without foundation."

The commission's decision on the Grandmother's Skillet application was hardly surprising. It is the third time in the past year that the commission has ignored the council's recommendations of denial on new license applications.

Commenting on the commission's latest ruling, City Councilman Max Denney said, "We ought to throw it out the window and forget it"

Well said

It was unrealistic to think that an arbitrary, inflexible limit which creates artificially high values in existing licenses would be upheld forever, as the city grew and pressure for competition increased.

The council may decide to chuck its indefensible numbers limit out the window and forget it, or the council may want to consider other policy alternatives which would still give it some say about the issuance of new licenses.

And the council should also not be afraid to plow new ground in the area of expanding licensed premises.

A proposal to allow beer gardens at the three public golf courses was recently approved 4-3 by the council but was vetoed by Mayor Boosalis for reasons we think are not entirely valid. The mayor suggested that beer drinking outside the clubhouses was not consistent with the image of wholesome, family recreation. But beer drinking is beer drinking, inside or outside, and since beer is already sold inside the clubhouses, we don't figure the reputation of any of the courses has much to lose.

An ordinance now before the council would permit bar operators to serve in outdoor areas adjacent to their existing licensed premises subject to liquor commission approval.

This would allow beer gardens in Lincoln and some existing licensees reportedly want to open such operations if the ordinance is passed.

The family atmosphere argument shouldn't apply here.

Nor is the temperance argument applicable, unless the council and mayor want to try to reimpose prohibition.

Failing that, they may want to give beer gardens a try. It is a little upbeat for this august community but it probably would be good for business.

Power To Burn

The Bureau of Reclamation is going to establish a system of allocation for the electric power it sells and customers apparently are now trying to determine what their future peak loads will be.

The University of Nebraska at Lincoln is a bureau customer

The University wants to see what its peak demand is. so, it would seem, that it could request a power allotment within which the university plant could function comfortably.

Thus a memo has gone out to UN-L deans and directors:

"During the month of July, we are requesting that every department leave all the lights on during working hours, that all fans and other air handling equipment be kept in operation during all working hours, and that any and all equipment that requires electric power for operation be kept in use so that a complete system load and energy demand check can be made on the entire system.

"As of August 1, 1976, we would respectfully request that all efforts for conservation of electric energy be adhered to and followed up to the best of your ability. We plan to remove many more lights after August 1, 1976, to conserve energy."

To be fair, it should be said that UN-L has saved millions of kilowatt hours over the last three years

But can the order to squander energy be justified?

The university says it is an exercise designed merely to check peak demand, not to try to build a high use figure on which to base an allotment request so that there is a comfortable growth cushion.

It is interesting that spokesmen for both UN-L and the Lincoln Electric System (LES) expressed concern that the Bureau of Reclamation might take measures to cut back on power if they were "tipped off" about the peak load plans now in effect

We're not well versed in the power business, but we can't help wondering whether they have to waste all that power to determine peak demand or, rather, if some educated projection based on partial usage would suffice

It seems incongruous that a power saver should have to turn into a power waster in order to peg a future allotment. The allotment system must have faults if customers are forced to squander energy in order to qualify for what they need.

It is doubly bad in the case of the university, which often is unjustly accused of inflating its budget requests in hopes it will end up with what it needs. That, it appears, is exactly what they are doing with regard to electrical power and they will waste a lot of energy in the process

Message To Meany

WASHINGTON — A Georgia farmer/businessman, who wants very badly to be president, but who has a less than sterling pro-labor record, sent AFL-CIO president George Meany a telegraphed message last week Give me your unqualified support and I won't stand in the way of labor's effort to realize its decades-old dream of unionizing the South

Not a single Washington journalist picked up on the crystal clarity of the telegram, but its import was not lost for a minute on the savvy Meany, who had earlier met with Carter but refused to be photographed with him.

Following the embarrassing chore of explaining Meany's unexpected absence to reporters and photographers after their meeting, Carter ran into Virginia Democratic senatorial hopeful Elmo Zumwalt, former chief of naval operations, who is challenging Virginia's institution, Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Jr. Carter insisted on being photographed with Zumwalt, and said, "We need more people in the Congress like you, and I look forward to working with you.

"I hear you have a lot of support in Mr. Meany's office," the Georgian added.

Carter, as well as anybody, and better than most, knows that the AFL-CIO has no more vote-pulling power in furniture/tobacco producing Virginia on election day than the Communist Party has in Alabama, a fact which is a source of much chagrin to Meany.

By embracing the pro-union Zumwalt, Carter was demonstrating to Meany his own willingness to go out on a limb for the underdog labor movement in the South, in exchange for enthusiastic labor backing nationwide this fall.

Consider the reasons why Carter would not normally have endorsed Zumwalt:

(1) Former Democrat Byrd is to Virginia what Senator Strom Thurmond is to South Carolina a living monument. Highways, bridges, airports, schools and hospitals are named after his father, whom he succeeded in the Senate, and earlier this month, another impressive statue of his father was unveiled in the state capital. And in this case, like father, like son: no Democratic national hopeful has ever considered crossing the junior Byrd, who sides with the Democrats in the Senate on organization matters

(2) Conservative Virginia is by no means a sure bet to be in Carter's column come November, and Carter knows it. The state could just as easily go for Ford or Reagan. Alienating Harry Byrd is only inviting many Virginians to do just that.

(3) Carter, normally ultra-cautious on such matters, had no need to go public with his feelings for Zumwalt. In background and record the two are compatible, and Zumwalt and his backers knew it and understood Carter's problem, they never expected such a glowing endorsement, which Carter insisted on doing in front of photographers after nearby supporters had tried to squelch the flashbulb event. (Indeed, Zumwalt was so overcome with surprise and elation at the Georgian's words that he bubbled over with a "Thank you, Mr. President!" to Carter.)

To some it might have appeared that Carter was caught up in a moment of youthful nostalgia After all, he himself once aspired to be chief of naval operations, and from his autobiography, it is very clear that he fancies himself as a once pretty important cog in the U.S seagoing machine. But Carter is a hard and shrewd man who has something a little more important than the post of chief of naval operations in mind. And all this business of his religious fervor aside, he is not a person given to emotional outbursts.

In fact, his endorsement of Zumwalt was carefully calculated.

Once Carter realized that Meany, the old curmudgeon who acts more like his name than most people look like their dogs, had not fully succumbed to the Carter charm, he decided to send the AFL-CIO executive committee a message by going out on a limb as a pro-union candidate in a decidedly non-union southern state.

It was a clever and subtle move. In fact, the message was lost on just about everybody except the man for whom it was intended.

There's one drawback, though.
It wasn't lost on Harry Byrd.

'ERMA'S DESIRE'
. . . on I-80 near Grand Island . . .
a rusty picker head? . . .

The Farmer had his eye on the road as we journeyed by the rest stop near Grand Island, so he did not have the opportunity to see the prongs of metal jutting skyward It was not until a "bell rang" and I looked back. The angle had changed and I had to seek a new evaluation.

Was this "Erma's Desire"? Indeed it was! How could I have made such a mistake after reading of all the publicity? To a farmer's wife who was caught unaware, it looked for a moment like a picker head tilted skyward, left in the field by a busy farmer, with weeds in the foreground.

"That farmer must have been in a hurry last fall when he finished picking corn. He left the picker head in the field and now it's all rusty."

At the York rest stop, travelers stop to inquire about the history connected with the graveyard nearby. I have not stopped at either of these as we drove by so I do not know if they are labeled. For travelers passing through, it would be helpful if an explanation were also included. I'm certain "Erma's Desire" would mean little to someone from Paducah, Kentucky, who read only the title. In fact, it would be interesting to know how many people who travel through Nebraska see these sculptures and inquire about them.

An explanation of the art would not be in keeping with the view of the art world today. Modern art is whatever the viewer sees. His imagination makes a piece of art meaningful to him. So perhaps it should be allowed to rest where it is. I saw a picker head . . . others saw a graveyard. The next traveler may see a masterpiece.

The combines have been active in some of the wheat fields in our area, although the big push and rush of getting the grain harvested will not get in full swing until mid-week.

Since our wheat did not come up last fall, it is still green. Several other fields are later because of this reason. Because it is a bit later, it escaped the searing winds of several weeks ago and the heads are filling nicely.

I might add there are not enough heads in the field. The wheat is thin in places. But considering all the stresses the crop has endured, it is worth cutting.

Irrigation began early this year because of the dry field conditions. Never have I seen a spring when the corn was so small and the irrigation pumps were running. Fields of irrigated corn represent quite an investment for the farmer. He cannot afford to lose a day of growth if he has the water with which to irrigate it.

The cool weather is appreciated by the farmers who move pipe and those who work in the harvest fields. The rain preceding the spell of lower temperatures helped considerably to carry the milo along for those who are dryland farmers.

One can see the difference in a field of growing plants within a day or two after a rain and respite from searing heat. They seem to be a bit greener, stand up better by nightfall and grow a new leaf or two

June is the month of roses. I do not have the newest AARS winners but I do have one that I especially enjoy. It is "Tropicana." It is a hybrid tea so vivid in color it almost seems to have a fluorescent glow. It has perfectly formed flowers, a delightful fragrance and many blossoms. The intense color stands out like a beacon, unfading until the last petal falls. "Queen Elizabeth" has also been very lovely.

Unfortunately "Mirandy" and "Crimson Glory" were among those lost during the winter. They also are beautiful roses.

The old-fashioned white rose I ordered this spring had a grand total of sixty-four buds on it that opened into big white roses tinged with a bit of pink. I never saw a rose in its first year of growth burst into such a rapture of blossoms.

"Sutter's Gold" has had a grand total of one blossom It prefers to stand and mope. Undoubtedly is not happy where it now grows. In fact it almost gave up as a result of winterkill. Perhaps that is what makes spring so delightful. There is always something to look forward . a new growing season, a new rose.

Anti-Semitism Or Ignorance?

WASHINGTON — General George S Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has done it again. Two years ago, in an address to a Duke University audience, Brown made the absurd statement that the Jews own "the banks in this country, the newspapers," and he suggested that Jewish influence over Congress is too strong.

It was, at the very least, a startling revelation of gross ignorance on the general's part, and it earned him widespread public criticism and a sharp rebuke from President Ford. One would have hoped it would also have earned him an education.

Not so Appearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee last week — Brown is up for another two-year term as chairman — the general said that he still believes Jews exercise "undue" influence on Congress.

Under persistent questioning, Brown ultimately backed away from the adjective "undue," but not until he was virtually led to the trough and made to drink by Senator Sam Nunn (D-Ga.).

It was a performance that should cause the Senate to reject Brown's nomination, even though the Armed Services Committee went ahead and voted 13-2 to recommend a two-year extension of his chairmanship. (Senators Thomas J. McIntyre (D-N.H.) and Robert Taft Jr. (D-Ohio) voted against Brown, and former Democratic presidential contender Henry M Jackson (Wash) reserved judgment.)

A reading of the applicable portions of the transcript of Brown's hearings reveals one of two things, either of which ought to disqualify him for the important post of chairman of the Joint Chiefs.

The first is that Brown may really be a closet anti-Semite. There are a lot of people in this country who harbor anti-Jewish sentiments, and a not inconsiderable number of them are in high places.

Of course, most of them take pains to hide their true feelings for reasons of political expediency and, maybe, guilt. But once in a while some of them get caught with the closet door ajar, and, let's face it, that may be the case with General Brown This is the second time in two years that he has expressed anti-Jewish feelings, and the second time in two years that he has recanted only under pressure.

GENERAL BROWN
. . . second statement in two years . . .

The second possible conclusion is that Brown is not anti-Semitic, rather that he is simply inarticulate, to the point where he cannot, without considerable coaching, grasp the meaning of a common, two-syllable word, in this case, the adjective "undue."

Take your pick, either outcome poses more than sufficient grounds for scouting about for another officer to become chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Abortion, A 'Weapon'

Lincoln, Neb.

I am writing in regard to Senator Roland Luedtke's comments on the Supreme Court's latest abortion rulings. Senator Luedtke was "most abhorred" that the court said a woman may obtain an abortion without her husband's consent. He claimed that a wife could use this as a "tremendous weapon . . . against her husband."

Does Senator Luedtke expect a wife to use this "weapon" by threatening an abortion if her husband won't buy her a new car or a fur coat? I don't believe that any wife is going to go through the trauma of an abortion for frivolous reasons.

For Senator Luedtke to say that a husband will not have a thing to say about an abortion is very misleading. The husband is still free to discuss the situation with his wife and present his arguments, but the final decision must rest with the wife since it is her body that contains the fetus. Until and if the day comes when men can receive fetal transplants and carry a pregnancy to termination, the ultimate decision for abortion must remain with the bearer.

Senator Luedtke should be abhorred that Nebraska's current abortion law gives a husband dictatorial powers over his wife's person. LB286 should be brought into agreement with the Constitution at the first opportunity.

Nostalgia A Fad

Lincoln, Neb.

Now that the big Bicentennial celebration (and sale) are almost over, I would like to reflect back.

Unfortunately, the 200th anniversary of our nation's founding has been promoted like Big Red football. Both have been used as themes to sell and oversell many products of little value and questionable taste.

Many persons have gotten involved with our Bicentennial celebration only because nostalgia has become a popular fad. Only the persons who are really interested in history will still have that interest when America recovers from the big Bicentennial celebration (and sale).

Capital Punishment

Lincoln, Neb.

I strongly disagree with The Star editorial, "Death Penalty Upheld," on July 5.

I happen to be a Christian and I will believe what God has to say over the opinion of men. The Star contends that "capital punishment is as criminal and uncivilized as the behavior which prompted it." Has anyone ever thought about those poor victims who were murdered by these trigger-happy cutthroat citizens? Doesn't their blood cry out for justice for the barbaric crimes committed against them?

It is such liberal theories and doctrines as held by The Star that helped to spawn such an epidemic of crime during the last decade. It is unfortunate that the poor and minorities have to pay with their lives while the rich can often get by with a lighter sentence.

On the other hand, I believe that the Bible teaches that everyone who commits and is guilty of premeditated murder should be executed regardless of race or social position. Perhaps conducting tours of the execution chambers would have some deterrent effect, after all.

Against The Extension

Lincoln, Neb.

As residents of Westridge Road, Gateway Estates, RFD 1, Lincoln, Neb , we are thoroughly against the extension of Coddington south from the Pleasant Hill road to the Denton road We fail to see the purpose behind the logic: that creating a road would aid the public in general — no one has demonstrated the advantage to the public.

The traffic flow on Coddington and Pleasant Hill is minimal. The creation of a new road through valuable farm land would be a waste of public funds; is this for the public benefit or interest especially since the short extension would lead nowhere?

The question which comes to mind is: Who would utilize the newly created road? Obviously Lincolnites; however, most of these people would come from the east and would naturally travel on SW 12th to Denton. There would be few individuals traveling southward on Coddington and those who would could easily head a half mile east and hit SW 12th (a paved highway) or west a quarter mile to an access road south. There are already several other access roads which are through southward past the Denton road. The area is country, farm land, where roads are usually placed one mile apart (not every half mile).

The extension of Coddington south would also place an additional burden on the county. How many additional burdens can the county stand? "Tax dollars are spent on frills." How much would it cost to put in a half-mile road which is not needed? How much would it cost to maintain this road? These are tax dollars and we do not intend for our tax dollars to be spent in such a wasteful manner. Could we ask the board (before making a decision on vacating the property) as a fair county board to: (1) monitor the traffic on Coddington and Pleasant Hill, and (2) investigate the costs.

We of Nebraska do not care to spend money foolishly or to remove the beautiful trees, natural resources and priceless farm land for an unneeded road — not to mention devaluation of the land, noise pollution, danger to children playing, dust pollution and the removal of large trees which are a valuable natural resource and a barrier to cold and high winds.

A situation such as this needs careful thought and scrutiny.

Two Decisions Compared

Raymond, Neb.

Some said freedom of the press is freedom for the press only, which means simply that newspapers may print their opinions no matter how slanted, but that John Q. Public can talk it over with his neighbor only or keep it to himself.

I noticed that the sob sisters of the press were out in full swing when the decision by the Supreme Court concerning capital punishment was announced. Sad tales accompanied by pictures of the hapless criminal gazing through the bars dominated the local news. We were flooded with sympathy for the guilty — the innocent were overlooked, as usual. This was underscored by the fact that another decision by the court to allow abortions for all women, even over the protests of concerned husbands or parents of minors, was given little press coverage with not one well deserved outcry of protest from the reporting staff.

Does the press reflect the feelings of the public? Do we care more for the life of a condemned murderer than for the life of an innocent babe? If so, God help us all.

City Overturned Again

In granting a new liquor license to a restaurant which soon will go into operation in Lincoln, the State Liquor Control Commission termed this city's arbitrary licenses ceiling and the policy reasoning behind it "vague, overboard and without foundation."

The commission's decision on the Grandmother's Skillet application was hardly surprising. It is the third time in the past year that the commission has ignored the council's recommendations of denial on new license applications.

Commenting on the commission's latest ruling, City Councilman Max Denney said, "We ought to throw it out the window and forget it."

Well said.

It was unrealistic to think that an arbitrary, inflexible limit which creates artificially high values in existing licenses would be upheld forever, as the city grew and pressure for competition increased.

The council may decide to chuck its indefensible numbers limit out the window and forget it, or the council may want to consider other policy alternatives which would still give it some say about the issuance of new licenses.

And the council should also not be afraid to plow new ground in the area of expanding licensed premises.

A proposal to allow beer gardens at the three public golf courses was recently approved 4-3 by the council but was vetoed by Mayor Boosalis for reasons we think are not entirely valid. The mayor suggested that beer drinking outside the clubhouses was not consistent with the image of wholesome, family recreation. But beer drinking is beer drinking, inside or outside, and since beer is already sold inside the clubhouses, we don't figure the reputation of any of the courses has much to lose.

An ordinance now before the council would permit bar operators to serve in outdoor areas adjacent to their existing licensed premises subject to liquor commission approval.

This would allow beer gardens in Lincoln and some existing licensees reportedly want to open such operations if the ordinance is passed.

The family atmosphere argument shouldn't apply here.

Nor is the temperance argument applicable, unless the council and mayor want to try to reimpose prohibition.

Failing that, they may want to give beer gardens a try. It is a little upbeat for this august community but it probably would be good for business.

Power To Burn

The Bureau of Reclamation is going to establish a system of allocation for the electric power it sells and customers apparently are now trying to determine what their future peak loads will be.

The University of Nebraska at Lincoln is a bureau customer.

The University wants to see what its peak demand is, so, it would seem, that it could request a power allotment within which the university plant could function comfortably.

Thus a memo has gone out to UN-L deans and directors:

"During the month of July, we are requesting that every department leave all the lights on during working hours, that all fans and other air handling equipment be kept in operation during all working hours, and that any and all equipment that requires electric power for operation be kept in use so that a complete system load and energy demand check can be made on the entire system.

"As of August 1, 1976, we would respectfully request that all efforts for conservation of electric energy be adhered to and followed up to the best of your ability. We plan to remove many more lights after August 1, 1976, to conserve energy."

To be fair, it should be said that UN-L has saved millions of kilowatt hours over the last three years.

But can the order to squander energy be justified?

The university says it is an exercise designed merely to check peak demand, not to try to build a high use figure on which to base an allotment request so that there is a comfortable growth cushion.

It is interesting that spokesmen for both UN-L and the Lincoln Electric System (LES) expressed concern that the Bureau of Reclamation might take measures to cut back on power if they were "tipped off" about the peak load plans now in effect.

We're not well versed in the power business, but we can't help wondering whether they have to waste all that power to determine peak demand or, rather, if some educated projection based on partial usage would suffice.

It seems incongruous that a power saver should have to turn into a power waster in order to peg a future allotment. The allotment system must have faults if customers are forced to squander energy in order to qualify for what they need.

It is doubly bad in the case of the university, which often is unjustly accused of inflating its budget requests in hopes it will end up with what it needs. That, it appears, is exactly what they are doing with regard to electrical power and they will waste a lot of energy in the process.

Message To Meany

WASHINGTON — A Georgia farmer/businessman, who wants very badly to be president, but who has a less than sterling pro-labor record, sent AFL-CIO president George Meany a telegraphed message last week: Give me your unqualified support and I won't stand in the way of labor's effort to realize its decades-old dream of unionizing the South.

Not a single Washington journalist picked up on the crystal clarity of the telegram, but its import was not lost for a minute on the savvy Meany, who had earlier met with Carter but refused to be photographed with him.

Following the embarrassing chore of explaining Meany's unexpected absence to reporters and photographers after their meeting, Carter ran into Virginia Democratic senatorial hopeful Elmo Zumwalt, former chief of naval operations, who is challenging Virginia's institution, Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Jr. Carter insisted on being photographed with Zumwalt, and said, "We need more people in the Congress like you, and I look forward to working with you.

"I hear you have a lot of support in Mr. Meany's office," the Georgian added.

Carter, as well as anybody, and better than most, knows that the AFL-CIO has no more vote-pulling power in furniture/tobacco producing Virginia on election day than the Communist Party has in Alabama, a fact which is a source of much chagrin to Meany.

By embracing the pro-union Zumwalt, Carter was demonstrating to Meany his own willingness to go out on a limb for the underdog labor movement in the South, in exchange for enthusiastic labor backing nationwide this fall.

Consider the reasons why Carter would not normally have endorsed Zumwalt:

(1) Former Democrat Byrd is to Virginia what Senator Strom Thurmond is to South Carolina: a living monument. Highways, bridges, airports, schools and hospitals are named after his father, whom he succeeded in the Senate, and earlier this month, another impressive statue of his father was unveiled in the state capital. And in this case, like father, like son: no Democratic national hopeful has ever considered crossing the junior Byrd, who sides with the Democrats in the Senate on organization matters.

(2) Conservative Virginia is by no means a sure bet to be in Carter's column come November, and Carter knows it. The state could just as easily go for Ford or Reagan. Alienating Harry Byrd is only inviting many Virginians to do just that.

(3) Carter, normally ultra-cautious on such matters, had no need to go public with his feelings for Zumwalt. In background and record the two are compatible, and Zumwalt and his backers knew it and understood Carter's problem; they never expected such a glowing endorsement, which Carter insisted on doing in front of photographers after nearby supporters had tried to squelch the flashbulb event. (Indeed, Zumwalt was so overcome with surprise and elation at the Georgian's words that he bubbled over with a "Thank you, Mr. President!" to Carter.)

To some it might have appeared that Carter was caught up in a moment of youthful nostalgia. After all, he himself once aspired to be chief of naval operations, and from his autobiography, it is very clear that he fancies himself as a once pretty important cog in the U.S. seagoing machine. But Carter is a hard and shrewd man who has something a little more important than the post of chief of naval operations in mind. And all this business of his religious fervor aside, he is not a person given to emotional outbursts.

In fact, his endorsement of Zumwalt was carefully calculated.

Once Carter realized that Meany, the old curmudgeon who acts more like his name than most people look like their dogs, had not fully succumbed to the Carter charm, he decided to send the AFL-CIO executive committee a message by going out on a limb as a pro-union candidate in a decidedly non-union southern state.

It was a clever and subtle move. In fact, the message was lost on just about everybody except the man for whom it was intended.

There's one drawback, though.
It wasn't lost on Harry Byrd.

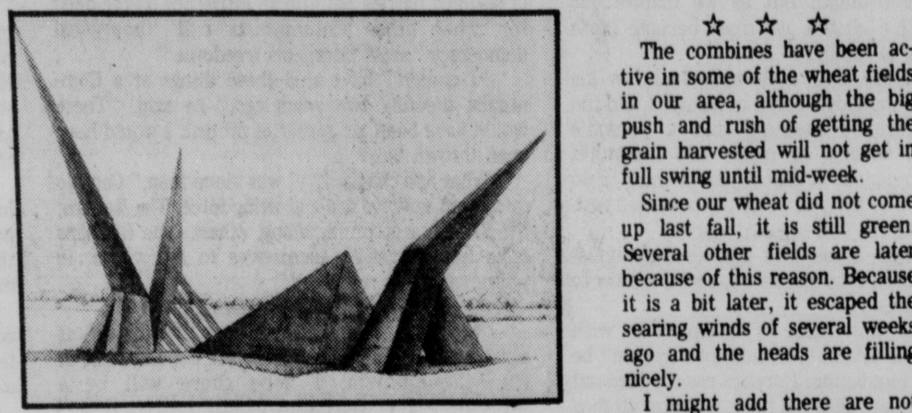
Patchwork Prairie Country

"That farmer must have been in a hurry last fall when he finished picking corn. He left the picker head in the field and now it's all rusty."



'ERMA'S DESIRE'
. . . on I-80 near Grand Island . . .
a rusty picker head? . . .

The Farmer had his eye on the road as we journeyed by the rest stop near Grand Island, so he did not have the opportunity to see the prongs of metal jutting skyward. It was not until a "bell rang" and I looked back. The angle had changed and I had to seek a new evaluation.

Was this "Erma's Desire"? Indeed it was! How could I have made such a mistake after reading of all the publicity? To a farmer's wife who was caught unaware, it looked for a moment like a picker head tilted skyward, left in the field by a busy farmer, with weeds in the foreground.

At the York rest stop, travelers stop to inquire about the history connected with the graveyard nearby. I have not stopped at either of these as we drove by so I do not know if they are labeled. For travelers passing through, it would be helpful if an explanation were also included. I'm certain "Erma's Desire" would mean little to someone from Paducah, Kentucky, who read only the title. In fact, it would be interesting to know how many people who travel through Nebraska see these sculptures and inquire about them.

An explanation of the art would not be in keeping with the view of the art world today. Modern art is whatever the viewer sees. His imagination makes a piece of art meaningful to him. So perhaps it should be allowed to rest where it is. I saw a picker head . . . others saw a graveyard. The next traveler may see a masterpiece.

The combines have been active in some of the wheat fields in our area, although the big push and rush of getting the grain harvested will not get in full swing until mid-week.

Since our wheat did not come up last fall, it is still green. Several other fields are later because of this reason. Because it is a bit later, it escaped the searing winds of several weeks ago and the heads are filling nicely.

I might add there are not enough heads in the field. The wheat is thin in places. But considering all the stresses the crop has endured, it is worth cutting.

Irrigation began early this year because of the dry field conditions. Never have I seen a spring when the corn was so small and the irrigation pumps were running. Fields of irrigated corn represent quite an investment for the farmer. He cannot afford to lose a day of growth if he has the water with which to irrigate it.

The cool weather is appreciated by the farmers who move pipe and those who work in the harvest fields. The rain preceding the spell of lower temperatures helped considerably to carry the milo along for those who are dryland farmers.

One can see the difference in a field of growing plants within a day or two after a rain and respite from searing heat. They seem to be a bit greener, stand up better by nightfall and grow a new leaf or two.

June is the month of roses. I do not have the newest AARS winners but I do have one that I especially enjoy. It is "Tropicana." It is a hybrid tea so vivid in color it almost seems to have a fluorescent glow. It has perfectly formed flowers, a delightful fragrance and many blossoms. The intense color stands out like a beacon, unfading until the last petal falls. "Queen Elizabeth" has also been very lovely.

Unfortunately "Mirandy" and "Crimson Glory" were among those lost during the winter. They also are beautiful roses.

The old-fashioned white rose I ordered this spring had a grand total of sixty-four buds on it that opened into big white roses tinged with a bit of pink. I never saw a rose in its first year of growth burst into such a rapture of blossoms.

"Sutter's Gold" has had a grand total of one blossom. It prefers to stand and mope. Undoubtedly is not happy where it now grows. In fact it almost gave up as a result of winterkill. Perhaps that is what makes spring so delightful. There is always something to look forward . . . a new growing season, a new rose.

Anti-Semitism Or Ignorance?

WASHINGTON — General George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has done it again. Two years ago, in an address to a Duke University audience, Brown made the absurd statement that the Jews own "the banks in this country, the newspapers," and he suggested that Jewish influence over Congress is too strong.

It was, at the very least, a startling revelation of gross ignorance on the general's part, and it earned him widespread public criticism and a sharp rebuke from President Ford. One would have hoped it would also have earned him an education.

Not so. Appearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee last week — Brown is up for another two-year term as chairman — the general said that he still believes Jews exercise "undue" influence on Congress.

Under persistent questioning, Brown ultimately backed away from the adjective "undue," but not until he was virtually led to the trough and made to drink by Senator Sam Nunn (D-Ga.).

☆ ☆ ☆

It was a performance that should cause the Senate to reject Brown's nomination, even though the Armed Services Committee went ahead and voted 13-2 to recommend a two-year extension of his chairmanship. (Senators Thomas J. McIntyre (D-N.H.) and Robert Taft Jr. (D-Ohio) voted against Brown, and former Democratic presidential contender Henry M. Jackson (Wash.) reserved judgment.)

A reading of the applicable portions of the transcript of Brown's hearings reveals one of two things, either of which ought to disqualify him for the important post of chairman of the Joint Chiefs.

The first is that Brown may really be a closet anti-Semite. There are a lot of people in this country who harbor anti-Jewish sentiments, and a not inconsiderable number of them are in high places.

GENERAL BROWN
. . . second statement in two years . . .

Of course, most of them take pains to hide their true feelings for reasons of political expediency and, maybe, guilt. But once in a while some of them get caught with the closet door ajar, and, let's face it, that may be the case with General Brown. This is the second time in two years that he has expressed anti-Jewish feelings, and the second time in two years that he has recanted only under pressure.

☆ ☆ ☆

Two-Pump Station Is Keeping Her Busy

AP

MRS. MICKEY . . . fills 'er up.

Gresham (AP) — An 83-year-old grandmother who pumps gas 15 hours a day says she doesn't want to be like "old people who just sit and wait for the end."

"I'll keep going as long as I can," says Mrs. Sylvia Mickey, who owns a two-pump gas station in this town of 250 residents.

Although 15 hours can mean a long work day, "you have to be around when people need gas," said Mrs. Mickey, whose son, Lester, manages the station.

In deference to her age, she draws the line at patching tires and lifting car hoods. She also takes a one-hour nap each day.

The first car she rode in "went 32 miles an hour, but it only went that fast for a little while." Today's travel is faster, "unless you get behind some old people who drive slow," she said.

Mrs Mickey joined the work force while raising two children in the early 1900s. In the 1920s, she sold magazine and newspaper subscriptions In the 1930s, she was a middleman in the chicken selling business "We had to do that or do without," she said.

When her husband died in 1950, Mrs. Mickey took over their farm. At age 74, she bought the gas station.

Mrs Mickey, who remembers women's first vote, now lives in the midst of another women's movement. "It doesn't hurt them women a bit to work if they aren't raising a family," she said.

Although she does not own a radio and her television receives only one channel, "I have all I need I'm not the kind that wants everything new that comes along," said Mrs Mickey

She began married life in 1914 with only a washboard to clean clothes "It used to take all day to do wash by hand Now days, people just stick clothes into a washer and say they don't have time to keep house," she said

Northern States Beef To Appeal Labor Ruling

By The Associated Press

An attorney says Northern States Beef Inc of Omaha will appeal to the full National Labor Relations Board from an administrative law judge's ruling that the firm violated the NLRB Act in a union case

Kelvin Berens, who represented the company, said the appeal will concern Judge Thomas E Bracken's opinion that the company violated the act in dealing with employes trying to join a union last year.

Among other things, Bracken said, the company aided and supported another union, discharged three men because of union activities, threatened to close the plant if the union won the election and threatened employes with reprisals unless they supported the union backed by the company.

The administrative law judge ordered Northern States Beef to halt such actions and to offer the three employes reinstatement to their former jobs or equivalent jobs with back pay

The three men had been reinstated to their jobs earlier.

District Union No. 271 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America brought the complaint.

Power Group To Apply For Improvement Loans

Holdrege (UPI) — The Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District Wednesday approved applying for small project loans to rehabilitate the Phelps canal system near Holdrege.

District General Manager Dick Durmeyer said the canal system serves 77,000 acres around Holdrege and some of its facilities are nearly 37 years old.

He said the district will ask for $16 million from the Bureau of Reclamation and might need an additional $3 million from other sources

Durmeyer said the project will involve a complete revamping of the canal system, which runs from just south of Lexington to north of Minden. The district serves Gosper, Phelps, Kearney and Adams Counties in Nebraska.

District Judge Grants Restraint In Cattle Case

Hastings (UPI) — Adams County District Judge Fred Irons granted a Juniata cattle feeder a temporary restraining order against Adams County Treasurer C. G. Yost and Sheriff Robert Anderson.

The order prevents the officials from seizing payment of property taxes from the Harrington Land and Cattle Co.

Company representatives told the court they feed cattle for out-of-state cattle owners In 1974, the representatives said, they fed cattle for six non-Nebraska owners

Officials reported the cattle to the county assessor's office, but the animals were taken out of Nebraska and no taxes were paid.

The injunction request stemmed from a distress warrant Yost filed with Anderson to take Harrington's property into custody. Anderson acted on an apparent belief that Harrington was liable for paying the taxes as the agent for out-of-state cattle owners.

Anderson was prepared to seize Harrington's property and sell it to cover some $11,000 in outstanding taxes

Irons granted the temporary injunction on Harrington's claim that selling the company's property would be harmful.

AP

MRS. MICKEY . . . fills 'er up.

Gresham (AP) — An 83-year-old grandmother who pumps gas 15 hours a day says she doesn't want to be like "old people who just sit and wait for the end."

"I'll keep going as long as I can," says Mrs. Sylvia Mickey, who owns a two-pump gas station in this town of 250 residents.

Although 15 hours can mean a long work day, "you have to be around when people need gas," said Mrs. Mickey, whose son, Lester, manages the station.

In deference to her age, she draws the line at patching tires and lifting car hoods. She also takes a one-hour nap each day.

The first car she rode in "went 32 miles an hour, but it only went that fast for a little while." Today's travel is faster, "unless you get behind some old people who drive slow," she said.

Mrs. Mickey joined the work force while raising two children in the early 1900s. In the 1920s, she sold magazine and newspaper subscriptions. In the 1930s, she was a middleman in the chicken selling business. "We had to do that or do without," she said.

When her husband died in 1950, Mrs. Mickey took over their farm. At age 74, she bought the gas station.

Mrs. Mickey, who remembers women's first vote, now lives in the midst of another women's movement. "It doesn't hurt them women a bit to work if they aren't raising a family," she said.

Although she does not own a radio and her television receives only one channel, "I have all I need. I'm not the kind that wants everything new that comes along," said Mrs. Mickey.

She began married life in 1914 with only a washboard to clean clothes. "It used to take all day to do wash by hand. Now days, people just stick clothes into a washer and say they don't have time to keep house," she said.

Northern States Beef To Appeal Labor Ruling

By The Associated Press

An attorney says Northern States Beef Inc. of Omaha will appeal to the full National Labor Relations Board from an administrative law judge's ruling that the firm violated the NLRB Act in a union case.

Kelvin Berens, who represented the company, said the appeal will concern Judge Thomas E. Bracken's opinion that the company violated the act in dealing with employes trying to join a union last year.

Among other things, Bracken said, the company aided and supported another union, discharged three men because of union activities, threatened to close the plant if the union won the election and threatened employes with reprisals unless they supported the union backed by the company.

The administrative law judge ordered Northern States Beef to halt such actions and to offer the three employes reinstatement to their former jobs or equivalent jobs with back pay.

The three men had been reinstated to their jobs earlier.

District Union No. 271 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America brought the complaint.

District Judge Grants Restraint In Cattle Case

Hastings (UPI) — Adams County District Judge Fred Irons granted a Juniata cattle feeder a temporary restraining order against Adams County Treasurer C. G. Yost and Sheriff Robert Anderson.

The order prevents the officials from seizing payment of property taxes from the Harrington Land and Cattle Co.

Company representatives told the court they feed cattle for out-of-state cattle owners. In 1974, the representatives said, they fed cattle for six non-Nebraska owners.

Officials reported the cattle to the county assessor's office, but the animals were taken out of Nebraska and no taxes were paid.

The injunction request stemmed from a distress warrant Yost filed with Anderson to take Harrington's property into custody. Anderson acted on an apparent belief that Harrington was liable for paying the taxes as the agent for out-of-state cattle owners.

Anderson was prepared to seize Harrington's property and sell it to cover some $11,000 in outstanding taxes.

Irons granted the temporary injunction on Harrington's claim that selling the company's property would be harmful.

Power Group To Apply For Improvement Loans

Holdrege (UPI) — The Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District Wednesday approved applying for small project loans to rehabilitate the Phelps canal system near Holdrege.

District General Manager Dick Durmeyer said the canal system serves 77,000 acres around Holdrege and some of its facilities are nearly 37 years old.

He said the district will ask for $16 million from the Bureau of Reclamation and might need an additional $3 million from other sources.

Durmeyer said the project will involve a complete revamping of the canal system, which runs from just south of Lexington to north of Minden. The district serves Gosper, Phelps, Kearney and Adams Counties in Nebraska.

Probe Requested On Hiring Policy

Al Kuper

Omaha (UPI) — A controversy over the hiring of a former City of Lincoln employe has prompted a request for a federal probe into Metropolitan Technical Community College hiring practices.

Steve Hiatt, spokesman for Metro's education association, said Tuesday the association board's request stems from the hiring of Al Kuper of Lincoln.

The spokesman for the instructor organization said letters asking for the probe were sent to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Kuper worked for both former Lincoln Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf, who headed the short-lived Big Green Lottery in Omaha, and present Lincoln mayor Helen Boosalis.

"We've asked them (the federal agencies) if the hiring process is in accord with affirmative action requirements," Hiatt said.

Kuper was a college administrator at McCook prior to moving to Lincoln. He was hired by Metropolitan Tech as a program associate in the continuing education division at $15,000 a year.

Hiatt said 63 persons applied for the job, but Kuper was the only one interviewed. Nick Erganian, former director of continuing education, said he lost his job because he objected to hiring Kuper.

Erganian also said Kuper was hired because Kuper's wife June is secretary to Omaha Sen. Eugene Mahoney, chairman of the Unicameral's Executive Board.

Marm Harris, college president, and H. Rex King, dean, denied the allegations and said Kuper was the most qualified applicant for the job of all those who applied.

Center To Bury 50-Year Capsule

Gibbon (UPI) — The Gibbon-Shelton Senior Center will bury a time capsule, complete with the latest Sears, Roebuck & Co. catalog, Saturday in commemoration of the nation's 200th birthday.

Filled with a complete history of the area, the capsule is now on display at the senior center. It measures five feet tall and one foot in diameter.

Mrs. Eleanor Graves, center coordinator, said the capsule was not buried on the Fourth of July because "we wanted to include happenings and newspapers" from that day

The time capsule will be reopened July 4, 2026.

One-hundred years is really too long," Mrs. Graves said. "It will have more meaning in 50 years because some of our children will still be there."

Another item in the capsule is a history of a "courageous lady named Jane, who was held captive by Indians in the 18th Century," Mrs. Graves said.

Other items include newspaper clippings on Nebraska's 1967 centennial, a local telephone directory and copies of "Heroes Without Medals" and "Traildust to Stardust," compiled histories of Gibbon and the surrounding area.

Firm Seeks Frequency Used By KOIL Radio

Omaha (UPI) — Webster-Baker Broadcasting Co., of Omaha, announced Wednesday it has filed an application with the Federal Communications Commission to operate an AM radio station at the frequency now held by KOIL Radio in Omaha.

However, said Joe Baker, executive vice president, "We're not negotiating for KOIL."

The station has been ordered off the air when its current frequency authorization expires Sept. 2.

Baker said the firm also plans to submit an application with the FCC for authority to operate a radio station in Omaha now known as FEFM-FM, KOIL's affiliate on the FM dial.

Webster-Baker has filed a request with the Omaha Planning Board to build broadcast towers in the 62 and Q area.

Baker said the AM application was filed June 30.

Other Webster-Baker officers include William B. Webster, president and treasurer, and John W. Webster, assistant vice president and secretary.

Hearing On Power Plant At Doniphan Rescheduled

By The Associated Press

The Nebraska Power Review Board Wednesday granted the town of Doniphan a continuance to Aug. 10 on the Great Plains Power Agency's application to build a coal-fired 150 megawatt power plant just northeast of Doniphan.

A public hearing had been scheduled for July 21 on an application to build the facility, which would serve Hastings and Grand Island.

Opponents have pointed to a Nebraska Public Power District study which indicated the proposed site does not have enough water to use for the power plant's cooling needs.

Gary Gustafson, review board spokesman, said the continuance was granted because an attorney representing Doniphan has another hearing set for the same day.

The Hastings and Grand Island city councils Wednesday night voted 11-2 to begin purchasing land for the proposed plant.

Gay Prostitution Fought In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — The vice unit of the Omaha Police Division is going to crack down on activity by male homosexual prostitutes in an area of the city known to be frequented by both male and female gays.

"If you call it crackdown, that what it's going to be," said Lt. Bernard Venditts, head of the vice unit, after five more young males were taken into custody about midnight Tuesday for alleged homosexual activities.

Those arrests brought to 11 the number of males arrested in the past two days in connection with alleged homosexual prostitution.

One of those arrested was an 11-year-old who was charged with pandering after he introduced two undercover officers to two of his 16-year-old friends The two friends were booked on charges of soliciting and lewd conduct, while a fourth juvenile was arrested as he tried to flag down cars and an 18-year-old was arrested for loitering and prowling

Monday night's arrests, which involved males ranging from 16 to 26 in age, involved charges of soliciting, performing lewd and indecent acts and debauching a minor.

All charges are misdemeanors.

"We're going to eliminate the problem if it takes a few days or a few weeks," Venditte said "We're going to continue checking the area (17th and Jackson Sts. and 17th and Mason Sts) until the young people realize they can't come down and do what they're doing.

"I'm sure we can get this under control quickly"

The arrests follow the publication of an article in a local magazine, which said dozens of teenage boys in the city are earning extra cash by performing homosexual acts

Venditte said he was aware of the homosexual activity in the area in question, but disagreed with the magazine's claims as to the extend of the activity and the ages of those involved

However, after Tuesday night's arrests, Venditte said, "I was wrong" about the ages, adding that he was under the impression only adults were involved

Gay Prostitution Fought In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — The vice unit of the Omaha Police Division is going to crack down on activity by male homosexual prostitutes in an area of the city known to be frequented by both male and female gays.

"If you call it crackdown, that what it's going to be," said Lt. Bernard Venditts, head of the vice unit, after five more young males were taken into custody about midnight Tuesday for alleged homosexual activities.

Those arrests brought to 11 the number of males arrested in the past two days in connection with alleged homosexual prostitution.

One of those arrested was an 11-year-old who was charged with pandering after he introduced two undercover officers to two of his 16-year-old friends. The two friends were booked on charges of soliciting and lewd conduct, while a fourth juvenile was arrested as he tried to flag down cars and an 18-year-old was arrested for loitering and prowling.

Monday night's arrests, which involved males ranging from 16 to 26 in age, involved charges of soliciting, performing lewd and indecent acts and debauching a minor.

All charges are misdemeanors.

"We're going to eliminate the problem if it takes a few days or a few weeks," Venditte said. "We're going to continue checking the area (17th and Jackson Sts. and 17th and Mason Sts.) until the young people realize they can't come down and do what they're doing.

"I'm sure we can get this under control quickly."

The arrests follow the publication of an article in a local magazine, which said dozens of teenage boys in the city are earning extra cash by performing homosexual acts.

Venditte said he was aware of the homosexual activity in the area in question, but disagreed with the magazine's claims as to the extend of the activity and the ages of those involved.

However, after Tuesday night's arrests, Venditte said, "I was wrong" about the ages, adding that he was under the impression only adults were involved.

Electric Ripple System Cutting Irrigation Costs

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Farmers who irrigate using electricity are learning new words like ratchet and ripple. The ripple cuts the ratchet. It also cuts cost.

Art Grim, editor of Rural Electric Nebraskan, a magazine published by the Nebraska Rural Electric Association, describes the ratchet system of pricing electricity to rural electric systems as "one of our major cost problems."

"The ratchet is a payment for electricity not used, but for which additional facilities must be built because of high seasonal demands," he said. "These facilities may be idle for most of the year, but they must be paid for — that's the ratchet."

The 32 rural electric systems which are members of the Nebraska Rural Electric Association estimate that the ratchet payments this year will be more than $1.7 million, nearly twice last year's $831,000.

The ripple may be the answer to the ratchet. "A ripple system is an electronic control that puts a pulse or signal into the power line. We can use that signal to stop and start irrigation systems, air conditioners, water heaters and almost any electrical appliance you want to name," said Prof. LaVerne Stetson, an agricultural engineer from the Agricultural Research Service stationed at the University of Nebraska.

The ripple system can be used to shut down irrigation systems when the peak load exceeds a certain point on the power system and restart the systems again when the power demand drops.

The rural electric system ratchet is based on its peak demand. If it can hold down this peak demand it can hold down its ratchet cost for the entire year.

"The ripple system costs around $50,000, but it can save a rural electric system at least $100,000 in a year, so it is well worth the cost," Stetson said.

Farmers who allow a control to be put on their irrigation system can save as much as $1,000 a year for each center pivot system they operate.

"I think the ripple works better than a time clock which isn't responsive to power loads or weather conditions. A system of time clocks has to be reset entirely if there is a power failure," Stetson said.

13 of 32 Trying Methods

Grim surveyed the members of his organization and learned that 13 of the 32 systems are trying some kind of a method to cut the cost of their ratchet payments.

"Some are very simple with farmers simply agreeing not to run their irrigation system on a certain day or during the hottest period of the day. There is less power demand at night so they can do most of their irrigating at night with lower costs," Grim said.

"The average center pivot system uses $2,500 in electricity each year. These farmers can experience tremendous savings on the 3,000 electrically powered pivots and the 16,000 farms with electric powered surface irrigation systems," Grim said.

"We have had more farmers ask for the ripple switches than we have been able to hook up so far. We have about 200 using the system at the present time," Stetson said.

The Southwest Public Power District of Palisade already has decided to insist that any new irrigation well powered by electricity must be hooked into the ripple system.

Wheat Harvesting Delayed, But Moving

Nebraska's wheat harvest continued to move northward Wednesday with some delays due to high humidity in the west and a few light showers in the east.

John Jones, manager of the Farmers Union Cooperative at Greenwood, said, "The crop is better than we expected but not as good as normal. Test weight runs from 50 to 60 pounds with the heavy quality wheat the exception rather than the rule."

Jones said early varieties were hurt by heat but the later varieties looked better.

The daily report of harvest conditions gathered through the State Department of Labor harvest hiring offices shows custom cutters moving out of the lower tier of counties as they wind up the harvest around Holdrege and head north. A town-by-town report follows:

Sidney — Very limited test cutting in eastern and southern Deuel County and southern Cheyenne County. Moisture is still 15% to 17%. With hot, dry weather, general harvesting should begin by the end of the week.

Holdrege — Harvest 75% completed. Custom cutters moving out of the area. Yields from 30 to 50 bushels an acre with test weights from 58 to 60 pounds. Yields have been better than many farmers expected.

McCook — A total of 237 custom harvesters have passed through the port of entry to date. High humidity delayed cutting until noon Wednesday. Estimate 40% of crop harvested with test weights around 60 pounds, protein 10 to 13% and yields 35 to 45 bushels.

Indianola — Harvest delayed until noon by heavy overcast. Harvest 40% completed with moisture at 11.5 to 15%, yields running around 45 bushel with 60 pound test weights.

Oxford — Overcast skies delayed cutting Wednesday. Harvest about 70% completed yields from 20 to 50 bushels and test weight at 58 pounds. Very dry with some moisture tests as low as 8%.

Stratton — Hazy sky, no hail reported. Moisture 12% with yields running 42 to 43 bushels with a 60 pound test weight.

Imperial — A total of 52 machines reported to the office to date. Cutting delayed by high moisture running from 14% to 18%. Yields in areas missed by hail storms running 30 to 40 bushels. Harvest just beginning.

Grant — Harvest just beginning with moisture from 17% to 20. Combine supply adequate, and yields range from 25 to 28 bushels per acre with a 48 to 60 pound test weight.

Ogallala — Just starting harvest. Yields of 28 bushels reported with some very low test weights of 48 pounds reported.

Sidewheeler To Be Brownville Museum

The Capt. Meriwether Lewis, a 260-foot Missouri River sidewheeler, will be drydocked at Brownville to serve as a museum, Rep. Charles Thone said Wednesday. The boat was declared surplus by the Army Corps of Engineers and the title was transferred to the Nebraska Historical Society. This 1957 photo shows the Meriwether Lewis tied up near where it will be permanently drydocked. The steel-hulled boat was specially built in 1932 for Corps dredging operations on the Missouri.

Airport Wants To Expand Terminal

By JOHN SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Municipal Airport may be in for some relief from its growing pains.

That is, if the Nebraska Aeronautics Commission approves a $2.2 million proposal presented Wednesday by authority Executive Director Rolland Harr. The money would be used to construct two new holding areas for passengers on opposite ends of the terminal building, Harr said.

The funds would actually come from the 1978 fiscal budget for the commission, so actual construction wouldn't begin for quite awhile. But, "We've got to apply early to ensure funding," Harr said.

Harr explained that the original terminal was built to permit expansion. Ample room was left at the north and south ends of the main terminal to accomodate any requests from more space.

A request has already come from United Airlines at the south end of the terminal. United keeps four planes on the ground overnight and moves them around for departure using a small tractor tug, Harr said.

This arrangement causes some passenger loading problems, especially if a plane is late, he said, and United is seeking more room and a loading concourse to alleviate the problem.

At the north end of the terminal, Frontier plans to add two flights daily via Topeka to O'Hare in Chicago, and will need space in the future, Harr said.

The money would probably be made available in July 1977 and construction would begin in '78, Harr explained. It might be early 1979 before the facilities would be completed.

"Projected traffic loads definitely dictate some kind of expansion for the future," Harr said.

Report Predicts Taxes To Go Up

By The Associated Press

A report from the legislative fiscal analyst says current tax rates will not adequately fund state government operations.

The report issued Wednesday said:

— Revenues will be as much as $24 million to $37 million below appropriation requirements, obligations and the mandatory tax overlevy for the current year.

— An actual deficit of $10 million to $23 million is shown.

The report indicates an increase in the state sales tax will be needed, with the additional possibility of an increased state income tax.

Peters Is Silent

Tax Commissioner William Peters had no immediate comment on the report that was distributed to members of the Appropriations Committee on Wednesday.

A major contributing factor to the anticipated deficit is the low general fund balance on June 30. The year-end reserve was $10 million below expectations.

With reappropriation from last year's budget of $11.4 million, a technical deficit of $9.6 million was recorded last year, analyst John Rochford said.

The $9.6 million must be made up in additional revenues in the coming year, the report said.

The deficit for the current fiscal year, which began July 1, was calculated on the basis of Revenue Department and Fiscal Analyst office estimates.

The Revenue Department was $13 million more optimistic on net receipts than the legislative staff.

3% Sales Tax Likely

Using Revenue Department estimates and Rochford's calculations of the legal requirements on the State Board of Equalization, it would appear an increase to a 3% state sales tax statewide is mandated at the Board of Equalization's November meeting.

Assistant Tax Commissioner Gary Chunka said the last estimate of the revenues produced by a .5% increases in the sales tax was around $29 million.

Should the more pessimistic projections of the fiscal analyst be used, a sales tax and income tax increase would seem to be required.

Rochford's report also suggested that a special legislative session to raise taxes or reduce expenditures will not be needed.

No Problems Until '77

"In summary, it would appear at this time that the current tax rates cannot be sustained. However, a cursory analysis of cash flow under existing tax rates indicates that no significant problems should arise prior to January or February of 1977.

Rochford noted four areas that could alter the projected deficit:

— An update in the revenue estimates based on more recent economic trends.

— Additional funds through extension and expansion of the federal revenue sharing program.

Adoption of the federal tax reform bill, which would change the state income tax revenues and, possibly, the rates.

— An update of the cash flow projections showing different needs.

The administration of Gov. J. J. Exon was not criticized in the report. On the contrary, Rochford wrote: "the short term cash flow problem was solved through administrative action."

Peters Concerned About Douglas County Valuations

By The Associated Press

Nebraska Tax Commissioner Bill Peters said Wednesday that he would meet with Douglas County officials to determine if they were assessing property correctly for taxation.

Peters said he was concerned by published reports that Douglas County property was being reassessed only once every eight years.

"In my opinion, this is not acceptable," Peters said. "Basically, we are working for an annual update."

However, Peters said the eight-year cycle could be acceptable if it applied only to onsite inspections and values were changed annually by other methods. Peters said there was concern among some Sarpy County property taxpayers that their property, because of a new valuation, would be assessed higher than Douglas County land.

For Sarpy County residents in the Omaha School District, that could mean they would be paying a disproportionate share of the support of the school district.

Peters made the comments at the state Board of Equalization meeting held to set railroad property tax valuations.

The board rejected a proposal which would have given the railroads a $1.2 million tax reduction.

The board asked the Department of Revenue to study the possibility of evaluating the property of each railroad running through the state separately.

If adopted by the board, the proposal could result in more money for local governmental subdivisions along profitable lines and less revenue for subdivisions along failing or less profitable lines.

Nuclear Plant Permit Upheld

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Supreme Court refused to halt construction of a second nuclear power plant at Ft. Calhoun Wednesday.

The court said it couldn't interfere with the state Power Review Board's decision unless it was shown that the action of the board was arbitrary and unreasonable

No such evidence was produced by opponents of the plant, which the Omaha Public Power District plans to build.

A group of people opposing the plant's construction, called the Nebraska Public Power Project, appealed the Power Review Board's decision to the Supreme Court. The board approved the OPPD's application to build the plant last October.

NPPD Will Join

The Nebraska Public Power District will join OPPD in building the 1,150-megawatt plant Estimated cost is $1 billion The Lincoln Electric System had planned to be a 13% owner in Ft Calhoun, but that decision was reversed by the City Council

The citizens claimed the plant shouldn't be built because a nuclear plant would cost more than a coal-fired plant, no need for the plant was established and no reason responsible plan exists for permanent storage of radioactive wastes.

The Supreme Court said the Power Review Board adequately studied those issues.

OPPD showed that without the plant it couldn't meet customers' demands by 1986, the court said. NPPD would be worse off without the plant, the court said, since NPPD couldn't meet demands by 1983

The justices added, "While there may be some basis for a difference of opinion as to whether the proposed facility is the best possible solution to the problem of supplying future demands, there was substantial evidence that a need exists."

The court also dismissed the citizens' contention that a nuclear plant would end up costing more money than a coal-fired plant. The court said OPPD showed that the cost savings "more than offset its higher operation and maintenance costs."

The court also said the problem of storing radioactive wastes is an international problem. The court acknowledged that no permanent solution has been found.

However, the high court pointed out that reprocessing plants are being built and it is possible that a use may be found for the wastes.

Regulatory Agencies

Additionally, the Supreme Court noted that a number of regulatory agencies control the construction and operation of nuclear power plant.

"There is no evidence that any of these agencies consider the storage problem to be of sufficient magnitude to outweigh the benefits to be derived from the use of nuclear power."

The court also dismissed the Nebraska Public Power Project's contention that the board's decision should be overturned because a hearing on OPPD's application wasn't held within a 30-day time limit.

State law doesn't make that time limitation mandatory, the court said, since the purpose of the law is to assure the applicant that a prompt hearing is held.

Court: Magazines, Movies Obscene

Movies and magazines sold by the Pussy Cat Theatre in Omaha and by another Omaha bookstore are "hard-core pornography", the State Supreme Court said Wednesday.

The court upheld the obscenity convictions of the Omaha Theatre Corporation, which runs the Pussy Cat Theatre, and Downtown Books, Inc. both corporations were convicted by Omaha Municipal Court juries of violating the state's obscenity laws.

The Supreme Court said in each case, "If there is any serious literary, artistic, political, or scientific value" in any of the publications or films "we are unable to find it."

The cases against Downtown Books and the Pussy Cat Theatre were brought after Omaha police officers purchased magazines and viewed two films at the stores last year.

The magazines were wrapped in clear cellophane covers so that the covers, which depicted sexual acts, could be seen, the court said.

In one of the Pussy Cat Theatre cases, the court said, "The language is offensive The text is obscene to the point of depravity "

"In every instance the pictures have little or no connection with the text material."

The justices, who said they viewed the two films, said the movies had little, if any, plot.

The court dismissed the defendants' claims that they were protected under the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution.

The court concluded that the films and magazines were without any redeeming social value In fact, the court said in one case, the defendant "has reached new depths of depravity" since a previous case.

If the publications are not hardcore pornography as described by the U.S. Supreme Court, "we are at a loss to know what is," the state court asserted.

Employe's Right To Work For Competitor Is Upheld

The State Supreme Court Wednesday upheld the right of a former Diamond Match Co. employe to work for a competitor despite the fact that he signed a contract promising he would not.

The court said Abraham Bernstein wasn't bound by a restrictive employment agreement he had signed when he left Diamond Matches to work as a salesman for a competitor. Bernstein wasn't bound by the contract because it was a restraint of trade and against public policy, the court said.

Bernstein wasn't given any unusual training, the Supreme Court noted. He had no unusual talents, but was simply a hard worker.

If Bernstein was not employed by a competitor, the court concluded that "some other salesman with presumably equal ability would be."

In another decision handed down Wednesday, the Supreme Court affirmed the Nebraska Public Service Commission's ruling dealing with railroad freight rate increases.

The commission said that the rate would be effective on the date that various railroads had filed their bonds for the appeal of the original rate decision to the Supreme Court.

Nebraska Railroads and Chicago & Northwestern Transportation Co. had appealed the commission's ruling.

The high court also:

—upheld the Holt County District Court's decision in a dispute over who would pay the 1970 taxes on the Town House Inn in O'Neill. The court said Darlene and Donald Denbeck, the sellers, should pay the taxes.

—Upheld the Webster County District Court's decision denying MFA Insurance a subrogation claim against the Nebraska Natural Gas Co. in a suit stemming from a fire at the home of Paul and Grace Jelinek.

—upheld the Gage County District Court's settlement of the estate of George Krifer

Interest Lack, Funding Cancel Stock Exposition

CHICAGO (AP) — Officials at the International Amphitheatre announced that the annual International Livestock Expositio, scheduled for this fall, has been canceled.

Exposition board chairman Patrick L. O'Malley and president Lewis B. Pierce said they were forced to cancel the week-long show because of inadequate funding and declining public interest in the 76-year-old event.

Often considered the World Series of stockbreeders, the exposition has been sponsored in the past by the International Amphitheatre, with the aid and cooperation of many public and private agricultural organizations.

O'Malley and Pierce said they would attempt to raise sufficient funds for a 1977 exposition, but expressed fear that the traditional event may be doomed. In a joint statement, they expressed their thanks for past aid from the International Amphitheatre, Mayor Richard J. Daley and Gov. Daniel Walker.

Life Begins At Forty:

Victim May Be Inviting Assault

By JOANNE FARRIS

Vacation time is here again. Before I review some of the safety precautions people can take to protect their property while they are away.

I want to give some time to a pair of related ideas that middle-aged and older readers may want to chew on a bit.

Is this statement true or false? Victims seek out aggressors just as aggressors seek out victims.

Hard though it may be to accept, policemen tell us that this is a true statement, and it is very significant in terms of crime prevention. When people realize that they can telegraph their expectation of what is going to happen to them by body language, they learn that they can invite or discourage assault by the way they act.

We all know someone who has been mugged or held up, and I daresay each of us knows of an occasion or two when we have thought, "I'm not surprised." Subconsciously we can pick out those among our family and friends who are likely to be victims.

Here's an example of what I mean. Two young women lived in Boston. Each shared an apartment with a friend; they lived in comparable neighborhoods. Their ages and lifestyles were similar, so neither was a more inviting victim that the other in terms of ostentation.

The younger and prettier of these two women lived and worked in Boston for two years without running into any difficulty.

The older woman, 28, was mugged once and lost her purse, and some months later had her car stolen.

Though you may be tempted to say it was just bad luck, if you saw those two women walk down a city street you would know instantly who was the victim.

One walks with a firm, unhurried stride, her head up, obviously alert; she carries her money in a pocket close to her body and has no purse or pocketbook.

The other walks quickly but timidly, her head tucked down as if she were closing herself off from her surroundings. She acts afraid. She clutches her purse in evident concern and makes herself a mark, a potential victim.

While I have used these two women as examples, body language knows no sex. Men and women alike convey their "I'm a victim" or "I'm okay" messages by the ways they act, look, and move.

Does it ever occur to you that we hear too much about crime and see too much of it in fictional form on television? The most recent survey by the U.S. Department of Justice, "Criminal Victimization in the United States (1974)," showed that the over-65 group is victimized by crimes against the person in 4.4 cases out of every thousand persons.

In the 35-49 group the rate is 10.9 cases per thousand, and the 20-24 category (into which one of our young examples fell) the rate is 31.3 cases per thousand. All available statistics indicate that the elderly are the group least vicitmized by crimes against the person of any age group over 12 years.

Perhaps some of our fear of crime, then, becomes self-fulfilling. Because we are afraid, we take unusual precautions to protect ourselves, and the taking of them not only fails to allay our fear of crime but may increase our fear by increasing our sensitivity to the whole problem of crime against persons.

How then can we dispel our fear? Knowing the facts about crimes against the elderly may help somewhat. Realistic appraisal of our ways and means of protecting ourselves and adoption of those which are feasible makes good sense. More on that aspect of the problem in another column.

SeTech Foundation Not Aware Of Offer

The group which may buy the Pershing College at Beatrice from the University of Nebraska Foundation for $60,000 has total assets of only $5,659.

Under a proposal outlined last month, the newly formed Southeast Technical Community College (SeTech) Foundation would purchase the Pershing campus for use by the Se Tech college.

After Gary Carstgens of Beatrice, a SeTech board member, explained the proposal, the board voted to put $150,000 into next year's budget to operate the Pershing campus site.

But the group which is to do the buying, the SeTech Foundation, has never been contacted about the Pershing proposal, according to Robert Klabenes, foundation president and head of the SeTech Milford campus.

The foundation has never discussed the proposal, doesn't have the money to buy the Pershing campus and has "no angel waiting in the wings" with the money, said Dr. Robert Eicher, SeTech president and a foundation director.

But the foundation, currently trying to raise $60,000 primarily for scholarships, is not limited to grating scholarships by its articles of incorporation, Klabenes said.

After the June board meeting, Carstens explained that the foundation could merely act as a vehicle for purchasing Pershing College.

One idea would be for the Foundation to borrow the $60,000 for the Pershing purchase, then have a six or seven year lease agreement with SeTech College. Carstens said. The lease costs would pay off the debt, he said.

Eicher agreed this week that Carstens' proposal is an idea, but an idea that the Foundation has never discussed.

"If the offer (sale of Pershing College) is made, the Foundation would have to meet and make those kinds of decisions," he said.

Missouri Man Held In Hastings

Hastings (UPI) — A Missouri man is being held in Adams County Jail on a charge of fleeing from justice.

County officials said Ray Lefler, 24, Brookfield, Mo., apparently was convicted in a Missouri court of writing a bad check and did not appear in court when he was supposed to.

Adams County Atty. Arthur Toogood said Lefler was apprehended in Adams County and is fighting extradition to Missouri. Lefler has been given a court-appointed attorney.

Second Delegate For Sen. Church Foregoes Trip

A second elected delegate to the Democratic national convention has decided to forego next week's trip to New York City.

Michael Wellman of LaVista, a delegate pledged to support Sen. Frank Church, will be replaced by Boniface McGuire of Omaha, a supporter of Jimmy Carter who sought election last May as an uncommitted delegate.

Church had earlier released all his delegates from any legal commitments to support him.

Earlier, Robert Brennan of Omaha decided not to go to the convention. His replacement is Rowena Moore of Omaha. Both were Church supporters.

Although the changes must be ratified by the other convention delegates, Church state coordinator Don Geis of Lincoln said he anticipates no problem in winning approval for the replacements.

Democrats' Movie Includes Nebraskans

Two Nebraskans were interviewed for a movie which will be shown at the Democratic national convention.

Gwen Searcy of Lincoln and Dorothy Boettner of Fremont were among 12 delegates interviewed last month in Hollywood for the 15-minute film.

Narrated by Ed Asner of the "Mary Tyler Moore Show," the movie will include some party history, show how a person becomes a delegate and what delegates' concerns are.

Former Lincolnite Is Illinois Delegate

Mrs. Derek Singer, the former Ruth Sorensen of Lincoln, is an Illinois delegate to the Democratic national convention.

A Jimmy Carter supporter, Mrs. Singer is the sister of Phil Sorensen, former Nebraska lieutenant governor. She is also the sister of New York lawyer Ted Sorensen, a former counsel to President Kennedy.

COTNER AND O ... median torn up.

Imagine 25th To 70th And No Red Lights

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

By this time next year drivers may be able to travel down O St. from 25th to 70th — without hitting one red light — and without being incredibly lucky.

At least their chances should be better. By that time a new computer system coordinating traffic on some major streets will be in operation.

Lincolnites who have motored recently down O St. will have noticed part of the work on the new system. Some medians are torn up for installation of equipment in the $1 million-plus first phase of the project.

The heart of the system will be in a new building at 7th and Charleston, where the computer will be housed. The computer room will be dominated by a display console and a 12- by 8-foot map.

Lights will glow on the map, showing the color of traffic signals across the city.

Technicnans watching the map hope to see "green bands," representing platoons of cars whizzing through green traffic lights without meeting a red.

"I don't mean you'll never have to stop at a stop light, but the average driver should notice a difference," said Tom Butcher, a city traffic engineer.

Every 15 minutes, relying on information from the 150 sensors to be installed, affecting 55 intersections, in the first phase of the project, the computer will select a programmed pattern of how the traffic lights should be timed in that situation.

Humans will prepare the array of timing patterns from which the computer will choose, according to Butcher. He said there is no limit to the number of patterns that can be prepared.

"Special event patterns" will be created for unusual situations, such as Big Red football games, the State Fair, snowstorms and Christmas shopping days, he said.

Technicians watching the giant glowing map can also push buttons to obtain information on selected intersections around the city, he said.

With this information, technicians can make minor adjustments right at the computer center when disruptions such as auto accidents occur, he said.

Downtown will be exempted from the first phase of the project because its stoplights have been mechanically timed to reduce the stops a driver must make.

The system will cost about $3 million when completed, according to Butcher. Installation of the 252 total sensors is being done in four phases, the last of which is slated for completion in three years.

Butcher views the system as a way of making traffic flow more efficiently in the city without street widenings and construction of new streets, two measures which recently have aroused citizen antipathy.

"It should also help cut down on air pollution, help energy conservation and enhance safety," Butcher said of the computer system.

"It's really a powerful tool."

Here are the streets that will be completed in the first phase of the project:

Cornhusker, 27th to Havelock.
27th, Van Dorn to Cornhusker.
Vine, 27th to 70th.
O St., 25th to 70th.
Capitol Parkway, 21st to 40th.
40th, Pioneers Blvd. to Randolph.
Cotner, Holdrege to 48th.

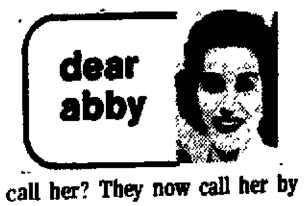
Is Anything Wrong With Being Babied?



DEAR ABBY: I know you'll think I'm crazy, but here goes:

I am a 20-year-old college student who has a very strong desire to be babied.

It all started about six years ago when my older sister began telling me how I used to laugh and thrash happily around while my mother diapered me. Now I derive great pleasure out of just thinking of having a woman powder and diaper me. My desire to experience it again has become so strong that I have actually pinned a diaper on myself and wet myself!

I hope some day to marry a nice woman who will go along with this harmless little game of "playing baby," and agree to powder and diaper me.

I'm normal in every other way and have made the Dean's list, so I'm not crazy. Is there anything wrong with wanting to be a baby again? Please advise me, Abby, and try not to laugh.

WANTS TO BE BABIED IN GA.

DEAR WANTS: I am not laughing. Your strong desire to regress to your baby days and have a woman focus her attention on your genital area could indicate a serious emotional problem requiring expert help — perhaps psychoanalysis.

You can search the world for a woman who will "baby" you and change your diapers, and if you find her, have her see a psychiatrist, too. A marriage of emotional children is a real bummer. Get help.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's parents were divorced after 30 years of a very bad marriage.

My father-in-law was in business for himself and had an affair with his secretary, who was about my age. After the divorce, my father-in-law married this young secretary.

How do we introduce his new wife? Since we're about the same age, I can't very well call her my "stepmother."

Also, what should my children call her? They now call her by her first name.

PANAMA CITY, FLA.

DEAR PAN: I think you should introduce her as "my father-in-law's new wife." And your children should continue to call her by her first name.

DEAR ABBY: I have a great deal of respect for that man who sniffs his food before he eats it. (His lady friend found it a "disgusting" habit.)

I've never known a dog to trust his eyes when it comes to food. He trusts his nose, however, and he's absolutely right.

If human beings would take a good whiff of what they are about to eat, there would be a lot less food consumed and fewer bellyaches.

NOSELY AT MEALTIME

DEAR NOSEY: "Sniffing" food indicates that there are doubts about it edibleness, which is no compliment to the host. So if sniffing is in order, it should be done subtly.

DEAR ABBY: While emptying my husband's pockets before sending his clothes to the dry cleaners, I came across a book of matches on which was written (in his own hand), "Is there any way I can see you tonight?"

Do you think he was unfaithful to me?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Not necessarily. Just hoping to be.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Imagine 25th To 70th And No Red Lights

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

By this time next year drivers may be able to travel down O St. from 25th to 70th — without hitting one red light — and without being incredibly lucky.

At least their chances should be better. By that time a new computer system coordinating traffic on some major streets will be in operation.

Lincolnites who have motored recently down O St. will have noticed part of the work on the new system. Some medians are torn up for installation of equipment in the $1 million-plus first phase of the project.

The heart of the system will be in a new building at 7th and Charleston, where the computer will be housed. The computer room will be dominated by a display console and a 12- by 8-foot map.

Lights will glow on the map, showing the color of traffic signals across the city.

Technicnans watching the map hope to see "green bands," representing platoons of cars whizzing through green traffic lights without meeting a red.

"I don't mean you'll never have to stop at a stop light, but the average driver should notice a difference," said Tom Butcher, a city traffic engineer.

Every 15 minutes, relying on information from the 150 sensors to be installed, affecting 55 intersections, in the first phase of the project, the computer will select a programmed pattern of how the traffic lights should be timed in that situation.

Humans will prepare the array of timing patterns from which the computer will choose, according to Butcher. He said there is no limit to the number of patterns that can be prepared.

"Special event patterns" will be created for unusual situations, such as Big Red football games, the State Fair, snowstorms and Christmas shopping days, he said.

Technicians watching the giant glowing map can also push buttons to obtain information on selected intersections around the city, he said.

With this information, technicians can make minor adjustments right at the computer center when disruptions such as auto accidents occur, he said.

Downtown will be exempted from the first phase of the project because its stoplights have been mechanically timed to reduce the stops a driver must make.

The system will cost about $3 million when completed, according to Butcher. Installation of the 252 total sensors is being done in four phases, the last of which is slated for completion in three years.

Butcher views the system as a way of making traffic flow more efficiently in the city without street widenings and construction of new streets, two measures which recently have aroused citizen antipathy.

"It should also help cut down on air pollution, help energy conservation and enhance safety," Butcher said of the computer system.

"It's really a powerful tool."

Here are the streets that will be completed in the first phase of the project:

Cornhusker, 27th to Havelock.
27th, Van Dorn to Cornhusker.
Vine, 27th to 70th.
O St., 25th to 70th.
Capitol Parkway, 21st to 40th.
40th, Pioneers Blvd. to Randolph.
Cotner, Holdrege to 48th.

Is Anything Wrong With Being Babied?

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I know you'll think I'm crazy, but here goes:

I am a 20-year-old college student who has a very strong desire to be babied.

It all started about six years ago when my older sister began telling me how I used to laugh and thrash happily around while my mother diapered me. Now I derive great pleasure out of just thinking of having a woman powder and diaper me. My desire to experience it again has become so strong that I have actually pinned a diaper on myself and wet myself!

I hope some day to marry a nice woman who will go along with this harmless little game of "playing baby," and agree to powder and diaper me.

I'm normal in every other way and have made the Dean's list, so I'm not crazy. Is there anything wrong with wanting to be a baby again? Please advise me, Abby, and try not to laugh.

WANTS TO BE BABIED IN GA.

DEAR WANTS: I am not laughing. Your strong desire to regress to your baby days and have a woman focus her attention on your genital area could indicate a serious emotional problem requiring expert help — perhaps psychoanalysis.

You can search the world for a woman who will "baby" you and change your diapers, and if you find her, have her see a psychiatrist, too. A marriage of emotional children is a real bummer. Get help.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's parents were divorced after 30 years of a very bad marriage.

My father-in-law was in business for himself and had an affair with his secretary, who was about my age. After the divorce, my father-in-law married this young secretary.

How do we introduce his new wife? Since we're about the same age, I can't very well call her my "stepmother."

Also, what should my children call her? They now call her by her first name.

PANAMA CITY, FLA.

DEAR PAN: I think you should introduce her as "my father-in-law's new wife." And your children should continue to call her by her first name.

DEAR ABBY: I have a great deal of respect for that man who sniffs his food before he eats it. (His lady friend found it a "disgusting" habit.)

I've never known a dog to trust his eyes when it comes to food. He trusts his nose, however, and he's absolutely right.

If human beings would take a good whiff of what they are about to eat, there would be a lot less food consumed and fewer bellyaches.

NOSELY AT MEALTIME

DEAR NOSEY: "Sniffing" food indicates that there are doubts about it edibleness, which is no compliment to the host. So if sniffing is in order, it should be done subtly.

DEAR ABBY: While emptying my husband's pockets before sending his clothes to the dry cleaners, I came across a book of matches on which was written (in his own hand), "Is there any way I can see you tonight?"

Do you think he was unfaithful to me?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Not necessarily. Just hoping to be.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

It's A Late Birthday Present

By PATTY BEUTLER
– Star Staff Writer

Not all of America's birthday presents arrived by the Fourth.

The man who is preparing Switzerland's official bicentennial gift to America is currently in Lincoln to say "Thank you" to all the friends who helped him with his work.

Hans Lang, ethnologist at the University of Zurich and curator of the American department of the university's museum of ethnology, has been commissioned by his government to write the first comprehensive biography of Karl Bodmer, a Swiss artist who sketched Indian tribes on the upper Missouri from 1832-1834.

Bodmer's collection of more than 400 original watercolor drawings, plus the documents and diaries of the German naturalist, Prince Maximilian, who initiated the two-year adventure to the American West, are currently housed in Joslyn Art Museum in Omaha, courtesy of Northern Natural Gas co., which purchased the collection in 1962.

Several years of background research and a year of intensive travel tracing Bodmer's route from St. Louis to Montana have gone into Lang's effort. His wife Christa has accompanied him as secretary, typist, receptionist and assistant researcher.

During Lang's three-month stay in Nebraska last year he relied on the help and friendship of Herb Thomas, head of the art department at the State Historical Society. The Langs are currently guests in the Thomas home.

The author's stops across the state took him to Fontenelle Forest and Bellevue where trading posts once stood. Original resource material from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln library, the State Historical Society and Joslyn Art Museum provided insight into the man Bodmer and his relations with his subjects — Indian tribes still isolated from contact with the white man.

The title of Lang's book — "The Indians Were My Friends — The Life and Work of Karl Bodmer 1809-1893" — gives us a clue to the type of man Bodmer was.

"A very quiet, withdrawn man," says Lang. His unobtrusiveness made it easier for him to have contact with the Indians he painted. Bodmer had many personal friends among the Indians.

Bodmer's hand took the place of the camera's eye. His accurate depictions of little-known Indian tribes document the early history of the American Plains.

Bodmer's work is ethnographically as well as historically precise. "He's absolutely correct to the point that he didn't allow himself to substitute if it would hurt the ethnological part," Lang says.

After two years in this country, Bodmer never returned to America. He settled in Barbizon, France, painting mainly landscapes and animals. It was his early Indian paintings, however, which earned him his fame.

For the biography, Lang has tracked down both known and unknown Bodmer works in Europe and the United States.

"My husband has a sixth sense in all Indian affairs, especially Bodmer," says Mrs. Lang. His "instinct" uncovered existing Bodmer paintings in private collections.

The finished work will contain 150 prints of Bodmer's originals, with 60 in color and some 50 never before published.

French and German translations of the book are underway, while the English version of the 280-page work is expected to be in print by the middle of next year.

With completion of the project just around the corner, Lang is eyeing his next effort — a biography of another Swiss painter, Frederick Kurz, who painted American Indians from 1851-54.

5 NT	Pass	7♦	Pass

Opening lead - jack of diamonds.

Bad bidding sometimes produces good results, as witness this deal from a match between New Zealand and Singapore during the Far East championship.

New Zealand got to seven diamonds on the bidding shown. Obviously this was a poor contract, missing the ace of spades, but whether the fault was North's or South's, or whether both players were at fault, is difficult to assess without knowing the methods the New Zealanders were theoretically using.

It does seem that North should have opened the bidding either with one notrump, showing 16 to 18 points, or one club, showing indeterminate values. The four notrump bid by South was presumably Blackwood, but, if so, North's response was wrong.

West should have led a spade, which East's double called for, but he led a trump instead. Declarer won the jack with the queen, took a successful club finesse, returned to his hand with a trump and repeated the club finesse.

He then cashed the ace of clubs, discarding his singleton spade, and played the king of spades from dummy. East covered the king with the ace — it would not have mattered had he ducked — and that was the end of the line for the defense.

South ruffed the ace of spades, entered dummy with a heart, discarded his heart loser on the queen of spades, and in this way managed to score 2,330 points.

Pistol Packers Destroy Tranquility

Grangeville, Idaho (AP) — Mayor Ralph Bos says the "domestic tranquility" of his town is being destroyed by people who pack pistols on Main St.

But the City Council disagreed and has shot down a proposed ordinance that would have outlawed wearing handguns within city limits for no apparent reason.

The council for the northern Idaho town of 3,700 rejected the proposal after about 30 citizens, some carrying their guns, denounced the measure as a denial of their constitutional rights to bear arms.

It is a customary practice for people in northern Idaho's rugged, timbered panhandle to carry uncased shotguns, rifles and ammunition in their pickup trucks.

City Atty. Dennis Albers had drafted the ordinance after a pistol-packing Claude Graham and his companion confronted Idaho County Prosecutor William Taylor Jr. on March 29 and demanded his immediate resignation. They said they didn't like the way he was interpreting Idaho laws.

Graham told City Council a gun is "just like any other muscle in your body. If you don't exercise it regularly it goes away. I only exercised my inalienable right. I'm glad I did it because I can see that this right is in danger."

LPD Officers To Train Separately

Safety considerations will cause Lincoln policemen in the future to train apart from other officers at the Nebraska Law Enforcement Training Center.

The firearms instruction for Lincoln officers armed with 9mm semiautomatic pistols will be separate from other participants armed with .38 caliber revolvers.

Instructor Herb Chambers says semiautomatic weapons pose a greater threat of jamming and accidental firing than do revolvers.

A revolver requires a strong pull on the trigger to fire. A semiautomatic requires a much lighter pull and is then automatically set to fire a second shot, which can easily be discharged accidentally.

Lincoln Police Chief George Hansen has announced that the six-shot police revolver will be phased out over the next three years in favor of a 14-shot semiautomatic weapon that he says has more safety features.

Chambers, an official referee for the National Rifle Association, says only 2% of all police departments use semiautomatics. Departments have returned to using the revolver because it's "a much more reliable gun for day-in, day-out police use," he said.

Hansen said Chambers "doesn't have to worry about training our men" at the Grand Island center. Because, Hansen said, center instructors "don't go far enough in what they teach." Lincoln officers receive seven weeks of additional training in Lincoln.

Scotts Bluff County Sheriff Adds CB Link

Gering (AP) — The communications room of the Scotts Bluff County Sheriff's Dept. has another link with the surrounding area — the citizens band (CB) radio.

"It's gonna be a lot of extra eyes and ears for us," said Sgt. Jim Lawson about the 23-channel CB base station transmitter and receiver on which the sheriff's office started monitoring the national emergency channel June 17.

With the public's increased usage of CB radios — particularly mobile units — Lawson said the department decided to experiment to determine CB's usefulness in providing reports of accidents, fires and other emergencies.

Sheriff David Schleve and three deputies have CBs in their patrol cars. The State Patrol and Scottsbluff Police Dept. also monitor citizen's band radio.

The sheriff's office so far has received a few contacts on the CB channel, latest addition to the sheriff's communications system. It also has two public service radio systems covering a 120-mile radius.

Lawson and other communications officers monitor eight other radio channels in addition to handling six telephone lines and Mitchell fire and police calls.

The sheriff's office received more than 71,000 mobile contacts last year, 2,000 of which involved the dispatching of personnel.

Complementing radio and phone systems is a teletype terminal, one of five in the Panhandle. Lawson said it is linked with state and national teletype systems that provide access to vast amounts of information and enable rapid responses for purposes such as checking on suspected stolen vehicles or persons wanted by authorities.

These include the Nebraska and National Law Enforcement Teletype Systems, the National Crime Information Center computer, Nebraska Crime Information Service computer and the Omaha-Douglas County computer.

Lawson said more than 38,000 messages were received over the terminal during 1975 and more than 12,000 messages were sent.

Bishop Elections For Eight States Set For Lincoln

By United Press International

United Methodist delegates from eight states will meet in Lincoln July 12 to 15 to elect four new bishops.

The quadrennial meeting of the states was held four years ago in Houston, Tex.

The new bishops will replace Nebraska Bishop Don W. Holter, Bishop Eugene M. Frank of Little Rock, Ark., Bishop O. Eugene Slater of San Antonio, Tex., and Bishop Paul V. Galloway of Houston, Tex. Galloway came out of retirement to serve the Houston area when Bishop Kenneth W. Copeland, formerly of Nebraska, died in 1973.

Dr. Kenneth W. Hicks, pastor of Trinity United Methodist Church in Grand Island, is Nebraska's nominee.

Should Hicks be elected, he would be the first Nebraskan so honored. However, he would not be permitted to serve in Nebraska.

The conference will be held at Pershing Municipal Auditorium.

State To Appeal Check Ruling

By United Press International

Assistant Atty. Gen. Patrick O'Brien said that state will appeal a recent U.S. District Court decision which could halt State Patrol troopers from making randon vehicle stops for driver's license and registration checks.

O'Brien said the state will take U.S. District Judge Albert Schatz's ruling to the Eighth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

Schatz recently granted a habeas corpus request from Gary Holmberg, 24, of Boulder, Colo., who was arrested in November 1973 after he was stopped for a randon license and registration check.

Illegal drugs were found in his car and he was convicted of possessing marijuana, amphetamines and cocaine. He is serving a one-year prison sentence.

Schatz agreed with Holmberg's contentions that his constitutional rights against unlawful search and seizure had been violated. When the trooper apprehended Holmberg, he was using a Nebraska statute permitting randon stopping or motorists.

Holmberg's appeal to the Nebraska Supreme Court was unsuccessful and he lost on a split vote.

Dog Is Hare Raiser

Omaha (AP) — A dog that played mother to an abandoned kitten last year now is raising two newborn rabbits.

"I can only hope nobody drops off a baby elephant," said Mrs. Patricia Seaton of Omaha, who owns Babette, a 10-year-old poodle.

Babette received the latest "litter" after another dog chased away a mother rabbit near the Seaton home.

Three of the litter died, but two others are "fat as butterballs" and follow Babette everywhere, Mrs. Seaton said.

Last year, Babette cared for a kitten that had been abandoned when its mother apparently was frightened by dogs.

Soybean Drying Method Shows Greater Efficiency

WOOSTER, Ohio (AP) — A new method for drying soybeans, with applications for other grains, has resulted in greater energy efficiency and fewer lost beans

Dr. M. A. Sabbah, research associate at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, found that by periodically reversing the air flow in an experimental batch bin dryer he was able to achieve more uniform drying throughout the bin.

Conventional methods of drying leaves beans closest to the air source overdried while those in the interior of the bin are still too wet at the end of the drying process.

Sabbah, an agricultural engineer on leave from the University of Alexandria in Egypt, found the best time interval for reversing the air flow was every three hours. He used Beeson variety soybeans for his testing and said his findings on optimum conditions might vary according to the bean variety and moisture content.

His new drying method was reviewed recently at the American Association of Agricultural Engineers annual meeting at the University of Nebraska.

LPD Officers To Train Separately

Safety considerations will cause Lincoln policemen in the future to train apart from other officers at the Nebraska Law Enforcement Training Center.

The firearms instruction for Lincoln officers armed with 9mm semiautomatic pistols will be separate from other participants armed with .38 caliber revolvers.

Instructor Herb Chambers says semiautomatic weapons pose a greater threat of jamming and accidental firing than do revolvers.

A revolver requires a strong pull on the trigger to fire. A semiautomatic requires a much lighter pull and is then automatically set to fire a second shot, which can easily be discharged accidentally.

Lincoln Police Chief George Hansen has announced that the six-shot police revolver will be phased out over the next three years in favor of a 14-shot semiautomatic weapon that he says has more safety features.

Chambers, an official referee for the National Rifle Association, says only 2% of all police departments use semiautomatics. Departments have returned to using the revolver because it's "a much more reliable gun for day-in, day-out police use," he said.

Hansen said Chambers "doesn't have to worry about training our men" at the Grand Island center. Because, Hansen said, center instructors "don't go far enough in what they teach." Lincoln officers receive seven weeks of additional training in Lincoln.

Scotts Bluff County Sheriff Adds CB Link

"It's gonna be a lot of extra eyes and ears for us," said Sgt. Jim Lawson about the 23-channel CB base station transmitter and receiver on which the sheriff's office started monitoring the national emergency channel June 17.

With the public's increased usage of CB radios — particularly mobile units — Lawson said the department decided to experiment to determine CB's usefulness in providing reports of accidents, fires and other emergencies.

Scotts Bluff County Sheriff Adds CB Link

Gering (AP) — The communications room of the Scotts Bluff County Sheriff's Dept. has another link with the surrounding area — the citizens band (CB) radio.

"It's gonna be a lot of extra eyes and ears for us," said Sgt. Jim Lawson about the 23-channel CB base station transmitter and receiver on which the sheriff's office started monitoring the national emergency channel June 17.

Sheriff David Schleve and three deputies have CBs in their patrol cars. The State Patrol and Scottsbluff Police Dept also monitor citizen's band radio.

The sheriff's office so far has received a few contacts on the CB channel, latest addition to the sheriff's communications system. It also has two public service radio systems covering a 120-mile radius.

Lawson and other communications officers monitor eight other radio channels in addition to handling six telephone lines and Mitchell fire and police calls

The sheriff's office received more than 71,000 mobile contacts last year, 2,000 of which involved the dispatching of personnel.

Complementing radio and phone systems is a teletype terminal, one of five in the Panhandle. Lawson said it is linked with state and national teletype systems that provide access to vast amounts of information and enable rapid responses for purposes such as checking on suspected stolen vehicles or persons wanted by authorities.

These include the Nebraska and National Law Enforcement Teletype Systems, the National Crime Information Center computer, Nebraska Crime Information Service computer and the Omaha-Douglas County computer.

Lawson said more than 38,000 messages were received over the terminal during 1975 and more than 12,000 messages were sent.

Bishop Elections For Eight States Set For Lincoln

By United Press International

United Methodist delegates from eight states will meet in Lincoln July 12 to 15 to elect four new bishops.

The quadrennial meeting of the states was held four years ago in Houston, Tex.

The new bishops will replace Nebraska Bishop Don W. Holter, Bishop Eugene M. Frank of Little Rock, Ark., Bishop O. Eugene Slater of San Antonio, Tex., and Bishop Paul V. Galloway of Houston, Tex. Galloway came out of retirement to serve the Houston area when Bishop Kenneth W. Copeland, formerly of Nebraska, died in 1973.

Dr. Kenneth W. Hicks, pastor of Trinity United Methodist Church in Grand Island, is Nebraska's nominee.

Should Hicks be elected, he would be the first Nebraskan so honored. However, he would not be permitted to serve in Nebraska.

The conference will be held at Pershing Municipal Auditorium.

State To Appeal Check Ruling

By United Press International

Assistant Atty. Gen. Patrick O'Brien said that state will appeal a recent U.S. District Court decision which could halt State Patrol troopers from making randon vehicle stops for driver's license and registration checks.

O'Brien said the state will take U.S. District Judge Albert Schatz's ruling to the Eighth U S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

Schatz recently granted a habeas corpus request from Gary Holmberg, 24, of Boulder, Colo., who was arrested in November 1973 after he was stopped for a randon license and registration check.

Illegal drugs were found in his car and he was convicted of possessing marijuana, amphetamines and cocaine. He is serving a one-year prison sentence.

Schatz agreed with Holmberg's contentions that his constitutional rights against unlawful search and seizure had been violated. When the trooper apprehended Holmberg, he was using a Nebraska statute permitting randon stopping or motorists.

Holmberg's appeal to the Nebraska Supreme Court was unsuccessful and he lost on a split vote.

Dog Is Hare Raiser

Omaha (AP) — A dog that played mother to an abandoned kitten last year now is raising two newborn rabbits.

"I can only hope nobody drops off a baby elephant," said Mrs. Patricia Seaton of Omaha, who owns Babette, a 10-year-old poodle

Babette received the latest "litter" after another dog chased away a mother rabbit near the Seaton home.

Three of the litter died, but two others are "fat as butterballs" and follow Babette everywhere, Mrs Seaton said.

Last year, Babette cared for a kitten that had been abandoned when its mother apparently was frightened by dogs

Soybean Drying Method Shows Greater Efficiency

WOOSTER, Ohio (AP) — A new method for drying soybeans, with applications for other grains, has resulted in greater energy efficiency and fewer lost beans

Dr. M. A Sabbah, research associate at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, found that by periodically reversing the air flow in an experimental batch bin dryer he was able to achieve more uniform drying throughout the bin.

Conventional methods of drying leaves beans closest to the air source overdried while those in the interior of the bin are still too wet at the end of the drying process

Sabbah, an agricultural engineer on leave from the University of Alexandria in Egypt, found the best time interval for reversing the air flow was every three hours. He used Beeson variety soybeans for his testing and said his findings on optimum conditions might vary according to the bean variety and moisture content.

His new drying method was reviewed recently at the American Association of Agricultural Engineers annual meeting at the University of Nebraska.

LPD Officers To Train Separately

Safety considerations will cause Lincoln policemen in the future to train apart from other officers at the Nebraska Law Enforcement Training Center.

The firearms instruction for Lincoln officers armed with 9mm semiautomatic pistols will be separate from other participants armed with .38 caliber revolvers.

Instructor Herb Chambers says semiautomatic weapons pose a greater threat of jamming and accidental firing than do revolvers.

A revolver requires a strong pull on the trigger to fire. A semiautomatic requires a much lighter pull and is then automatically set to fire a second shot, which can easily be discharged accidentally.

Lincoln Police Chief George Hansen has announced that the six-shot police revolver will be phased out over the next three years in favor of a 14-shot semiautomatic weapon that he says has more safety features.

Chambers, an official referee for the National Rifle Association, says only 2% of all police departments use semiautomatics. Departments have returned to using the revolver because it's "a much more reliable gun for day-in, day-out police use," he said.

Hansen said Chambers "doesn't have to worry about training our men" at the Grand Island center. Because, Hansen said, center instructors "don't go far enough in what they teach." Lincoln officers receive seven weeks of additional training in Lincoln.

Scotts Bluff County Sheriff Adds CB Link

Gering (AP) — The communications room of the Scotts Bluff County Sheriff's Dept. has another link with the surrounding area — the citizens band (CB) radio.

"It's gonna be a lot of extra eyes and ears for us," said Sgt. Jim Lawson about the 23-channel CB base station transmitter and receiver on which the sheriff's office started monitoring the national emergency channel June 17.

With the public's increased usage of CB radios — particularly mobile units — Lawson said the department decided to experiment to determine CB's usefulness in providing reports of accidents, fires and other emergencies.

Sheriff David Schleve and three deputies have CBs in their patrol cars. The State Patrol and Scottsbluff Police Dept. also monitor citizen's band radio.

The sheriff's office so far has received a few contacts on the CB channel, latest addition to the sheriff's communications system. It also has two public service radio systems covering a 120-mile radius.

Lawson and other communications officers monitor eight other radio channels in addition to handling six telephone lines and Mitchell fire and police calls.

The sheriff's office received more than 71,000 mobile contacts last year, 2,000 of which involved the dispatching of personnel.

Complementing radio and phone systems is a teletype terminal, one of five in the Panhandle. Lawson said it is linked with state and national teletype systems that provide access to vast amounts of information and enable rapid responses for purposes such as checking on suspected stolen vehicles or persons wanted by authorities.

These include the Nebraska and National Law Enforcement Teletype Systems, the National Crime Information Center computer, Nebraska Crime Information Service computer and the Omaha-Douglas County computer.

Lawson said more than 38,000 messages were received over the terminal during 1975 and more than 12,000 messages were sent.

Bishop Elections For Eight States Set For Lincoln

By United Press International

United Methodist delegates from eight states will meet in Lincoln July 12 to 15 to elect four new bishops.

The quadrennial meeting of the states was held four years ago in Houston, Tex.

The new bishops will replace Nebraska Bishop Don W. Holter, Bishop Eugene M. Frank of Little Rock, Ark., Bishop O. Eugene Slater of San Antonio, Tex., and Bishop Paul V. Galloway of Houston, Tex. Galloway came out of retirement to serve the Houston area when Bishop Kenneth W. Copeland, formerly of Nebraska, died in 1973.

Dr. Kenneth W. Hicks, pastor of Trinity United Methodist Church in Grand Island, is Nebraska's nominee.

Should Hicks be elected, he would be the first Nebraskan so honored. However, he would not be permitted to serve in Nebraska.

The conference will be held at Pershing Municipal Auditorium.

State To Appeal Check Ruling

By United Press International

Assistant Atty. Gen. Patrick O'Brien said that state will appeal a recent U.S. District Court decision which could halt State Patrol troopers from making randon vehicle stops for driver's license and registration checks.

O'Brien said the state will take U.S. District Judge Albert Schatz's ruling to the Eighth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

Schatz recently granted a habeas corpus request from Gary Holmberg, 24, of Boulder, Colo., who was arrested in November 1973 after he was stopped for a randon license and registration check.

Illegal drugs were found in his car and he was convicted of possessing marijuana, amphetamines and cocaine. He is serving a one-year prison sentence.

Schatz agreed with Holmberg's contentions that his constitutional rights against unlawful search and seizure had been violated. When the trooper apprehended Holmberg, he was using a Nebraska statute permitting randon stopping or motorists.

Holmberg's appeal to the Nebraska Supreme Court was unsuccessful and he lost on a split vote.

Union Strike Slows Rec Unit Completion

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

A joint city-school recreation facility, in the planning for several years, will be ready for activity about Oct. 1 on the grounds of Irving Junior High, 22nd and Van Dorn.

Work on the project, begun earlier this year, was ahead of schedule until the recent ironworkers strike, according to Rudy Bauer, director of operations and maintenance for the Lincoln Public Schools

Now, Bauer said, it appears the building will be about a month late, due to additional problems between union and non-union labor. The non-union electrical workers have until July 11 to complete their work so union workers can begin the 12th, he added

Roof joists in the main gymnasium, hardwood floors and other finishing touches remain to be completed throughout the $1.1 million complex When finished, the school and the city will share two connecting gyms (700 capacity seating), two locker rooms, showers and toilet areas and wrestling and weight rooms in the school portion

The city portion, on the far west end, will house two craft rooms, a kitchen, pottery kilns, storage room, game room and lounge. Completion of the proposed Irvingdale Park, to the west of the complex, will include tennis courts, a regulation football field, softball diamond, and basketball and volleyball courts as funds become available

The school's share of the costs will be about $860,000. The Lincoln Schools Athletic Building Corp is financing the project and the city and school will pay them on a lease-purchase agreement until about 1978, school officials said.

Work on projects at Lincoln High School also has been delayed, Bauer added, but not because of union problems

"There's just not enough laborers" to handle the construction of a media center, weight rooms and locker rooms at the building, he added.

In addition, an elevator is being installed in the 60-year-old building and air conditioning is being "roughed in" for the entire structure.

Most of the roof and all of the windows in the building are being replaced and the entire project is slated for an Oct. 1 completion

Remodeling in other schools is being handled by staff, Bauer said, and only parts of one project — the creation of three new classrooms from two old conference rooms at Zeman School — will be done by outside contractors.

130% Jump Reported In Housing Construction

While some sectors of Nebraska's economy hold at steady levels, reports show housing construction is growing rapidly

The Nebraska Department of Economic Development has reported a 130% increase in the issuance of housing permits, according to data collected for the first three months of this year and last.

The department's report showed that 1,873 housing permits were issued during the first quarter of this year, more than twice as many than in that period in 1975 Most of this increase came in apartment housing permits, showing a 500% increase

Data also showed Lancaster County housing construction increased faster than Douglas County In addition, mobile home shipments increased 104 4% over 1975.

This housing boom is reflected partically in a 114% increase over 1975 in the amount of mortgage lending by federally insured Savings and Loan Institutions in Nebraska

Although construction has surged over the last year, there have been only slight dollar volume improvements in it, as well as agriculture, manufacturing and government, from January to February, according to the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln

When finished, the school and the city will share two connecting gyms (700 capacity seating), two locker rooms, showers and toilet areas and wrestling and weight rooms in the school portion.

The city portion, on the far west end, will house two craft rooms, a kitchen, pottery kilns, storage room, game room and lounge. Completion of the proposed Irvingdale Park, to the west of the complex, will include tennis courts, a regulation football field, softball diamond, and basketball and volleyball courts as funds become available.

The school's share of the costs will be about $860,000. The Lincoln Schools Athletic Building Corp. is financing the project and the city and school will pay them on a lease-purchase agreement until about 1978, school officials said.

Work on projects at Lincoln High School also has been delayed, Bauer added, but not because of union problems.

"There's just not enough laborers" to handle the construction of a media center, weight rooms and locker rooms at the building, he added.

In addition, an elevator is being installed in the 60-year-old building and air conditioning is being "roughed in" for the entire structure.

Most of the roof and all of the windows in the building are being replaced and the entire project is slated for an Oct. 1 completion.

Remodeling in other schools is being handled by staff, Bauer said, and only parts of one project — the creation of three new classrooms from two old conference rooms at Zeman School — will be done by outside contractors.

130% Jump Reported In Housing Construction

While some sectors of Nebraska's economy hold at steady levels, reports show housing construction is growing rapidly.

The Nebraska Department of Economic Development has reported a 130% increase in the issuance of housing permits, according to data collected for the first three months of this year and last.

The department's report showed that 1,873 housing permits were issued during the first quarter of this year, more than twice as many than in that period in 1975. Most of this increase came in apartment housing permits, showing a 500% increase.

Data also showed Lancaster County housing construction increased faster than Douglas County. In addition, mobile home shipments increased 104.4% over 1975.

This housing boom is reflected partically in a 114% increase over 1975 in the amount of mortgage lending by federally insured Savings and Loan Institutions in Nebraska.

Although construction has surged over the last year, there have been only slight dollar volume improvements in it, as well as agriculture, manufacturing and government, from January to February, according to the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

San Francisco — "The camera is absolutely fool proof," said the salesman. "It's set at f.8 which gives you all the depth you need. Just look through the finder. If the light is green, shoot."

That worked pretty well until I saw another camera in Japan. "This one litto bettah," said the Japanese salesman. "When two litto neederls come so, you take photograph. Automatic. Ah, so."

Well it took a few operations to make those two little needies come together, so. In fact, it took 16 moves to make it fully automatic. You had to load in film. And turn it off automatic to make the film move.

There was a tricky way to find out if the film really was moving. I often forgot that. The camera didn't give a hoot. It went right on registering light and distance. Giving a reassuring "click" when I hit the button.

Alas, when I opened the back to retrieve those clicked moments, the film sat there. Still curled in the original fetal position.

Everything was automatic when I had my first camera. It was automatic because there was only one thing you could do: Point it and shoot.

It was a box Brownie. It was a square box covered with black paper that had a tendency to peel off. We stuck it back on with flour-and-water paste and went on taking pictures.

There was one shutter speed. We didn't worry about light readings for there was nothing to read it with. Mr. Eastman made only one opening in the box — the "O" in front.

When you pressed the lever at the side — "hold still now" — the cover of the "O" opened briefly and closed again: "Click-click."

☆ ☆ ☆

There was a small view finder. It was about the size of a penny postage stamp. You didn't look through it. You looked down into it — it was a kind of periscope reflector. The camera was held waist high.

The object stood 10 feet in front of you, grinning self-consciously. He appeared in the view finder in miniature.

"Hold still!" you said. Click-click.

"Did you get it?" he said.

☆ ☆ ☆

The camera with the two needles. I got it home and the needles refused to move. You can't run back to Tokyo for a refresher course. So I took it to a camera store.

The man said: "You don't have the battery switch on. The needles are activated by the battery. Switch on when you want to operate the camera. Switch off when you're through."

☆ ☆ ☆

That worked fine. Except I forgot to switch off. The battery went dead, you can't call a garage to come out with booster cables for that.

So I bought a new battery. And I did everything just right. Except — I forgot to take the lens cap off. So it was a good thing I didn't turn out to be a bridge builder. Forget the cables on a bridge and you've had it.

Brett To Start All-Star Game At Third Base

'He's Best Ballplayer In The League'

©The New York Times

By DAVE ANDERSON

New York — From the loudspeakers in centerfield, rock music thumped through Yankee Stadium as George Brett threw lefthanded off the mound. Brett ordinarily throws righthanded, as all third basemen do. But in this moment before the Kansas City Royals were about to take infield practice, George Brett, his blondish hair spread out below his tipped-back cap, was throwing lefthanded off the mound for the fun of it. He also was smiling, as all .350 hitters do.

"He's the best ballplayer in the league," his manager, Whitey Herzog, was saying in the dugout "He's just a good kid, just great. You don't have to manage him, just let him play."

And let him hit. Only 23 years old. George Brett is threatening to dethrone Rod Carew as the American League batting champion

"When I look at the averages," Brett was saying now at his locker, "Carew is the first guy I look at."

That's understandable. Rod Carew has won five American League batting titles, including the last four in succession. But the Minnesota Twins first baseman has been batting about .320, about 25 points below Brett's average.

"I look at Hal McRae too," he said of his teammate. "And at Mike Hargrove and Ron LeFlore for his speed alone."

But all the other hitters are looking at George Brett; he's even looking at himself. In his emergence as one of baseball's new stars for the American League West leaders, his boyish face has been on the covers of Sports Illustrated, The Sporting News and Baseball Digest.

"I subscribe to Sports Illustrated," he said. "That was wierd, getting the magazine in the mail and seeing myself on the cover."

Brett is like that. He appears to be almost in awe of himself as a candidate for the league's Most Valuable Player award.

"I'm finding out how tough it is to hit 350," he was saying now. "You go 1 for 3, your average goes down. But if I can keep it at .350 or .340, maybe I'll have a chance to win the batting title. That would be fun."

Perhaps the fun of baseball sours as some players age. But it never has for Pete Rose, and it exists for such enthusiastic youngsters as Mark Fidrych, the rookie right-hander of the Detroit Tigers, and George Brett.

"When they turned that rock music up during infield practice," Brett was saying, "that turned me on."

What turned him on to aspiring to be a major leaguer was his older brother Ken, a left-handed pitcher now with the Chicago White Sox. Ken was 17 years old when he signed with the Boston Red Sox for a reported $85,000 bonus. At the time George was 13.

"My brother had money in his pocket, a brand new car and he was going to the Florida instructional league in the winter," the Royals third baseman said. "All that appealed to me "

The Red Sox also had signed another Brett brother, Jack, a third baseman, but when the Royals drafted George in 1971 in the second round, the Red Sox had ignored him in the first round.

"That was the summer the Red Sox were down on me," Ken says. "Maybe that was the reason. But when I was with the Pirates last year and the year before, I kept telling Joe Brown (the Pirates general manager) to try to get George in a deal, that George was going to be super. I think they tried to trade Richie Hebner for George but the Royals wouldn't do it. My father knew all along that George was going to be super. Even when George was about 10 years old in Hermosa Beach, Calif., my father was telling people George would be the best ballplayer of all of us."

Ken Brett is also distinguished as the first picher to bench the designated hitter in a meaningful American League game since the D.H. was invented. He was in the batting order Tuesday night when the White Sox lost, 4-0, in Boston.

Before the White Sox acquired Ken from the Yankees in a trade for Carlos May, he pitched against George in a spring training game

"George hit a homer off me, he must have hit a fast ball 430 feet," Ken recalled. "He was laughing and jumping going around the bases and when he got to third base, I shook his hand and patted him on the back. But in the Yankee dugout, Billy Martin and the other players were booing me. When the inning was over, the dugout was empty. They had vacated the dugout in my honor."

Because of their age difference, they never were on the same team growing up. And when George signed with the Royals, he was given some brotherly advice by Ken.

"I told him to always play hard, to be aggressive," Ken said. "Not to pout, not to throw his helmet. And to take care of himself so he can swing the bat "

George Brett has not ignored his brother's advice.

Lynn Tops Final Balloting

NEW YORK (AP) — Kansas City third baseman George Brett, the American League's leading hitter, and Boston outfielder Fred Lynn, the league's Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year last year, are among the eight starters named Wednesday to the AL team for the All-Star Game.

Brett and Lynn will be joined in the starting lineup by catcher Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees, first baseman Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins, second baseman Bobby Grich of the Baltimore Orioles, shortstop Toby Harrah of the Texas Rangers and outfielders Ron LeFlore and Rusty Staub, both of the Detroit Tigers.

The top players at each position were announced Wednesday by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn after a record 8,370,145 fans participated in the balloting for the seventh straight year. The nationally televised 47th All-Star Game will be played Tuesday night at Philadelphia.

Brett, hitting .354 through games of Tuesday, was an easy winner at third base, polling 1,873,481 votes to 1,315,602 for runner-up Don Money of Milwaukee. This will be Brett's first appearance in the mid-season game.

Lynn, the Red Sox centerfielder who is hitting .313, led all AL voters with 2,953,664 ballots.

LeFlore, the Tigers' centerfielder who had a 30-game hitting streak earlier in the season—the longest string in the major leagues this year—and currently is hitting .334, was second in the outfield balloting with 1,911,335 votes.

He was followed by Staub with 1,573,703 votes Staub, a five-time National League All-Star selection before being traded to Detroit after the 1975 season, is hitting .310. Mickey Rivers of New York finished fourth among the outfielders with 1,432,412 votes and Amos Otis of Kansas City was fifth with 1,431,688.

The closest race for a starting berth was among the catchers, where Munson, a .322 hitter, edged Carlton Fisk of Boston, 2,284,577 to 2,218,875.

At first base, Carew, a five-time AL batting champion now hitting .320, polled 1,770,998 votes to 1,403,557 for second-place finisher Carl Yastrzemski of Boston.

Grich, who has the lowest batting average among the starters at .282, had an even easier time getting the starting job at second base, receiving 2,043,904 votes to 1,582,156 for runner-up Willie Randolph of New York, a rookie.

The balloting at shortstop was much closer, with Harrah, a .289 hitter, beating Mark Belanger of Baltimore, 1,481,346 to 1,233,755

Carew and Munson are the AL's only starters who have been elected All-Star-starters in the past. Carew is starting for the 10th time and Munson is an elected starter for the second year in a row.

Boston's Darrell Johnson, manager of the AL team, will name his reserves Friday. Johnson previously picked a nine-man pitching staff of Mark Fidrych of Detroit, Catfish Hunter and Sparky Lyle of New York, Rollie Fingers of Oakland, Dave LaRoche of Cleveland, Luis Tiant of Boston, Rich Gossage of Chicago, Bill Travers of Milwaukee and Frank Tanana of California.

The National League starters will be named Thursday and their reserves Friday

Taiwan Dispute Incurs Division

MONTREAL (AP) — The International Olympic Committee is likely to be divided over the issue of going on with the Montreal Games in light of the Taiwan dispute, the Associated Press learned Wednesday.

IOC members said most of the 70 strong committee are expected to disagree with Count Jean deBeaumont, a former vice-president, who wants the Games canceled or moved elsewhere if Taiwanese athletes are not given free and unqualified entry into Canada.

There was no sign of a settlement of the dispute between the Canadian federal government and the IOC. Canada said the Taiwanese will not be allowed in unless they undertake not to compete in the Olympics under the name of the Republic of China.

The IOC has scheduled to meet next week, before the opening of the Games July 17.

Few members of the IOC have arrived thus far. Lord Killanin, the president, is waiting to consult his nine-man executive board before making any new approach to the Canadian government.

But IOC members in Montreal indicated they will not go along with deBeaumont's views, although they strongly condemn the Canadian attitude as an attack on fundamental Olympic principles.

They argued that:

—It is too late to move the Olympics elsewhere.

—If the Games were cancelled it would permanently harm the ideals of the Olympic movement.

Vacation Expenses

The American vacation season is well underway at this time of year so it comes as no surprise to many of us weary travelers that the rising cost of gasoline is rapidly making gas the major expense for many vacations.

Traveling about also makes one aware that the Lincoln area gas prices are somewhat higher than those of the near east and west. For instance, gas in Des Moines and Denver is anywhere from three to seven cents a gallon cheaper than in Lincoln. Some places even stretch to a 10-cent difference when looking at high cost regular as compared to lowest costs in other regions.

But no matter the prices, gas is still high these days and it's going to go higher. A one-tank vacation is sometimes necessary for those looking to economize on campouts. A trip to the Rockies is worth a cool $60 with good gas mileage for the average eight-cylinder auto. Throw in meals, lodging or campground fees and the economy vacation, even with a tent or trailer can't be done to the mountain regions for less than $100-150.

Since more Americans are out seeing the country this year, with all the Bicentennial festivities in progress, fuel economy is going to suffer. Recreational vehicle industry surveys have shown people are willing to pay more for gas as long as it is available. They won't slow down just for a few extra dollars.

But the cost of gas has put a crimp in the family vacation budget. We're finding more people staying closer to home and more small camper vans and autos making the family fun trips. As if groceries, meals or motel bills used to be bad enough . . .

Odds-N-Ends

The folks at Winchester-Western have announced the availability this fall of a new non-toxic steel shot load in both 2¾ and 3-inch 12-guage shells for waterfowling. The Super-X Steel Shot load is geared to meet federal guidelines in the phasing out of lead shot in waterfowl hunting due to losses of waterfowl eating expended toxic lead shot in past years.

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission will be using Nebraska Education Television to pass along hunter safety training to a portion of the 15,000 young Nebraskans who will be in need of certification before this year's hunting season get into full swing. This month's "Outdoor Nebraska" shows will feature three films that serve as audio-visual aids for hunter safety instructions, according to the commission.

Colorado's two-year-old nongame wildlife stamp sales, initiated to permit nonhunters, bird watchers, backpackers, campers and nature photographers to purchase a $5 stamp to help support nongame wildlife programs, has been a relative failure. It turns out the hunters and fishermen have bought nearly 83 per cent of all the "only" 2,000 stamps sold since 1974. Makes one wonder what wildlife would do without the hunter and fishermen.

Sumner, Cowley, Harper and Sedgwick Counties in Kansas discovered some of the ill effects of careless aerial crop spraying earlier this year after an invasion of army cutworms prompted massive spraying calls. An estimated two billion fish were wiped out in 250 to 500 ponds, streams and lakes. Some 20 head of cattle died, family pets succumbed and untold damage was done to wildlife in the four-county area. Man's efforts to beat nature and poor practices in doing so cost Kansas plenty.

Dynamo Kiev, the Soviet National Soccer Team, goes for a cruise Monday on the world's longest, tallest and fastest roller coaster, The Screamin' Eagle. The 27-man team was taking time off from playing the St. Louis Soccer Stars to visit Six Flags Over Mid-America in St. Louis. The Russians will travel to Montreal to play in the Summer Olympics.

Three Tie For Lead In British Tourney

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Norio Suzuki, a Japanese who hasn't played outside his home country before, was the surprise joint leader as the opening day of the 105th British Open ended in heat and controversy Wednesday.

Bracketed with Suzuki at 69—three under par for the 7,001-yard par-72 Royal Birkdale course—were Severiano Ballesteros, a 19-year-old Spaniard on the brink of his military service, and Christy O'Connor, an Irishman who plays Ryder Cup for Britain

Together they held at bay a strong United States contingent that included Jack Nicklaus, Hubert Green, Tom Weiskopf, Tommy Kite, Hale Irwin and Tom Watson, the reigning British champion

Of the Americans, only Kite, from Houston, got within pitching distance of the leaders. He turned in a two-under-par 70, just one stroke behind the leading trio, and the next American to follow him was Bill Brask, a dark horse from Annapolis, Md , who has been concentrating on the European circuit. Brask finished at 71.

On a day with temperatures in the mid-80's, wilting greens and fairways were parched in the country's longest drought for 100 years and tempers started to heat up as well.

So scorched and dry was the course that midway through the day the rough near the first green caught fire, holding up play for 40 minutes while firemen put the blaze out. Nearby spectator stands were hastily emptied.

Significantly, the three leaders shot their 69's early in the day. With a record opening day crowd of 17,600 sweltering in the sun, the later starters found the heat playing tricks with the bounce and run of the ball and tempers started to rise with the temperature.

Christy O'Connor
Three-Under 69

Nicklaus, the 9-2 favorite, had for him an insignificant round of 74, two over par, and afterwards complained about the greens.

His complaint was echoed by Weiskopf, who went round in 73 and said flatly "You lose all confidence to putt, because you don't know what's going to happen "

Nicklaus said the greens could have done with more watering "Each green was a different pace and you couldn't tell what the ball was going to do," he said. "I thought I putted pretty well but when the ball caught a bit of dry stuff it would run past or off "

"I don't want to make out I'm criticising," echoed Weiskopf, "but I hope that when they get weather like this again—and I know it's unusual—they will be able to profit by their experience.

"It seems there is a lack of knowledge here on how to deal with greens in the present conditions. In other countries where the temperatures are as high or higher and where they have humidity, the greens are superb. This country seems to have been caught out by the heat—you can't sleep, it's hard to keep cool—no ice—you're just not equipped.

"It was most frustrating to play "

O'Connor started his round like a fireball—four birdies in the first nine and only 11 putts. He turned in 30—four under par—and would have been a fairway's length away from everyone else but for a disastrous eight he took on the long parfive 13th, when he got under a bush, hit an air shot, bunkered himself and missed a putt

Suzuki's round, in contrast, started quietly as he turned one over par in 35.

Then coming home he chipped into the cup from 45 feet, sank a 35-footer and got a 4-iron to within three feet of the pin in three successive holes to give him his 69.

And Ballesteros, driving like a well-oiled machine, finished with a blast out of a bunker on the 18th to within four feet of the pin for a birdie four.

"If I play like this, I have a chance," said Ballasteros afterwards. But, he added, "If the wind blows tomorrow, perhaps I will make 80. I play the ball high and I want more days like this "

Jack Newton, the Australian who lost the playoff in last year's Open to Tom Watson, trailed par for most of the round, then suddenly broke through with four birdies on the last four holes to draw level with Kite at 70, one stroke behind the leaders. With them was Brian Barnes, the Scot whose best Open showing to date was fifth in 1972.

Among the higher U S scorers were. Hubert Green and Johnny Miller with 72s, Hale Irwin and Alan Tapie with 74s and Arnold Palmer with a 75.

Doane Chooses Glenn

Crete — Former Lincolnite Joe Glenn has been named head football coach at Doane College filling in the vacancy left by the resignation of five-year coach Ray Best.

Glenn, a 27-year-old Lincoln Pius X graduate, will leave his current position as varsity backfield coach and head freshman football coach at Northern Arizona in Flagstaff. In 1974, he had the same coaching duties at the University of South Dakota under head coach Joe Salem.

Glenn earned B.S and M.A. degrees at South Dakota and lettered in football there three times. In high school he played under coach Vince Aldrich and was chosen quarterback on the South Shrine team in 1967.

Doane athletic director Bob Erickson said, "We feel that Doane is fortunate to get a coach with Joe's background in the North Central and Big Sky level of competition. His recruiting experience, plus his familiarity with Lincoln and Nebraska, will be definite assets."

Glenn, the first non-Doane graduate since 1954 to coach Doane, said, "It will definitely be a challenge to maintain the winning tradition of Doane College football, and I'm looking foward to it."

NBA Teams Aligned

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The National Basketball Association's competition committee has recommended putting the San Antonio Spurs in the Central Division with Houston, New Orleans, Atlanta, Washington and Cleveland, a newspaper reported Wednesday.

The San Antonio Light said it learned suggestions on how to fit four former American Basketball Association teams into the NBA schedule were made to the NBA Board of Governors at a meeting in Chicago on June 25.

Committee members also recommended that the New York Nets would be placed in the Atlantic Division with Boston, Buffalo, Philadelphia and the New York Knicks, the Light said, while the other two former ABA teams, Denver and Indiana, would be placed in the Midwest Division with Milwaukee, Detroit, Kansas City and Chicago.

Basketball Merger Hits Several Snags

New York — The consolidation of the American Basketball Association into the National Basketball Association has hit several snags.

Oral agreements and promises made in meetings last month in Hyannis, Mass., that led to the admission of the New York Nets, Denver Nuggets, San Antonio Spurs and Indiana Pacers into the NBA have not been fulfilled. The NBA has called its advisory committee, the group that spurred the merger, to a meeting on July 19 in New York to deal with the problems.

The meeting will come four days after the four ABA teams are supposed to have paid $1-million of a $3.2-million entrance fee to the NBA.

One NBA owner said "the issues are sticky enough to call the whole damn thing off. They are reneging all over the place."

Simon Gourdine, the deputy commissioner of the NBA, who has been trying to tie the agreement into a legal pact, said, "serious problems have cropped up in the implementation of the expansion. They must be solved before we can go forward," he said. "We are guardly optimistic the ABA will recognize that it is in its best interest to resolve the issues quickly."

One major unresolved issue involves the New York Knicks and Lonnie Shelton, their No. 1 draft choice. The Knicks had planned a news conference Wednesday to announce the signing of Shelton, but it was postponed because the legal clearance the Knicks has been promised has not been received.

To get the Knicks to approve the accommodation, Roy Boe, the president of the Nets, and Carl Scheer, the president of the Denver Nuggets, had promised to deliver the rights to the 6-foot-8-inch Shelton. The Knicks had the veto power to upset the merger by refusing to allow the Nets into their territory.

The Utah Rockies, formerly the Spirits of St. Louis, claim they have a contract with Shelton. He in turn is suing Ozzie Silna, the Rockies' owner, claiming he was coerced into signing the contract. The four ABA owners had promised to resolve the dispute with Silna.

"We have an understanding with the ABA and the NBA that we have the clear rights to Shelton," said Mike Burke, president of the Knicks and a member of the NBA advisory board. "It was promised to us orally by Boe and Scheer and we're still waiting for conformation in writing. All they have to do is sign their names to a few lines of a legal document they promised."

Apparently, the Philadelphia 76ers and Detroit Pistons are awaiting for similiar clearances The 76ers want to sign Caldwell Jones and the Pistons M.L. Carr.

Shelton played most of last season at Oregon State, but Carr, Jones and Don Chaney, who claims to be a free agent, all played for St. Louis.

"The entire situation is in the hands of the four teams taken into the NBA, said Silna. "My position was that I had an agreement for them to buy me out. One of the procedures was that I would be able to sell my ballplayers, including Shelton."

The St. Louis and Kentucky players were tagged for more than $3 million and are to be dispersed in a speciald raft. Shelton, Jones Carr and Chaney were not placed on that list and Silna is upset.

"It is my legal position that I can call off the entire agreement I made with the ABA to buy me out," said Silna. "I wouldn't like to do that, but I could be pushed into doing it."

Brett To Start All-Star Game At Third Base

'He's Best Ballplayer In The League'

©The New York Times

By DAVE ANDERSON

New York — From the loudspeakers in centerfield, rock music thumped through Yankee Stadium as George Brett threw lefthanded off the mound. Brett ordinarily throws righthanded, as all third basemen do. But in this moment before the Kansas City Royals were about to take infield practice, George Brett, his blondish hair spread out below his tipped-back cap, was throwing lefthanded off the mound for the fun of it. He also was smiling, as all .350 hitters do.

"He's the best ballplayer in the league," his manager, Whitey Herzog, was saying in the dugout. "He's just a good kid, just great. You don't have to manage him, just let him play."

And let him hit. Only 23 years old. George Brett is threatening to dethrone Rod Carew as the American League batting champion.

"When I look at the averages," Brett was saying now at his locker, "Carew is the first guy I look at."

That's understandable. Rod Carew has won five American League batting titles, including the last four in succession. But the Minnesota Twins first baseman has been batting about .320, about 25 points below Brett's average.

"I look at Hal McRae too," he said of his teammate. "And at Mike Hargrove and Ron LeFlore for his speed alone."

But all the other hitters are looking at George Brett; he's even looking at himself. In his emergence as one of baseball's new stars for the American League West leaders, his boyish face has been on the covers of Sports Illustrated, The Sporting News and Baseball Digest.

"I subscribe to Sports Illustrated," he said. "That was wierd, getting the magazine in the mail and seeing myself on the cover."

Brett is like that. He appears to be almost in awe of himself as a candidate for the league's Most Valuable Player award.

"I'm finding out how tough it is to hit .350," he was saying now. "You go 1 for 3, your average goes down. But if I can keep it at .350 or .340, maybe I'll have a chance to win the batting title. That would be fun."

Perhaps the fun of baseball sours as some players age. But it never has for Pete Rose, and it exists for such enthusiastic youngsters as Mark Fidrych, the rookie right-hander of the Detroit Tigers, and George Brett.

"When they turned that rock music up during infield practice," Brett was saying, "that turned me on."

What turned him on to aspiring to be a major leaguer was his older brother Ken, a lefthanded pitcher now with the Chicago White Sox. Ken was 17 years old when he signed with the Boston Red Sox for a reported $85,000 bonus. At the time George was 13.

"My brother had money in his pocket, a brand new car and he was going to the Florida instructional league in the winter," the Royals third baseman said. "All that appealed to me."

The Red Sox also had signed another Brett brother, Jack, a third baseman, but when the Royals drafted George in 1971 in the second round, the Red Sox had ignored him in the first round.

"That was the summer the Red Sox were down on me," Ken says. "Maybe that was the reason. But when I was with the Pirates last year and the year before, I kept telling Joe Brown (the Pirates general manager) to try to get George in a deal, that George was going to be super. I think they tried to trade Richie Hebner for George but the Royals wouldn't do it. My father knew all along that George was going to be super. Even when George was about 10 years old in Hermosa Beach, Calif., my father was telling people George would be the best ballplayer of all of us."

Ken Brett is also distinguished as the first picher to bench the designated hitter in a meaningful American League game since the D.H. was invented. He was in the batting order Tuesday night when the White Sox lost, 4-0, in Boston.

Before the White Sox acquired Ken from the Yankees in a trade for Carlos May, he pitched against George in a spring training game.

"George hit a homer off me, he must have hit a fast ball 430 feet," Ken recalled. "He was laughing and jumping going around the bases and when he got to third base, I shook his hand and patted him on the back. But in the Yankee dugout, Billy Martin and the other players were booing me. When the inning was over, the dugout was empty. They had vacated the dugout in my honor."

Because of their age difference, they never were on the same team growing up. And when George signed with the Royals, he was given some brotherly advice by Ken.

"I told him to always play hard, to be aggressive," Ken said. "Not to pout, not to throw his helmet. And to take care of himself so he can swing the bat."

George Brett has not ignored his brother's advice.

Lynn Tops Final Balloting

NEW YORK (AP) — Kansas City third baseman George Brett, the American League's leading hitter, and Boston outfielder Fred Lynn, the league's Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year last year, are among the eight starters named Wednesday to the AL team for the All-Star Game.

Brett and Lynn will be joined in the starting lineup by catcher Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees, first baseman Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins, second baseman Bobby Grich of the Baltimore Orioles, shortstop Toby Harrah of the Texas Rangers and outfielders Ron LeFlore and Rusty Staub, both of the Detroit Tigers.

The top players at each position were announced Wednesday by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn after a record 8,370,145 fans participated in the balloting for the seventh straight year. The nationally televised 47th All-Star Game will be played Tuesday night at Philadelphia.

Brett, hitting .354 through games of Tuesday, was an easy winner at third base, polling 1,873,481 votes to 1,315,602 for runner-up Don Money of Milwaukee. This will be Brett's first appearance in the mid-season game.

Lynn, the Red Sox centerfielder who is hitting .313, led all AL voters with 2,953,664 ballots.

LeFlore, the Tigers' centerfielder who had a 30-game hitting streak earlier in the season—the longest string in the major leagues this year—and currently is hitting .334, was second in the outfield balloting with 1,911,335 votes.

He was followed by Staub with 1,573,703 votes. Staub, a five-time National League All-Star selection before being traded to Detroit after the 1975 season, is hitting .310. Mickey Rivers of New York finished fourth among the outfielders with 1,432,412 votes and Amos Otis of Kansas City was fifth with 1,431,688.

The closest race for a starting berth was among the catchers, where Munson, a .322 hitter, edged Carlton Fisk of Boston, 2,284,577 to 2,218,875.

At first base, Carew, a five-time AL batting champion now hitting .320, polled 1,770,998 votes to 1,403,557 for second-place finisher Carl Yastrzemski of Boston.

Grich, who has the lowest batting average among the starters at .282, had an even easier time getting the starting job at second base, receiving 2,043,904 votes to 1,582,156 for runner-up Willie Randolph of New York, a rookie.

The balloting at shortstop was much closer, with Harrah, a .289 hitter, beating Mark Belanger of Baltimore, 1,481,346 to 1,233,755.

Carew and Munson are the AL's only starters who have been elected All-Star-starters in the past. Carew is starting for the 10th time and Munson is an elected starter for the second year in a row.

Boston's Darrell Johnson, manager of the AL team, will name his reserves Friday. Johnson previously picked a nine-man pitching staff of Mark Fidrych of Detroit, Catfish Hunter and Sparky Lyle of New York, Rollie Fingers of Oakland, Dave LaRoche of Cleveland, Luis Tiant of Boston, Rich Gossage of Chicago, Bill Travers of Milwaukee and Frank Tanana of California.

The National League starters will be named Thursday and their reserves Friday.

Taiwan Dispute Incurs Division

MONTREAL (AP) — The International Olympic Committee is likely to be divided over the issue of going on with the Montreal Games in light of the Taiwan dispute, the Associated Press learned Wednesday.

IOC members said most of the 70 strong committee are expected to disagree with Count Jean deBeaumont, a former vice-president, who wants the Games canceled or moved elsewhere if Taiwanese athletes are not given free and unqualified entry into Canada.

There was no sign of a settlement of the dispute between the Canadian federal government and the IOC. Canada said the Taiwanese will not be allowed in unless they undertake not to compete in the Olympics under the name of the Republic of China.

The IOC has scheduled to meet next week, before the opening of the Games July 17.

Few members of the IOC have arrived thus far. Lord Killanin, the president, is waiting to consult his nine-man executive board before making any new approach to the Canadian government.

But IOC members in Montreal indicated they will not go along with deBeaumont's views, although they strongly condemn the Canadian attitude as an attack on fundamental Olympic principles.

They argued that:

—It is too late to move the Olympics elsewhere.

—If the Games were cancelled it would permanently harm the ideals of the Olympic movement.

Vacation Expenses

The American vacation season is well underway at this time of year so it comes as no surprise to many of us weary travelers that the rising cost of gasoline is rapidly making gas the major expense for many vacations.

Traveling about also makes one aware that the Lincoln area gas prices are somewhat higher than those of the near east and west. For instance, gas in Des Moines and Denver is anywhere from three to seven cents a gallon cheaper than in Lincoln. Some places even stretch to a 10-cent difference when looking at high cost regular as compared to lowest costs in other regions.

But no matter the prices, gas is still high these days and it's going to go higher. A one-tank vacation is sometimes necessary for those looking to economize on campouts. A trip to the Rockies is worth a cool $60 with good gas mileage for the average eight-cylinder auto. Throw in meals, lodging or campground fees and the economy vacation, even with a tent or trailer can't be done to the mountain regions for less than $100-150.

Since more Americans are out seeing the country this year, with all the Bicentennial festivities in progress, fuel economy is going to suffer. Recreational vehicle industry surveys have shown people are willing to pay more for gas as long as it is available. They won't slow down just for a few extra dollars.

But the cost of gas has put a crimp in the family vacation budget. We're finding more people staying closer to home and more small camper vans and autos making the family fun trips. As if groceries, meals or motel bills used to be bad enough . . .

Odds-N-Ends

The folks at Winchester-Western have announced the availability this fall of a new non-toxic steel shot load in both 2¾ and 3-inch 12-guage shells for waterfowling. The Super-X Steel Shot load is geared to meet federal guidelines in the phasing out of lead shot in waterfowl hunting due to losses of waterfowl eating expended toxic lead shot in past years.

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission will be using Nebraska Education Television to pass along hunter safety training to a portion of the 15,000 young Nebraskans who will be in need of certification before this year's hunting season get into full swing. This month's "Outdoor Nebraska" shows will feature three films that serve as audio-visual aids for hunter safety instructions, according to the commission.

Colorado's two-year-old nongame wildlife stamp sales, initiated to permit nonhunters, bird watchers, backpackers, campers and nature photgraphers to purchase a $5 stamp to help support nongame wildlife programs, has been a relative failure. It turns out the hunters and fishermen have bought nearly 63 per cent of all the "only" 2,069 stamps sold since 1974. Makes one wonder what wildlife would do without the hunter and fishermen.

Sumner, Cowley, Harper and Sedgwick Counties in Kansas discovered some of the ill effects of careless aerial crop spraying earlier this year after an invasion of army cutworms prompted massive spraying calls. An estimated two billion fish were wiped out in 250 to 500 ponds, streams and lakes. Some 20 head of cattle died, family pets succumbed and untold damage was done to wildlife in the four-county area. Man's efforts to beat nature and poor practices in doing so cost Kansas plenty.

Three Tie For Lead In British Tourney

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Norio Suzuki, a Japanese who hasn't played outside his home country before, was the surprise joint leader as the opening day of the 105th British Open ended in heat and controversy Wednesday.

Bracketed with Suzuki at 69—three under par for the 7,001-yard par-72 Royal Birkdale course—were Severiano Ballesteros, a 19-year-old Spaniard on the brink of his military service, and Christy O'Connor, an Irishman who plays Ryder Cup for Britain.

Together they held at bay a strong United States contingent that included Jack Nicklaus, Hubert Green, Tom Weiskopf, Tommy Kite, Hale Irwin and Tom Watson, the reigning British champion.

Of the Americans, only Kite, from Houston, got within pitching distance of the leaders. He turned in a two-under-par 70, just one stroke behind the leading trio, and the next American to follow him was Bill Brask, a dark horse from Annapolis, Md., who has been concentrating on the European circuit. Brask finished at 71.

On a day with temperatures in the mid-80's, wilting greens and fairways were parched in the country's longest drought for 100 years and tempers started to heat up as well.

So scorched and dry was the course that midway through the day the rough near the first green caught fire, holding up play for 40 minutes while firemen put the blaze out. Nearby spectator stands were hastily emptied.

Significantly, the three leaders shot their 69's early in the day. With a record opening day crowd of 17,600 sweltering in the sun, the later starters found the heat playing tricks with the bounce and run of the ball and tempers started to rise with the temperature.

Christy O'Connor
Three-Under 69

Nicklaus, the 9-2 favorite, had for him an insignificant round of 74, two over par, and afterwards complained about the greens.

His complaint was echoed by Weiskopf, who went round in 73 and said flatly "You lose all confidence to putt, because you don't know what's going to happen."

Nicklaus said the greens could have done with more watering. "Each green was a different pace and you couldn't tell what the ball was going to do," he said. "I thought I putted pretty well but when the ball caught a bit of dry stuff it would run past or off."

"I don't want to make out I'm criticising," echoed Weiskopf, "but I hope that when they get weather like this again—and I know it's unusual—they will be able to profit by their experience.

"It seems there is a lack of knowledge here on how to deal with greens in the present conditions. In other countries where the temperatures are as high or higher and where they have humidity, the greens are superb. This country seems to have been caught out by the heat—you can't sleep, it's hard to keep cool—no ice—you're just not equipped.

"It was most frustrating to play."

O'Connor started his round like a fireball—four birdies in the first nine and only 11 putts. He turned in 30—four under par—and would have been a fairway's length away from everyone else but for a disastrous eight he took on the long parfive 13th, when he got under a bush, hit an air shot, bunkered himself and missed a putt.

Suzuki's round, in contrast, started quietly as he turned one over par in 35.

Then coming home he chipped into the cup from 45 feet, sank a 35-footer and got a 4-iron to within three feet of the pin in three successive holes to give him his 69.

And Ballesteros, driving like a well-oiled machine, finished with a blast out of a bunker on the 18th to within four feet of the pin for a birdie four.

"If I play like this, I have a chance," said Ballasteros afterwards. But, he added, "If the wind blows tomorrow, perhaps I will make 80. I play the ball high and I want more days like this."

Jack Newton, the Australian who lost the playoff in last year's Open to Tom Watson, trailed par for most of the round, then suddenly broke through with four birdies on the last four holes to draw level with Kite at 70, one stroke behind the leaders. With them was Brian Barnes, the Scot whose best Open showing to date was fifth in 1972.

Among the higher U.S. scorers were: Hubert Green and Johnny Miller with 72s, Hale Irwin and Alan Tapie with 74s and Arnold Palmer with a 75.

Morning Briefing

NL Team Chooses Ruthven

Dick Ruthven
Replaces Messersmith

Dick Ruthven, one of the few 10-game winners in the major leagues, was named to the National League All-Star squad as a replacement for Atlanta Braves' teammate Andy Messersmith.

The Braves requested the change because Messersmith reinjured a hamstring muscle while running the bases in Atlanta's game Tuesday against Pittsburgh. Ruthven has posted a 10-7 record this season.

Other Baseball

The new Seattle baseball franchise has signed a lease agreement to use Tempe Stadium in Arizona for spring training in 1977. The site for the new unnamed Seattle team is the same one used by the Seattle Pilots before their only year of competition.

Second baseman Gary Sutherland was reactivated by the Milwaukee Brewers, who sent pitcher Rick Austin down to their spokane farm club to make room on the roster.

Football

There will be free admission again next fall for Purdue University students attending home football games. Advance tickets sales indicate crowds should be in excess of 50,000 for each of the six home games.

Former professional football player and coach William Swiacki, 53, was found dead at his home. Swiacki played for Holy Cross and Columbia during college and then played with the New York Giants and the Detroit Lions. He was drafted and signed with the Boston Red Sox as a catcher but then played football for six years.

All-pro punter Ray Guy of the Oakland Raiders became the highest paid specialist in football when he signed a five-year contract "in excess of $500,000." Based on an average year for a punter, that's about $1,400 per punt.

The New York Jets traded veteran defensive tackle Jim Bailey, who played for Kansas during college, to the Cleveland Browns for an undisclosed 1977 draft choice.

Olympics

Former Olympic track star Wyomia Tyus said that the women's Olympic team will excel in both sprints and long distance in Montreal and make up for a poor showing in 1972. Tyus said this could be one of the most successful Olympics in women's track and field for the United States.

Willie Daum, president of the West German Olympic Committee, said the Canadian decision to bar Formosa from the Olympics is a violation of the Olympic rules and could threaten the future of the Olympic Games.

Three East German swimmers on the country's Olympic team have been injured in an auto accident. Wolfram Sperling was so seriously injured he will have to stay behind and miss the Olympics. Teammates Lutz Loescher and Hartmut Floeckner will make it to Montreal only if they recover rapidly from their injuries.

Tennis

The United States retracted its decision to leave the Davis Cup, a tennis Tournament that was for many years the symbol of international team tennis supremacy but recently has degenerated into a bickering bunch of nations. The U.S. signed a resolution to consider 1977 as a "neutral year capable of saving the existence of the competition."

Helena Anliot of Sweden defeated top seed Lesley Hunt of Australia, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1, in the first round of the women's singles in the $100,000 Baastad Tennis Grand Prix.

No. 1 seed Adriano Panatta of Italy advanced to the quarterfinals of the men's division of the Swiss tournament.

Other Sports

More than 140 golfers will tee off in the opening round of the $100,000 Quad Cities Open. Defending champion Roger Maltbie will be there as will Dave Stockton, Gay Brewer, Bruce Crampton, Jerry Heard and George Archer.

Steve Calder, co-owner of the Sportatorium who once thought he would be landlord for the Buffalo Braves of the NBA, said he is considering legal action against Braves' owner Paul Snyder.

Jose "Mantequilla" Napoles, considered by many to be the greatest welterweight of all time, announced his retirement from the ring, rejecting a chance to recover his world title in the process.

Mel Daniels, a former Most Valuable Player in the ABA, was awarded $180,000 in a breach of contract suit against the ABA, the former owners of the Indiana Pacers and the corporation which owned the defunct Memphis Sounds.

Bergan Hired For ISU Track

Ames, Iowa (AP) — Bill Bergan, an assistant at Iowa State since 1971, Wednesday was named track coach at Iowa State University by Athletic Director Lou McCullough.

Bergan, 34, replaces Jerry Barland who resigned recently to enter private business.

Wichita Hires ISU's Guydon

AMES, Iowa (UPI) — Gus Guydon, a former assistant basketball coach at Drake University and Iowa State, said Tuesday he has taken a similar job at Wichita State.

Guydon, 37, said he planned to move his family to Wichita by Aug. 1.

Smith Assails Platte Refuge

Grand Island (UPI) — Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., Wednesday said she is opposed to a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service proposal for a Platte River wildlife refuge.

Speaking to a legislative affairs committee at the Grand Island Chamber of Commerce, Smith said she has reservations about the proposal.

She said she recently discussed it with Fish and Wildlife officials, but said she's afraid it could result in land condemnation in the future.

Smith said she has introduced a bill which would give land owners the right to vote before "any land is condemned for any such refuge."

Royals Win

Evansville, Ind. (AP) — Pitcher Tom Bruno helped his own cause Wednesday night by smacking a three-run triple in the sixth inning to pace the Omaha Royals to a 6-3 victory over Evansville in American Association baseball play.

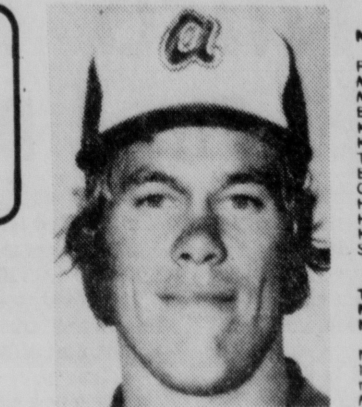
Morning Briefing

NL Team Chooses Ruthven



Dick Ruthven
Replaces Messersmith

Dick Ruthven, one of the few 10-game winners in the major leagues, was named to the National League All-Star squad as a replacement for Atlanta Braves' teammate Andy Messersmith.

The Braves requested the change because Messersmith reinjured a hamstring muscle while running the bases in Atlanta's game Tuesday against Pittsburgh. Ruthven has posted a 10-7 record this season.

Other Baseball

The new Seattle baseball franchise has signed a lease agreement to use Tempe Stadium in Arizona for spring training in 1977. The site for the new unnamed Seattle team is the same one used by the Seattle Pilots before their only year of competition.

Second baseman Gary Sutherland was reactivated by the Milwaukee Brewers, who sent pitcher Rick Austin down to their spokane farm club to make room on the roster.

Football

There will be free admission again next fall for Purdue University students attending home football games. Advance tickets sales indicate crowds should be in excess of 50,000 for each of the six home games.

Former professional football player and coach William Swiacki, 53, was found dead at his home. Swiacki played for Holy Cross and Columbia during college and then played with the New York Giants and the Detroit Lions. He was drafted and signed with the Boston Red Sox as a catcher but then played football for six years.

All-pro punter Ray Guy of the Oakland Raiders became the highest paid specialist in football when he signed a five-year contract "in excess of $500,000." Based on an average year for a punter, that's about $1,400 per punt.

The New York Jets traded veteran defensive tackle Jim Bailey, who played for Kansas during college, to the Cleveland Browns for an undisclosed 1977 draft choice.

Olympics

Former Olympic track star Wyomia Tyus said that the women's Olympic team will excel in both sprints and long distance in Montreal and make up for a poor showing in 1972. Tyus said this could be one of the most successful Olympics in women's track and field for the United States.

Willie Daum, president of the West German Olympic Committee, said the Canadian decision to bar Formosa from the Olympics is a violation of the Olympic rules and could threaten the future of the Olympic Games.

Three East German swimmers on the country's Olympic team have been injured in an auto accident. Wolfram Sperling was so seriously injured he will have to stay behind and miss the Olympics. Teammates Lutz Loescher and Hartmut Floeckner will make it to Montreal only if they recover rapidly from their injuries.

Tennis

The United States retracted its decision to leave the Davis Cup, a tennis Tournament that was for many years the symbol of international team tennis supremacy but recently has degenerated into a bickering bunch of nations. The U.S. signed a resolution to consider 1977 as a "neutral year capable of saving the existence of the competition."

Helena Anliot of Sweden defeated top seed Lesley Hunt of Australia, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1, in the first round of the women's singles in the $100,000 Baastad Tennis Grand Prix.

No. 1 seed Adriano Panatta of Italy advanced to the quarterfinals of the men's division of the Swiss tournament.

Other Sports

More than 140 golfers will tee off in the opening round of the $100,000 Quad Cities Open. Defending champion Roger Maltbie will be there as will Dave Stockton, Gay Brewer, Bruce Crampton, Jerry Heard and George Archer.

Steve Calder, co-owner of the Sportatorium who once thought he would be landlord for the Buffalo Braves of the NBA, said he is considering legal action against Braves' owner Paul Snyder.

Jose "Mantequilla" Napoles, considered by many to be the greatest welterweight of all time, announced his retirement from the ring, rejecting a chance to recover his world title in the process.

Mel Daniels, a former Most Valuable Player in the ABA, was awarded $180,000 in a breach of contract suit against the ABA, the former owners of the Indiana Pacers and the corporation which owned the defunct Memphis Sounds.

Bergan Hired For ISU Track

Ames, Iowa (AP) — Bill Bergan, an assistant at Iowa State since 1971, Wednesday was named track coach at Iowa State University by Athletic Director Lou McCullough.

Bergan, 34, replaces Jerry Barland who resigned recently to enter private business.

Wichita Hires ISU's Guydon

AMES, Iowa (UPI) — Gus Guydon, a former assistant basketball coach at Drake University and Iowa State, said Tuesday he has taken a similar job at Wichita State.

Guydon, 37, said he planned to move his family to Wichita by Aug. 1.

Smith Assails Platte Refuge

Grand Island (UPI) -- Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., Wednesday said she is opposed to a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service proposal for a Platte River wildlife refuge.

Speaking to a legislative affairs committee at the Grand Island Chamber of Commerce, Smith said she has reservations about the proposal.

She said she recently discussed it with Fish and Wildlife officials, but said she's afraid it could result in land condemnation in the future.

Smith said she has introduced a bill which would give land owners the right to vote before "any land is condemned for any such refuge."

Royals Win

Evansville, Ind. (AP) — Pitcher Tom Bruno helped his own cause Wednesday night by smacking a three-run triple in the sixth inning to pace the Omaha Royals to a 6-3 victory over Evansville in American Association baseball play.

Habitat Petition Lacks Counties

By The Associated Press

A petition drive aimed at giving Nebraskans a chance to repeal the new habitat stamp law fell short of legal requirements, according to the drive's chairman.

The Unicameral's habitat stamp law, which will in some cases double hunting and fishing fees to raise $2.6 million for preservation of wildlife habitat, provoked opposition in the Falls City area.

"You wouldn't believe it," said Robert H. Miller of Falls City in a telephone interview. "We've got the names, but we haven't got the counties."

Legal requirements to get the issue of whether to repeal the measure before state voters in a referendum Nov. 2 included:

Obtaining 31,589 valid petition signatures; a distribution factor regarding the counties in which they were obtained.

The drive faltered because of the requirement that signatures from 38 counties must amount in each to at least 5 per cent of the total vote for governor in the last general election. Miller said his group reached that goal in only 24 or 25 counties.

The deadline for filing petitions with the secretary of state is Thursday at 5 p. m., but Miller said Wednesday there was no way to meet the distribution requirement by then.

"Honestly, I don't see how we can because we're short on counties," he said. "That's where we're hurting. We can't get into the other counties fast enough. Another two weeks and I think we would have had it."

Miller and his colleagues said they objected to the boost in fees.

All-Star Officials Picked

Two sets of officials will work the eighth year of all-star basketball, the Nebraska Coaches Association has announced.

Max Broderson and Larry Mollring, both of McCook, are teamed to officiate the August 5 game at Mid-Plains Community College in North Platte.

In Lincoln, Geneva's Roger Trumper and Lincoln's Rudy Stoehr will work the Aug. 6 game at Pershing Auditorium.

Both games start at 8 p.m. The North holds a 4-3 series edge over the South.

Habitat Petition Lacks Counties

By The Associated Press

A petition drive aimed at giving Nebraskans a chance to repeal the new habitat stamp law fell short of legal requirements, according to the drive's chairman.

The Unicameral's habitat stamp law, which will in some cases double hunting and fishing fees to raise $2.6 million for preservation of wildlife habitat, provoked opposition in the Falls City area.

"You wouldn't believe it," said Robert H. Miller of Falls City in a telephone interview. "We've got the names, but we haven't got the counties."

Legal requirements to get the issue of whether to repeal the measure before state voters in a referendum Nov. 2 included:

Obtaining 31,589 valid petition signatures; a distribution factor regarding the counties in which they were obtained.

The drive faltered because of the requirement that signatures from 38 counties must amount in each to at least 5 per cent of the total vote for governor in the last general election. Miller said his group reached that goal in only 24 or 25 counties.

The deadline for filing petitions with the secretary of state is Thursday at 5 p. m., but Miller said Wednesday there was no way to meet the distribution requirement by then.

"Honestly, I don't see how we can because we're short on counties," he said. "That's where we're hurting. We can't get into the other counties fast enough. Another two weeks and I think we would have had it."

Miller and his colleagues said they objected to the boost in fees.

All-Star Officials Picked

Two sets of officials will work the eighth year of all-star basketball, the Nebraska Coaches Association has announced.

Max Broderson and Larry Mollring, both of McCook, are teamed to officiate the August 5 game at Mid-Plains Community College in North Platte.

In Lincoln, Geneva's Roger Trumper and Lincoln's Rudy Stoehr will work the Aug. 6 game at Pershing Auditorium.

Both games start at 8 p.m. The North holds a 4-3 series edge over the South.

Human Service Agencies To Be Funded Differently

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

County and city leaders tentatively agreed to a funding formula for human service programs and approved four joint budgets Wednesday.

The City-County Common approved 75-25 county-city funding ratio for human service programs.

The 75-25 ratio is traditional, but individual agencies funded by the city, the county or both will change.

Under the proposal, the city will finance most of the City-County Health Department and Commission on Aging, while the county will pick up grants to many of the non-governmental human service agencies, such as the Legal Aid Society, City Mission and Lincoln Labor Coop.

The funding pattern will allow the two governments to use local tax money in programs where federal and state matching funds might be available, and to use revenue sharing funds for other agencies. Currently federal revenue sharing funds cannot be used as matching funds for federal grants.

The funding formula will be tried on a one-year basis and reviewed at the end of the year.

Mayor Helen Boosalis asked the group to wait one year before shifting any funds, but County Board Chairman Bruce Hamilton disagreed.

"My hunch, based on experience, is that if we wait we will be in this same discussion one year from now."

The Common, composed of city council members, county commissioners and the mayor, also approved, with no changes, joint budget proposals for four departments.

Departments whose budgets were approved and the funding ratios are: Civil: Defense, $74,203 (50% federal, 25% city, 25% county); Human Services, $47,025 (50% each city and county); City-County Implementation Committee, $30,981 (50% each city and county); City-County Planning Department, $462,828 ($370,262 split 80-20 city and county and the rest paid with federal and state funds).

Man Contends Police Used Excessive Force

A Lincoln man filed a complaint with the Police Review Board claiming that officers used excessive force when they arrested him in May. He was charged with assault and battery and resisting arrest.

Allan E. Stibal, 640 S. 12th St., claims in the complaint filed in the City Clerk's office that officers didn't tell him they were arresting him.

Stibal, 34, said he was having an argument with his wife in the front yard when he "saw police officers charge at me." He admits that in the scuffle that ensued, he hit an officer in the leg.

Stibal contends he was held in jail for six hours, his wrists handcuffed. He said the handcuffs were too tight and cut off circulation in his hands.

The complaint marks the third time that a citizen has used the new procedure established by the City Council to investigate alleged misconduct by police officers.

In the first complaint filed in January, the couple withdrew their complaint. In the second case, the Police Review Board exonerated the police department of any wrongdoing.

The board was created by the council to investigate charges of misconduct, use of excessive force, abuse of authority or extreme discourtesy. Seven citizens serve on the board.

The Lincoln Police Department now has ten days to respond in writing to the Stibal's charges. The board then must decide whether there is sufficient evidence to hold a hearing. Findings by the board are only recommendations to the mayor and City Council.

Man Facing Robbery Attempt Charge

A Whittier, Calif., man will be charged Thursday with the attempted robbery Wednesday of the First National Bank's branch office at 56th and O St.

Police said the man walked into the bank and gave teller Margaret Phillips a note saying "This is a stickup."

He asked for $3,000. Although he did not threaten the teller with a weapon, the man asked for the money in $100 bills. However, Ms. Phillips said she didn't have that amount in those denominations. She also activated the alarm which notified police of the burglary.

The would-be robber apparently was scared off when another bank employe walked near the teller, police said. The man, 33, then ran out of the bank and north on 56th St.

He was apprehended less than a block away, near P St., by detective Al Kelly who was responding to the alarm.

The man is being held in the City-County jail pending the filing of charges.

Lincoln's last bank robber occurred in 1972 at a bank savings and loan assoication.

Burned Line, Moisture Cause Power Blackout

A Lincoln Electric System (LES) feeder line burned down Wednesday afternoon causing an area near downtown Lincoln to be without electricity for about an hour.

Authorities said a 4,160-volt feeder line burned down in two places, at the 2nd and N St. substation and at the K St. power plant, at 8th and K St.

The line burned out because moisture seeped into a power line spacer, which holds the lines together.

An area generally from 2nd to 16th, N to L St., was without power for about an hour.

Human Service Agencies To Be Funded Differently

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

County and city leaders tentatively agreed to a funding formula for human service programs and approved four joint budgets Wednesday.

The City-County Common approved 75-25 county-city funding ratio for human service programs.

The 75-25 ratio is traditional, but individual agencies funded by the city, the county or both will change.

Under the proposal, the city will finance most of the City-County Health Department and Commission on Aging, while the county will pick up grants to many of the non-governmental human service agencies, such as the Legal Aid Society, City Mission and Lincoln Labor Coop.

The funding pattern will allow the two governments to use local tax money in programs where federal and state matching funds might be available, and to use revenue sharing funds for other agencies. Currently federal revenue sharing funds cannot be used as matching funds for federal grants.

Sikyta To Seek Transport Agency

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

The idea of pulling together a transportation department, or division, has reared its head once again in City Hall.

Councilman Bob Sikyta said Wednesday that he plans to introduce an ordinance creating such an entity later this summer when the council is not tied down with budget hearings.

The new department or division, according to Sikyta, should pull together workers in such disparate departments as finance, public works, planning and the Lincoln Transportation System.

Whether mass transit, a parking garage, carpooling, intersection construction, bicycling or street widening, Sikyta said, all matters dealing with transportation should be under one roof.

This time around it looks like considerable support can be mustered for the concept, which was discussed last year but was eventually discarded.

In addition to Sikyta, council members Max Denney, Steve Cook and Dick Baker Wednesday voiced support for the proposal.

Sikyta said that he feels the city's efforts to provide efficient transportation are bogging down because they are fragmented among separate agencies.

Those efforts would have more impact, Sikyta said, if they were under one person who had the authority to coordinate matters.

Last year talk of creating a separate agency to deal with transportation bogged down on the question of whether it should be a full-blown department or only part of a department.

That controversy has not disappeared in the intervening months. Mayor Helen Boosalis Wednesday reiterated her objection to another department, contending that it creates another layer of bureaucracy.

Sikyta, however, says he intends to "fight hard" to establish the transportation agency as a separate department because he feels the importance of the area warrants it.

He said, however, that he would accept "as a last alternative", establishing the division in the Department of Urban Development, where Mayor Boosalis wants to place it.

The new transportation agency could be headed by City Traffic Engineer Bob Holsinger, "on a temporary basis, at least," Sikyta said.

NU Planning, Design Consolidation Rapped

A proposal to consolidate planning and design functions from three campuses under the University of Nebraska systems office would be bad for all campuses, said UNL physical plant administrator Harley Schrader.

The idea, still in the proposal stage, could eliminate 12 UNL employes and move another 18 employes to the systems office, Schrader said.

It looks like someone just went down the list and eliminated people by job title, said Schrader about the proposal.

The people in the 12 jobs only spend a part of their time on design or capital construction work (the areas to be consolidated), Schrader said. The time involved works out to about 3.5 people, not 12, he said.

The proposal could affect about 68 employes on the three NU campuses who would either lose jobs or be moved, Schrader said.

But personnel isn't the only problem with the proposal, said Schrader. The idea just won't work well, he said.

The idea came from a 1971 study of NU management which recommended pooling planners in a single unit to avoid duplication.

But such a centralized service could not provide proper support for the Omaha or Medical Center campuses, Schrader said.

When he came to UNL 10 years ago, capital construction planning and inspection for the Medical Center was done from the Lincoln campus.

"We did as well as we could, but we could not relate to the day-to-day problems in Omaha," Schrader said.

Even inspection work cannot be handled as well from a centralized office than from individual campuses, he said.

"We couldn't do as good a job because part of our supervision time was spent traveling from Lincoln to Omaha," Schrader said.

"It just can't be done as well centrally."

NU Planning, Design Consolidation Rapped

A proposal to consolidate planning and design functions from three campuses under the University of Nebraska systems office would be bad for all campuses, said UNL physical plant administrator Harley Schrader.

"We did as well as we could, but we could not relate to the day-to-day problems in Omaha," Schrader said.

Even inspection work cannot be handled as well from a centralized office than from individual campuses, he said.

"We couldn't do as good a job because part of our supervision time was spent traveling from Lincoln to Omaha," Schrader said.

"It just can't be done as well centrally."

Market Erases Early Loss

New York (AP) — Declines in some key short term interest rates helped the stock market erase an early loss and finish mixed Wednesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down more than 5 points in early trading, cut its loss to .65, at 991.16, by the close of the New York Stock Exchange.

Gainers outpaced losers by more than a 4-3 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .16 to 55.48.

Big Board volume, busiest in the late recovery, increased to 18.47 million shares from 16.13 million Tuesday.

The early selling marked a continuation of the downtrend that set in on Tuesday, when the Dow fell 8.03 points.

After that, analysts said, the market steadied with a list from a downward move in Treasury bill rates.

In Washington, government officials said the 1976 federal budget deficit could be $9 billion less than had been projected a few months ago.

That could give interest rates a modest downward push, an official at the Treasury Department observed.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose .29 to 103.83.

Some uranium issues retreated in the face of a Wall Street Journal report that subpoenas had been issued through a federal grand jury in connection with a Justice Department investigation of the industry.

United Nuclear was down nearly 2 points and Atlas Corp. lost a fraction, both in active trading.

—Staying Ahead—

Dow Average Doesn't Tell Actual Stock Mart Story

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — Faithful followers of the Dow Jones Industrial Average are being grievously misled about what's been happening in the stock market, and to the investments of the average person. Judging by the Dow, the market is close to its all-time high, which should mean general rejoicing in the streets. But by a broader measure — one that more truly mirrors the experience of the smaller investor — the stock market is still down 56% from its peak.

That surprising fact comes from a look at the Indicator Digest Average, which charts the average performance of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Unlike other broad-based averages, the IDA is not weighted in favor of large companies. All stocks are counted as equals, so the stellar performance of a few institutional favorites can't mask the weakness of second and third-tier companies. By contrast, the Dow Jones Industrial Average follows the performance of only 30 leading stocks.

The table below shows you four peaks on the DJIA over the past 10 years, compared with what the Indicator Digest Average was doing at the same time. Dow-watchers would have assumed that the frenzied 1973 peak of 1,051 meant enormous prosperity for all the small investors who once bought a share in America. But in truth, the average stock, as measured by the IDA, was down 37% compared with three years earlier, and has since dropped even further below the high levels of the Dow. The facts:

Market Peaks	Dow Jones	Indicator Digest
1966, January	995	62
1968, December	985	82
1973, January	1051	51
Last Week	999	37

This says a lot about why the average investor thinks of stocks as a lingering form of the black plague. There's still a pox on most of his investments. They're up 85% from the IDA low of 20.5 in December 1974, but have to rise another 120% before they'll be back where they were in 1968. Many mutual funds also remain well below their highs.

If you adjust the table above for inflation, the record looks even worse. In terms of 1966 dollars, the Dow is selling today at 603 — a 39% decline in purchasing power. The adjusted IDA shows a depressing 66% decline in purchasing power. So much for the theory that the stock market is your best defense against inflation.

Professionals keep expecting the little guy to return to the market. But no one's telling me what he's going to return to the market with. Robert Cardwell, market analyst for Indicator Digest, sees the divergence between the IDA and the Dow as proof that there's a lot of upside potential in the average stock. "Our theory is that the average stock generally catches up to the Dow," he says. In 1974, however, it might better be said that the Dow dropped back to the level of the average stock.

Who will buy the second-tier stocks, to move them back into the chips? Cardwell thinks that the institutions own about as much of the "nifty fifty" companies as they can digest, which means they'll have to put more and more of their new money into other stocks.

Secondly, if the market moves up decisively beyond 1,000, as many analysts expect will happen at some point during the current business cycle, the general excitement might bring enough of the public in to give the average stock a good run.

This bull market hasn't yet had its speculative phase, which traditionally tops the averages out. It's chiefly the belief that speculation must come that keeps alive hopes for the lower-priced stocks. Which prompts a question: What if, this time, speculation switches away from stocks and over to the Chicago Board Options Exchange, where admission is cheap and the action fast? What will happen to the lower-priced stocks then?

"Wall Street," runs the macabre (and accurate) definition, "is a street with a river at one end and a graveyard at the other." No wonder that people who need their money are tempted to sit this round out.

Liquidation Hits Commodities

Chicago (AP) — Heavy liquidation by profit-takers and selective sellers sent most commodity futures to limits lower on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday.

Soybean futures, with limits extended to 30 cents from 20, closed with a loss of 27 cents. Kimit declines included wheat at 20 cents, corn 10 cents, oats 6 cents, soybean meal $10 a ton and soybean oil 100 points, or 1 cent a pound.

Market Erases Early Loss

New York (AP) — Declines in some key short term interest rates helped the stock market erase an early loss and finish mixed Wednesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down more than 5 points in early trading, cut its loss to .65, at 991.16, by the close of the New York Stock Exchange.

Gainers outpaced losers by more than a 4-3 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .16 to 55.48.

Big Board volume, busiest in the late recovery, increased to 18.47 million shares from 16.13 million Tuesday.

The early selling marked a continuation of the downtrend that set in on Tuesday, when the Dow fell 8.03 points.

After that, analysts said, the market steadied with a list from a downward move in Treasury bill rates.

In Washington, government officials said the 1976 federal budget deficit could be $9 billion less than had been projected a few months ago.

That could give interest rates a modest downward push, an official at the Treasury Department observed.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose .29 to 103.83.

Some uranium issues retreated in the face of a Wall Street Journal report that subpoenas had been issued through a federal grand jury in connection with a Justice Department investigation of the industry.

United Nuclear was down nearly 2 points and Atlas Corp. lost a fraction, both in active trading.

—Staying Ahead—

Dow Average Doesn't Tell Actual Stock Mart Story

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — Faithful followers of the Dow Jones Industrial Average are being grievously misled about what's been happening in the stock market, and to the investments of the average person. Judging by the Dow, the market is close to its all-time high, which should mean general rejoicing in the streets. But by a broader measure — one that more truly mirrors the experience of the smaller investor — the stock market is still down 56% from its peak.

That surprising fact comes from a look at the Indicator Digest Average, which charts the average performance of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Unlike other broad-based averages, the IDA is not weighted in favor of large companies. All stocks are counted as equals, so the stellar performance of a few institutional favorites can't mask the weakness of second and third-tier companies. By contrast, the Dow Jones Industrial Average follows the performance of only 30 leading stocks.

The table below shows you four peaks on the DJIA over the past 10 years, compared with what the Indicator Digest Average was doing at the same time. Dow-watchers would have assumed that the frenzied 1973 peak of 1,051 meant enormous prosperity for all the small investors who once bought a share in America. But in truth, the average stock, as measured by the IDA, was down 37% compared with three years earlier, and has since dropped even further below the high levels of the Dow. The facts:

Market Peaks	Dow Jones	Indicator Digest
1966, January	995	62
1968, December	985	82
1973, January	1051	51
Last Week	999	37

This says a lot about why the average investor thinks of stocks as a lingering form of the black plague. There's still a pox on most of his investments. They're up 85% from the IDA low of 20.5 in December 1974, but have to rise another 120% before they'll be back where they were in 1968. Many mutual funds also remain well below their highs.

If you adjust the table above for inflation, the record looks even worse. In terms of 1966 dollars, the Dow is selling today at 603 — a 39% decline in purchasing power. The adjusted IDA shows a depressing 66% decline in purchasing power. So much for the theory that the stock market is your best defense against inflation.

Professionals keep expecting the little guy to return to the market. But no one's telling me what he's going to return to the market with. Robert Cardwell, market analyst for Indicator Digest, sees the divergence between the IDA and the Dow as proof that there's a lot of upside potential in the average stock. "Our theory is that the average stock generally catches up to the Dow," he says. In 1974, however, it might better be said that the Dow dropped back to the level of the average stock.

Who will buy the second-tier stocks, to move them back into the chips? Cardwell thinks that the institutions own about as much of the "nifty fifty" companies as they can digest, which means they'll have to put more and more of their new money into other stocks.

Secondly, if the market moves up decisively beyond 1,000, as many analysts expect will happen at some point during the current business cycle, the general excitement might bring enough of the public in to give the average stock a good run.

This bull market hasn't yet had its speculative phase, which traditionally tops the averages out. It's chiefly the belief that speculation must come that keeps alive hopes for the lower-priced stocks. Which prompts a question: What if, this time, speculation switches away from stocks and over to the Chicago Board Options Exchange, where admission is cheap and the action fast? What will happen to the lower-priced stocks then?

"Wall Street," runs the macabre (and accurate) definition, "is a street with a river at one end and a graveyard at the other." No wonder that people who need their money are tempted to sit this round out.

Donations Opposed

Seattle, Wash. (UPI) — Americans United for Separation of Church and State have filed suit against a proposal by Northwest Bell, a government-regulated public utility, to pass on to subscribers as "necessary operating costs" Bell's donations to church colleges and various private charities.

Liquidation Hits Commodities

Chicago (AP) — Heavy liquidation by profit-takers and selective sellers sent most commodity futures to limits lower on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday.

Soybean futures, with limits extended to 30 cents from 20, closed with a loss of 27 cents. Kimit declines included wheat at 20 cents, corn 10 cents, oats 6 cents, soybean meal $10 a ton and soybean oil 100 points, or 1 cent a pound.

Market Erases Early Loss

New York (AP) — Declines in some key short term interest rates helped the stock market erase an early loss and finish mixed Wednesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down more than 5 points in early trading, cut its loss to .65, at 991.16, by the close of the New York Stock Exchange.

Gainers outpaced losers by more than a 4-3 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .16 to 55.48.

Big Board volume, busiest in the late recovery, increased to 18.47 million shares from 16.13 million Tuesday.

The early selling marked a continuation of the downtrend that set in on Tuesday, when the Dow fell 8.03 points.

After that, analysts said, the market steadied with a list from a downward move in Treasury bill rates.

In Washington, government officials said the 1976 federal budget deficit could be $9 billion less than had been projected a few months ago.

That could give interest rates a modest downward push, an official at the Treasury Department observed.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose .29 to 103.83.

Some uranium issues retreated in the face of a Wall Street Journal report that subpoenas had been issued through a federal grand jury in connection with a Justice Department investigation of the industry.

United Nuclear was down nearly 2 points and Atlas Corp. lost a fraction, both in active trading.

—Staying Ahead—

Dow Average Doesn't Tell Actual Stock Mart Story

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — Faithful followers of the Dow Jones Industrial Average are being grievously misled about what's been happening in the stock market, and to the investments of the average person. Judging by the Dow, the market is close to its all-time high, which should mean general rejoicing in the streets. But by a broader measure — one that more truly mirrors the experience of the smaller investor — the stock market is still down 56% from its peak.

That surprising fact comes from a look at the Indicator Digest Average, which charts the average performance of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Unlike other broad-based averages, the IDA is not weighted in favor of large companies. All stocks are counted as equals, so the stellar performance of a few institutional favorites can't mask the weakness of second and third-tier companies. By contrast, the Dow Jones Industrial Average follows the performance of only 30 leading stocks.

The table below shows you four peaks on the DJIA over the past 10 years, compared with what the Indicator Digest Average was doing at the same time. Dow-watchers would have assumed that the frenzied 1973 peak of 1,051 meant enormous prosperity for all the small investors who once bought a share in America. But in truth, the average stock, as measured by the IDA, was down 37% compared with three years earlier, and has since dropped even further below the high levels of the Dow. The facts:

Market Peaks	Dow Jones	Indicator Digest
1966, January	995	62
1968, December	985	82
1973, January	1051	51
Last Week	999	37

This says a lot about why the average investor thinks of stocks as a lingering form of the black plague. There's still a pox on most of his investments. They're up 85% from the IDA low of 20.5 in December 1974, but have to rise another 120% before they'll be back where they were in 1968. Many mutual funds also remain well below their highs.

If you adjust the table above for inflation, the record looks even worse. In terms of 1966 dollars, the Dow is selling today at 603 — a 39% decline in purchasing power. The adjusted IDA shows a depressing 66% decline in purchasing power. So much for the theory that the stock market is your best defense against inflation.

Professionals keep expecting the little guy to return to the market. But no one's telling me what he's going to return to the market with. Robert Cardwell, market analyst for Indicator Digest, sees the divergence between the IDA and the Dow as proof that there's a lot of upside potential in the average stock. "Our theory is that the average stock generally catches up to the Dow," he says. In 1974, however, it might better be said that the Dow dropped back to the level of the average stock.

Who will buy the second-tier stocks, to move them back into the chips? Cardwell thinks that the institutions own about as much of the "nifty fifty" companies as they can digest, which means they'll have to put more and more of their new money into other stocks.

Secondly, if the market moves up decisively beyond 1,000, as many analysts expect will happen at some point during the current business cycle, the general excitement might bring enough of the public in to give the average stock a good run.

This bull market hasn't yet had its speculative phase, which traditionally tops the averages out. It's chiefly the belief that speculation must come that keeps alive hopes for the lower-priced stocks. Which prompts a question: What if, this time, speculation switches away from stocks and over to the Chicago Board Options Exchange, where admission is cheap and the action fast? What will happen to the lower-priced stocks then?

"Wall Street," runs the macabre (and accurate) definition, "is a street with a river at one end and a graveyard at the other." No wonder that people who need their money are tempted to sit this round out.

Market Erases Early Loss

New York (AP) — Declines in some key short term interest rates helped the stock market erase an early loss and finish mixed Wednesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down more than 5 points in early trading, cut its loss to .65, at 991.16, by the close of the New York Stock Exchange.

Gainers outpaced losers by more than a 4-3 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .16 to 55.48.

Big Board volume, busiest in the late recovery, increased to 18.47 million shares from 16.13 million Tuesday.

The early selling marked a continuation of the downtrend that set in on Tuesday, when the Dow fell 8.03 points.

After that, analysts said, the market steadied with a list from a downward move in Treasury bill rates.

In Washington, government officials said the 1976 federal budget deficit could be $9 billion less than had been projected a few months ago.

That could give interest rates a modest downward push, an official at the Treasury Department observed.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose .29 to 103.83.

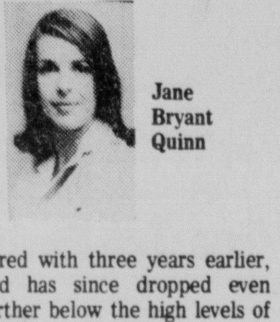
Some uranium issues retreated in the face of a Wall Street Journal report that subpoenas had been issued through a federal grand jury in connection with a Justice Department investigation of the industry.

United Nuclear was down nearly 2 points and Atlas Corp. lost a fraction, both in active trading.

—Staying Ahead—

Dow Average Doesn't Tell Actual Stock Mart Story

By JANE BRYANT QUINN



Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — Faithful followers of the Dow Jones Industrial Average are being grievously misled about what's been happening in the stock market, and to the investments of the average person. Judging by the Dow, the market is close to its all-time high, which should mean general rejoicing in the streets. But by a broader measure — one that more truly mirrors the experience of the smaller investor — the stock market is still down 56% from its peak.

That surprising fact comes from a look at the Indicator Digest Average, which charts the average performance of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Unlike other broad-based averages, the IDA is not weighted in favor of large companies. All stocks are counted as equals, so the stellar performance of a few institutional favorites can't mask the weakness of second and third-tier companies. By contrast, the Dow Jones Industrial Average follows the performance of only 30 leading stocks.

The table below shows you four peaks on the DJIA over the past 10 years, compared with what the Indicator Digest Average was doing at the same time. Dow-watchers would have assumed that the frenzied 1973 peak of 1,051 meant enormous prosperity for all the small investors who once bought a share in America. But in truth, the average stock, as measured by the IDA, was down 37% compared with three years earlier, and has since dropped even further below the high levels of the Dow. The facts:

Market Peaks	Dow Jones	Indicator Digest
1966, January	995	62
1968, December	985	82
1973, January	1051	51
Last Week	999	37

This says a lot about why the average investor thinks of stocks as a lingering form of the black plague. There's still a pox on most of his investments. They're up 85% from the IDA low of 20.5 in December 1974, but have to rise another 120% before they'll be back where they were in 1968. Many mutual funds also remain well below their highs.

If you adjust the table above for inflation, the record looks even worse. In terms of 1966 dollars, the Dow is selling today at 603 — a 39% decline in purchasing power. The adjusted IDA shows a depressing 66% decline in purchasing power. So much for the theory that the stock market is your best defense against inflation.

Professionals keep expecting the little guy to return to the market. But no one's telling me what he's going to return to the market with. Robert Cardwell, market analyst for Indicator Digest, sees the divergence between the IDA and the Dow as proof that there's a lot of upside potential in the average stock. "Our theory is that the average stock generally catches up to the Dow," he says. In 1974, however, it might better be said that the Dow dropped back to the level of the average stock.

Who will buy the second-tier stocks, to move them back into the chips? Cardwell thinks that the institutions own about as much of the "nifty fifty" companies as they can digest, which means they'll have to put more and more of their new money into other stocks.

Secondly, if the market moves up decisively beyond 1,000, as many analysts expect will happen at some point during the current business cycle, the general excitement might bring enough of the public in to give the average stock a good run.

This bull market hasn't yet had its speculative phase, which traditionally tops the averages out. It's chiefly the belief that speculation must come that keeps alive hopes for the lower-priced stocks. Which prompts a question: What if, this time, speculation switches away from stocks and over to the Chicago Board Options Exchange, where admission is cheap and the action fast? What will happen to the lower-priced stocks then?

"Wall Street," runs the macabre (and accurate) definition, "is a street with a river at one end and a graveyard at the other." No wonder that people who need their money are tempted to sit this round out.

Hail Hard On Corn Crop

Hail stripped corn fields early Wednesday in an area east of Howells as scattered thunderstorms occurred in the state. The heaviest rain was in the northeast.

The hail was accompanied by 1.30 inches of rain east of Howells, while the town itself received only .28 of an inch.

Pender reported 1.22 inches of rain with golfball size hail. At Clarkson rainfall measured .81.

During the night, a tornado was sighted near Gordon, but no damage was reported.

Small hail fell Wednesday morning at Milford.

Brief showers during the day in Lincoln totaled only .11 of an inch, bringing the July moisture to .37 and the year's total to 11.74, compared to a normal amount of 14.91.

Meanwhile, Lincoln County officials at North Platte Wednesday said at least $7.5 million in crop damage resulted from Saturday night's hailstorm.

Estimates based on reports and observations from Lincoln County farmers indicated 15,000 acres of corn was severely damaged.

Hail Hard On Corn Crop

Hail stripped corn fields early Wednesday in an area east of Howells as scattered thunderstorms occurred in the state. The heaviest rain was in the northeast.

The hail was accompanied by 1.30 inches of rain east of Howells, while the town itself received only .28 of an inch.

Pender reported 1.22 inches of rain with golfball size hail. At Clarkson rainfall measured .81.

During the night, a tornado was sighted near Gordon, but no damage was reported.

Small hail fell Wednesday morning at Milford.

Brief showers during the day in Lincoln totaled only .11 of an inch, bringing the July moisture to .37 and the year's total to 11.74, compared to a normal amount of 14.91.

Meanwhile, Lincoln County officials at North Platte Wednesday said at least $7.5 million in crop damage resulted from Saturday night's hailstorm.

Estimates based on reports and observations from Lincoln County farmers indicated 15,000 acres of corn was severely damaged.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Accent on unique agreements, contacts You advance cause by making known your views Refuse to be intimidated by one who claims to "call the law" Listen, observe and learn You are on the way to establishing valuable contacts

CANCER (June 21 July 22) Home, parents, work, security seem to combine into a montage Read the signs, clues. Become familiar with basic material Do your homework Get together with persons who share your aspirations. Taurus, Libra could figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22) Take a chance on your own abilities Sweeping changes may be on tap Know it and be ready for action. Member of opposite sex is very much in picture Be wary of money promises. No one intends to give you something for nothing

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct. 22) Check instructions, reports, directions Avoid wild goose chase Relative may be sincere — but misinformed Know it and act accordingly Get rid of burden not rightly your own One who should understand doesn't want to understand You'll perceive and you'll do something about it.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov 21) Emphasis on collection, evaluation, protection of possessions You are able to get to heart of matters, to express, to comprehend costs, values and to obtain fresh viewpoint which could be profitable. Leo, Aquarius persons figure in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22-Dec 21) Lunar cycle is high — take initiative. Lead rather than follow. Set pace and create policy. Obtain hint from Scorpio message Accent on individuality, personality, appearance, original methods and approach

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19) Much that happens is quiet, subdued, obscured, hidden Hospital, organization, special charity could be involved. You may feel restricted. You'll have to separate fact from illusion You may be asked to speak before cameras.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb. 18): Accent on romantic involvement, costs of making desires become realities. You get facts — you become aware of routine, of what's written between the lines. Taurus, Leo and Scorpio figure prominently. You feel more vital, alive and ambitious.

PISCES (Feb 19-March 20). You make fine impression on one in position of authority. Your style comes through — more persons become aware of your unique abilities. Some changes due — and a message or call sets tone of your day. Relative is involved, too

IF JULY 8th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are creative, productive, capable of organizing a business You accept responsibility You are dynamic, passionate and dedicated Capricorn, Cancer persons play important roles in your life. A new start indicated in August. In October, burden is lifted — you will have more opportunities and a "better" social life.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Thursday, July 8, 1976

The dual nature of Gemini is legendary. Natives of this zodiacal sign are reporters, information addicts, talkers, photographers, social psychologists, writers, critics. Gemini is restless, falls in love with Leo, signs agreements with Sagittarius, eats with Virgo, makes money with Cancer, confides secret fears to Taurus. Gemini is emotional, restless and can fall in love with more than one person simultaneously. Where is your Gemini this day?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Gather information — analyze it and communicate your findings. Emphasis on publications, educational material, long-range views and plans. Expand outlook — you're going to be inspired to "go places!"

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A wish "comes true" in most unusual manner. Partner or mate gets involved and financial structure is in picture, too. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio figure prominently. One you are drawn to returns the complement. You undergo a most satisfactory experience!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on unique agreements, contacts. You advance cause by making known your views. Refuse to be intimidated by one who claims to "call the law." Listen, observe and learn. You are on the way to establishing valuable contacts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Home, parents, work, security seem to combine into a montage. Read the signs, clues. Become familiar with basic material. Do your homework. Get together with persons who share your aspirations. Taurus, Libra could figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take a chance on your own abilitites. Sweeping changes may be on tap. Know it and be ready for action. Member of opposite sex is very much in picture. Be wary of money promises. No one intends to give you something for nothing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Agreements are finalized. Property could be involved. Get valid appraisal. Refuse to sell yourself short. Older individual will lend benefit of experience. Be receptive, firm and take on added responsibility. Capricon, Cancer persons could figure prominently.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Check instructions, reports, directions. Avoid wild-goose chase. Relative may be sincere — but misinformed. Know it and act accordingly. Get rid of burden not rightly your own. One who should understand doesn't want to understand. You'll perceive and you'll do something about it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emphasis on collection, evaluation, protection of possessions. You are able to get to heart of matters, to express, to comprehend costs, values and to obtain fresh viewpoint which could be profitable. Leo, Aquarius persons figure in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lunar cycle is high — take initiative. Lead rather than follow. Set pace and create policy. Obtain hint from Scorpio message. Accent on individuality, personality, appearance, original methods and approach.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Much that happens is quiet, subdued, obscured, hidden. Hospital, organization, special charity could be involved. You may feel restricted. You'll have to separate fact from illusion. You may be asked to speak before cameras.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on romatic involvement, costs of making desires become realities. You get facts — you become aware of routine, of what's written between the lines. Taurus, Leo and Scorpio figure prominently. You feel more vital, alive and ambitious.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You make fine impression on one in position of authority. Your style comes through — more persons become aware of your unique abilities. Some changes due — and a message or call sets tone of your day. Relative is involved, too.

IF JULY 8th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are creative, productive, cpable of organizing a business. You accept responsibility. You are dynamic, passionate and dedicated. Capricorn, Cancer persons play important roles in your life. A new start indicated in August. In October, burden is lifted — you will have more opportunities and a "better" social life.
